RACING FUNDS FOR THE CLERGY

Amasa Thornton Got $250 on Account to Interest Friendly Ministers.

MUTUAL BANK LEDGER LOST

In It Was the Expense Account of the Bookmakers for the Year of the Bribery Scandal.

BELMONT STIRRED TO WRATH

Insists That Linn Bruce of Committee's Counsel Is Trying to Trip Him and Declines to Answer Questions.

August Belmont, Chairman of the Jockey Club and President of the Westchester Racing Association, lost his temper before the Legislative Graft Investigating Committee yesterday afternoon, and at the conclusion of an hour of confusing cross-examination by M. Linn Bruce, counsel for the committee, accused Mr. Bruce of trying to trip him into making some mistake and refused to answer any more questions concerning the distribution of funds raised by the turfmen for "legal expenses and publicity," when legislation inimical to racing was pending at Albany.

Before this climax was reached Mr. Belmont had told a second chapter of inside history concerning the effort of the racing associations to save the racing interests when the Hart-Agnew bill and other measures menaced them. This second chapter proved more interesting than the first, which Mr. Belmont related last week. He told yesterday how some money was spent to encourage a friendly feeling for racing among the clergymen. The money was not paid to the ministers themselves. It went to Amasa Thornton, a downtown lawyer, who said Mr. Belmont informed him that "quite a number" of clergymen who believed that racing was being conducted as it should be could be persuaded to help in the fight against the anti-race track gambling measure.

Another surprise came with the announcement that the ledger of the Mutual Bank, containing the account of the Metropolitan Turf Association, between Feb. 17, 1908, and June 11 of that year, had mysteriously disappeared from the bank. The cashier testified that he believed it had been carried off with the waste paper and lost. It was from this ledger that the graft committee hoped to learn just what proportion of the $500,000 fund, said to have been raised by the racing interest, to defeat the race track bill was raised by the Metropolitan Turf Association, otherwise known as the bookmakers' organization. Mr. Bruce seemed to consider it significant that the Hart-Agnew bill was passed on June 11, 1908, the very date on which the last entry on the lost ledger was supposed to have appeared.

$1,500 Paid to Betts.

Another development was the production of evidence showing that one of the "publicity agents" of the racing interests was Charles H. Betts, publisher of The Lyons Republican of Lyons, N. Y., who at the time was Chief of the Revision Room of the Assembly and a State Committeeman. One payment to Mr. Betts in 1906 was $1,500. There were much larger sums paid to other publicity men in the employ of the race track associations.

It was at Mr. Belmont's own request that he appeared before the committee for the second time yesterday. Several days ago he wrote a letter to Mr. Bruce saying that a false impression had been created by his testimony of last week and that he desired to set himself right. Upon his appearance as a witness he asked to have his letter incorporated in the record, but Mr. Bruce would not consent. He told Mr. Belmont he could read the letter aloud if he wished and have the stenographer take it, provided, of course, he agreed to give whatever testimony it contained under oath. Mr. Belmont read the letter. When he had finished Mr. Bruce began to question him.

"Do you recall what legislation was pending in 1906 in the Legislature affecting racing?" he asked.

Mr. Belmont said that he could not recall offhand, but when Mr. Bruce suggested that the Cassidy-Lansing bill was up at that time he agreed that such was the case.

"What was the position of The Jockey Club in respect to this measure?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"Hostile," replied Mr. Belmont.

Mr. Bruce passed on to 1907 and asked about anti-racing legislation that year.

"That was the year of Mr. Jerome's bill," said Mr. Belmont, and he recalled that the Hart-Agnew bill was also presented that year. The Jockey Club was also hostile to this measure, he said.

Judge Coyne's Employment.

Q.—Who had charge of the expenditure of money on behalf of The Jockey Club or racing associations for the purpose of presenting their views to the Legislature in 1906 or 1907? A.—That was the year Judge Coyne was in Albany. There were also delegations which went there.

Q.—Upon whose recommendation was Judge Coyne chosen to represent the racing interests? A.—I presume it was Congressman Wadsworth; I don't recollect specifically.

Q.—What work did Judge Coyne do in 1906 and 1907 to earn the $40,000 paid him by the turf interests? A.—I understand that he attended the various sessions and followed the development of the legislation. I remember we had a large delegation from New York at his suggestion.

Q.—Who retained him? Did you? A.—No.

Q.—Who did he represent? A.—Our combined interests.

Mr. Belmont explained that he was in Europe much of 1906 and 1907. He did not remember whether Coyne reported to him from time to time or not.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know if it was not the practice of The Jockey Club to represent the various racing associations in all matters in which they had a common interest.

"Some one had to clear the voluntary contributions, and The Jockey Club usually did it," said Mr. Belmont. Reading from the testimony of Treasurer Sturgis, Mr. Bruce said that in 1908 Mr. Belmont requested that a change be made and that a fund be set aside to be used by him for future legal expenses.

"Is that your recollection?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"Yes," said Mr. Belmont, "but that was not the real reason. When I returned from Europe most all of the legal expenses paid were for services that had been rendered. Then there was litigation pending, and it was necessary to have money for counsel fees. I would rather bring a letter which explains it more fully."

Mr. Bruce did not seem anxious to see

BURGLARS WITH AN AUTO.

Men and Woman in Evening Dress Rob New Rochelle Residents.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Two men in evening dress and a woman, all in fur coats, with a large yellow automobile and a colored chauffeur, robbed the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph D. Murthey, 21 Lincoln Street, Homestead Park, at New Rochelle, and are believed to have repeated the trick at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wallach, 39 Bay View Avenue, last night. In the Murthey residence $2,000 worth of jewelry was taken, but the silverplate and cut glass in the dining room were not touched. From the Wallach residence the burglars took clothing and jewelry valued at $500.

Miss Eva Glardon, who lives opposite the Murthey home, told the police that she had seen a handsome yellow touring car in front of Mr. Murthey's house last night, and that a man and woman in evening dress and fur overcoats emerged from the front door. As they left the porch the man took off his hat, and with a bow said in a loud voice, "Well, good night; we'll see you next week." Then he closed the door, handed the woman down the steps and into the automobile. They were joined by a second man, and the three were driven off rapidly. The man who left the house carried two suit cases.

After the party was out of sight Miss Glardon noticed one of the parlor windows open, and then remembered that Mrs. Murthey had gone out in the afternoon and the maid was away for the day.

She ran across the street to the home of Mr. Murthey's father, Mr. William R. Murthey, and told him of the incident. Mr. Murthey found one of the parlor windows had been forced with a jimmy. The rooms on the second story had been ransacked and the contents of bureau drawers and closets turned out on the floors.

Among the jewelry stolen were a number of gold chains, a diamond pendant and other pieces which were given Mrs. Murthey by her father, and which she values highly.

It was learned that earlier in the evening an automobile and party such as that described by Miss Glardon, was seen passing trough Bay View Avenue near the Wallach residence. Mr. Wallach is a local cigar dealer. The house was entered by breaking a side window and unfastening the catch.

PAY AT ENTRY CAR RIOTS.

Toronto Folk Attack and Wreck Them After a Meeting of Protest.

TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 7.—A riot, remarkable for its spontaneity and fierceness while it lasted, to-night resulted in the injury of eighteen men, the wrecking of eleven street cars, and the shattering of the windows in more than 100. For two hours a mob of several thousand surged back and forth on the principal business thoroughfares, demolishing every street car that came within reach, and tying up traffic.

The disorderly scenes followed a mass meeting in Massey Hall. Two weeks ago the Toronto Street Railway installed pay-as-you-enter cars on the principal car lines. Much dissatisfaction developed over the innovation. It was alleged that the cars were not adapted to that kind of service. Mayor Geary and the Board of Control decided to hold a public mass meeting. The meeting resolved itself into a series of fiery denunciations of the street car company and shortly before 11 o'clock it broke up in disorder.

The audience became a mob. The first street car that hove in sight was stopped. Several hundred persons surrounded it, and after pulling the conductor and motorman from their places reduced it to a scrap heap.

Car after car was attacked by the mob, which grew in number every moment. Police reserves were summoned, but they were outnumbered fifty to one and were powerless to control the situation. For hours the carnival of destruction continued unchecked.

The cars were filled with people going home from theatres, but were quickly emptied, thousands having to walk home.

Toward midnight the crowd gradually withdrew from the streets, and at 12:30 A. M. the street car services was resumed.

VEXED OVER TAFT PARTY.

House Members Not Invited to Attend Debut of President's Daughter.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The social staff at the White House has suddenly been converted into a storm centre of unusual proportions by the discovery that the House of Representatives and the families of members were wholly left out of the recent reception in honor of the coming-out of Miss Helen Taft.

While it was observed that the invitations embraced a peculiarly wide range of guests and the occasion was thereby rendered more than ordinarily enjoyable, and, in fact, became to many very much like a wholesale reunion of old friends it was not noticed that the rank and file of the House were left out.

This fact did not long remain unknown, for many members' wives seized the first opportunity to let the inmates of the White House know that they had been made the objects of a slight. It became necessary in order to stem the tide of indignation to make a prompt investigation of the whole matter.

The fact was well known at the White House that invitations had been sent to all the House families and that none came was simply a miracle to the social staff. A tracer was sent out on the track of the invitations, and it was found that they had not been delivered by a special messenger as is the custom, but those for the Senate and House families had been forwarded through the Post Office.

By some freak of the mails those for the Senatorial families reached their destination, but those for House families had not been delivered, although the House is provided with two Post Offices—one in the big office building and one at the capitol. Beyond the discovery that there were invitations for the House people, and that they are said to have been sent from the White House, no definite information has been secured.

The White House was so disturbed about the matter that it was found necessary to give out a formal statement to-night explaining the matter as much as was possible with the facts at hand. The brightest detectives in the Post Office Department are at work to find out what really became of the invitations alleged to have been sent from the White House to the House of Representatives, and a later chapter of the affair is looked for anxiously.

UNIONIST NET GAINS, 3 WALDORF ASTOR IN Good Day for Opposition—Young Anglo-American Wins One of the Captured Seats.

O'BRIEN VICTORY IN CORK

Both Seats There Lost to the Redmondites—Lancashire's Enthusiasm for the Liberals Decreases.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The standing of the parties at the close of to-day's polling was as follows:

GOVERNMENT COALITION.
Liberals	123
Irish Nationalists	38
Laborites	23
Total	184
OPPOSITION.
Unionists	170

The Unionists gained six seats in to-day's pollings, of which the results were announced to-night, and suffered a loss of only two seats. They thus return to the position held previous to yesterday's voting.

The Unionists' total gains for the four days are 18, the Liberal gains 11, and the Labor gains 4. Among the Nationalists the O'Brienites hold five seats.

One of the most remarkable victories and greatest surprises of the day was at Plymouth. There Waldorf Astor, elder son of William Waldorf Astor, and A. Shirley Benn, John Burns's old opponent in Battersea, captured two seats for the Unionists. Mr. Benn took Sir M. Durand's place as the running mate of the young Anglo-American.

They proved a good team, and the work that Mr. Astor had done in the constituency was shown in his success in replacing C. E. Mallet, Financial Secretary to the War Office, who is the first Minister to be defeated. In addition, young Astor headed the poll, the figures being as follows:

Waldorf Astor, (U.)	8,118
A. Shirley Benn, (U.)	7,942
C. E. Mallet, (L.)	7,379
Aneurin Williams, (L.)	7,260

The Unionists also captured the Melton Division of Leicestershire, and their other two gains were made from Labor. Dudley, which was consistently Unionist until 1906, returned to the fold, and Viscount Wolmer recaptured Newton in Lancashire, which Labor has held in two Parliaments.

Messrs. O'Brien and Healy have issued the following message to the British people:

"Cork has declared itself emphatically for a policy conciliating our Protestant fellow countrymen, for uniting all ranks and classes in an appeal to the good feeling of the English people in favor of financial justice to Ireland, for the reestablishment of land purchase, and for the handing over to a friendly united Ireland legislative control of their own domestic affairs."

Lancashire is not remaining as stanchly with the Government as in the two previous contests. Almost everywhere in the county the Labor and Liberal vote has decreased, and the Unionists are more pleased with their gains there than anywhere else in the country. For some reason many Lancastrians have failed to vote, which is rather remarkable, for the northerners are keen politicians. In several cases the Unionists won seats on the same sized vote polled as in January, while the coalition vote was reduced through abstention on the part of former supporters.

The Government gets some comfort from London, all the districts of which are now polled. To-day the Liberals won Stepney, which was Unionist at the last election, and Labor gained Bow and Bromley. The latter seat was captured by George Lansbury, an avowed Socialist, whom Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George advised the Liberals to support in preference to L. S. Amery, the historian and journalist, who married the sister of T. Hamar Greenwood, the Canadian free trade member for Sunderland.

These victories brought the coalition gains in the metropolis up to four, against two losses. Besides, B. S. Straus, the Liberal candidate, came within two votes of recapturing Mile End. Sydney Buxton, President of the Board of Trade, like John Burns, the other member of the Cabinet, sitting for a London constituency, greatly increased his majority.

Earlier in the day the most interesting of the election news came from Cork City, where in the pollings yesterday the Independent Nationalists defeated the Redmondites in the most bitter fight of the campaign.

William O'Brien, leader of the independents, was returned with a slightly decreased majority of 638 over William Redmond, brother of the Nationalist leader. Morris Healy, who was defeated last January by the Nationalist candidate, A. Roche, who had a majority of 209, yesterday turned the tables on Mr. Roche, winning the seat with 526 votes to spare.

So much feeling was aroused between the parties that it was thought wise not to announce the victory of the "All for Ireland" Party last night, and the results were made known to-day.

The success of William O'Brien in Cork and the possibility of his further increasing his following somewhat complicates the situation. The Unionists are asking what the Government will do if it has to face a stronger Unionist opposition, with a strong fighting force of Irishmen on its flank.

Altogether 64 members were voted for to-day, but only 36 results were announced. Most of the other contests were in the counties, where the polling places are scattered, so that the outcome will not be known until to-morrow. A majority of these constituencies are represented by Unionists, and there is great curiosity to know whether or not the counties have changed since January.

The results in Dublin City and Limerick City will also be announced to-morrow. As at Cork the declaration of the votes in these places at night was considered likely to stir up trouble.

Interest in the election continued to increase to-night. Immense crowds stood for hours awaiting the flashing of results outside the newspaper offices, and in the East End and other parts of London, where polling took place, thousands paraded the streets, cheering the successful candidates.

Speaking at Wrexham this evening Mr. Balfour practically admitted defeat and implored the Government, if it did not like tariff reform, to reconsider the whole situation before the next Colonial Conference and suggest some other method of meeting the impending danger. The situation, he said, was full of peril unless they shook themselves free from Nationalist domination. It was clear that the nation could not be trusted in the keeping of the Liberal Government, and, he declared, before long another appeal must be made to the country.

Premier Asquith, addressing his constituents at East Fife to-night, took up Mr. Balfour's challenge to him to discuss home rule. He said he had not talked much about home rule because he had been talking about a matter which must come up first, and this was the emancipation of the House of Commons from the thraldom under which it at present lay. Mr. Asquith said he had never given any uncertain sound upon home rule, and recalled a speech which he made on this subject in the Albert Hall a year ago.

ALBERT B. CHANDLER TO WED MISS VIVIAN

He's the Vice President of the Postal Telegraph, Where She Was Once a Stenographer.

ONLY CLOSE FRIENDS KNOW

But Formal Announcement of the Wedding Day Is Now Expected—An Accomplished Girl from Tennessee.

When Albert Brown Chandler, Vice President and former President of the Postal Telegraph Company, appeared at a dinner of the Tennessee Society recently escorting Miss Mildred Vivian, formerly a stenographer of the same company, friends of Mr. Chandler slyly offered congratulations. None was waved aside, except with a mild protest that he was "premature." Afterward Mr. Chandler made some more intimate confessions to a closer circle of his friends.

Among them, it has become generally understood, that Mr. Chandler's wedding has been fixed for next Tuesday and that Miss Vivian will be the bride.

Mr. Chandler was one of the telegraphers assigned to handle the cipher telegrams received at the War Department during the civil war. He often worked for hours with President Lincoln bending over him "to get away from his persecutors," as President Lincoln used to put it.

Since that time Mr. Chandler has been known as Col. Chandler in all telegraphic circles.

For fifteen years, while Mr. Chandler was President of the Postal Telegraph Company, he maintained a close supervision over its various departments, and it was while engaged in looking over the office of one of his chief subordinates that he was attracted by a young stenographer who had recently come to this city with her parents from Tennessee.

To her friends Miss Vivian has persisted in declaring that she never even suspected "the Colonel's" sentiments until a few months ago, although she met him casually in office hours for a long time after their first meeting. Her first intimation of the series of events leading up to the plans for Tuesday came in the early Summer, when she was asked to visit Mr. Chandler's relatives at their Summer home in West Randolph, Vt.

Miss Vivian accepted the invitation, and that was the last her girl friends in the Postal Telegraph Company's headquarters saw of her. She returned from her visit to live with her mother at the corner of Riverside Drive and 140th Street, where Mr. Chandler was observed to be a frequent caller.

The formal announcement of the engagement, it is expected, will be made in a few days. The bride to be is said to be accomplished and attractive in manner and appearance. Her family is an old one in the South, where it was established before the civil war.

Mr. Chandler is a widower. The first Mrs. Chandler died several years ago leaving two grown sons, Albert Eckert, named after the late Gen. Eckert, former President of the Western Union, and Willis Derwin. Since the death of Mrs. Chandler Mr. Chandler has continued to maintain his home in Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, and a Summer home in Massachusetts. It is thought he will live in his Brooklyn home for the rest of the Winter with his bride.

In the building up of the coast-to-coast telegraph companies and in developing the plant of the Postal Company Mr. Chandler was most prominent among the Postal officials. He is a Director in the Carnegie Trust Company, Vice President and Director of the Commercial Cable Company of Cuba, and of the Federal Safe Deposit Company, President and Director of the New England Telegraph Company, Vice President and general manager of the New York Quotation Company, and Director of the Otis Elevator Company.

Mr. Chandler's connection with the Postal Company commenced with its organization in 1884 and has continued without interruption. He was born in 1840, learned telegraphy as a boy, and in 1858 became manager of the Western Union office at Bellaire, Ohio. With the outbreak of the war his reputation as an expert telegrapher brought him an offer from Washington to receive code messages in the office of Secretary Stanton. He served partly through the war, and in 1863 became disbursing clerk to Gen. Eckert. With the restoration of peace he took up his duties as a Western Union operator, working up through the ranks until he followed Gen. Eckert into the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, of which he became President upon Gen. Eckert's retirement in 1879.

He was the first counsel of the Postal Company, becoming its receiver when it failed in June, 1885. He reorganized it in 1886, becoming its President and General Manager.

E. V. W. ROSSITER DYING.

Vice President of the New York Central Ill Since August.

E. V. W. Rossiter, for more than fifty years connected with the New York Central Railroad, and Vice President of that company for the last ten years, is believed to be dying of a complication of maladies at his home at 23 Sanford Avenue, Flushing, L. I.

Mr. Rossiter's ill-health dates back to August, when he went to Europe and returned apparently improved, but was later compelled to undergo an operation from which he never fully rallied. A month ago he took to his bed, and his condition has since gradually grown worse.

Mr. Rossiter was born in St. Louis sixty-six years ago. He was Treasurer of the New York Central before he became Vice President.

MAYOR BOTHERED BY CALLERS

Forced to Transact City Business at Home to Escape Annoyance.

Mayor Gaynor is transacting a great deal of official business at his home, 20 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, in these days. For some time he has been so bothered by callers at his office that he has found concentrated work almost impossible.

To escape this annoyance he decided to attend to certain matters at his home, where he would be assured of not being disturbed. He spends several hours each morning in his library and then comes to the City Hall.

MRS. SHONTS'S $20,000 JEWELS ARE SEIZED

Customs Inspectors Take Them Because She Failed to Declare Them for Duty.

MUST EXPLAIN HER ACTION

Had Trouble Once Before and the Shonts Home Was Searched for Paris Finery.

Jewels, roughly estimated as worth $20,000, were taken from Mrs. Theodore P. Shonts yesterday on her arrival from abroad on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse and sent to the Public Stores pending an investigation to be made by Surveyor Henry. The jewelry was not declared, and Mrs. Shonts will have to explain to the Customs officials her failure to declare it as subject to duty.

Mrs. Shonts returned after a visit to her daughter in Paris. She made out a Customs declaration on board the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, in which she said she was bringing to this country some $650 worth of personal effects. The Inspector who examined her baggage verified this declaration. Her baggage showed that she had declared the correct amount.

After the examination of her trunks Mrs. Shonts was asked to submit for examination the jewel case which she carried in her hand. This was a mahogany case about 15 inches long, 9 wide, and 6 deep. Before surrendering it for examination Mrs. Shonts is said to have insisted that she had nothing more to declare for duty.

The jewel case was examined by a Deputy Surveyor. It contained many pieces of jewelry which had apparently been in the possession of Mrs. Shonts for some time. Beneath this jewelry and still wrapped in tissue paper the examiners found five pieces of jewelry, each a fine specimen of the jeweler's art. The pieces now in Public Stores are a diamond necklace, a pearl necklace, a jeweled pendant of great value, a pearl and diamond set La Valliere, and a long gold link chain set at intervals with pearls.

When Mrs. Shonts was questioned concerning these jewels she explained that the jewelry she possessed was not up to date in its setting. Therefore she had deposited some $30,000 worth of it with a Parisian jeweler, who in return gave her about $20,000 worth of precious stones set in the most approved style. The Customs authorities were led to believe that Mrs. Shonts has still a credit of $10,000 with the Paris jeweler, and say they will be on the lookout to prevent that amount from coming in undeclared.

Mrs. Shonts explained further that as she had exchanged jewelry already in her possession for other articles, she did not suppose that she had to declare the latter. She told the Deputy Surveyor that she could not understand why her declaration was questioned, and was at a loss to understand why the jewels could not be admitted free when they were not purchased in the foreign market. The Customs officials could not take her viewpoint.

The Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, with one screw gone, reached her pier at 9:15 A. M., much earlier than she was expected. There was no one on hand to meet Mrs. Shonts, and it was not until an hour after the vessel landed her passengers that Mr. Shonts came on the pier to meet his wife. While examination of her jewel case was under way, and before Mr. Shonts had arrived, Mrs. Shonts said she regretted his absence. She said that she had been abroad to visit her daughter in Paris, and expected to return to the French capital in two months' time.

"I did not bring much jewelry with me," she said. "I have made my declaration, and I hope there will be no trouble with the Customs men. Usually my husband is here to meet me," she said, "and assists with my baggage."

When Mr. Shonts arrived at the pier he also was questioned by the Customs officers, but could throw no light on the case.

At the Custom House it was said that the preliminary report of the detention had been received there and nothing could be given out until the report from the official taking action had been received. The report will be in the hands of the Surveyor to-day, and it is probable that Mr. Shonts will be called before the Surveyor and his assistant, Deputy Surveyor Smyth, on Friday.

The Shontses have had trouble before with the Customs officials. In September, 1908, information was laid before the then Collector Fowler that Mrs. Shonts and her daughter had brought in some valuable gowns undeclared. A discharged housekeeper gave the information, upon which a search of the Shonts home, 123 West Thirty-fourth Street, was made by the Customs men. It was said at the time that most of the gowns belonged in the trousseau of Miss Theodora Shonts, then about to marry the Duc de Chaulnes.

The Collector was at first unwilling to make a search, but later ordered inspectors to take action. The result was that some $1,500 duty was paid on Paris gowns.

Mrs. Shonts said at that time that she did not know she had to pay duty on dresses bought and worn on the other side. Collector Fowler, upon the finding of dutiable goods in the Shonts home, made the statement that "Mr. Shonts will not be prosecuted because of his official business and social standing, nor will there be discrimination in his favor by reason of his position in life."

The case was dropped soon afterward.

RUSSIAN SECRET AGENT HERE

East Side Revolutionaries Perturbed by Mysterious Visitor.

The Russian population of the east side, especially that part of it which has revolutionary leanings, was considerably stirred up yesterday by a rumor that a certain famous Russian Secret Service agent or "procurator," had come to this country six weeks ago and was acting from some mysterious hiding place. This procurator, according to the east side, is named Gourovitz. East side papers printed descriptions of him yesterday and members of the Russian Social Revolutionary Party were wondering where he was working, and for what purpose he had been sent here by the Russian Government.

Some thought he might have been sent to report upon the strength and activity of the Russian Social Revolutionary Party. Others thought he might have come here to consult with Alexander N. Evalenko, the Russian publisher of this city, who was accused a few months ago by a revolutionary committee of being the Russian Government's chief spy here. The east siders thought that Gourovitz might be going to help Evalenko in his libel suit against Bourtseff, the Russian Revolutionist Party's "Sherlock Holmes."

The basis of the rumor regarding the new agent's presence in this country, according to members of the Russian Social Revolutionary Party here, is a brief letter received by one of them. The letter is very brief. It states that Gourovitz left St. Petersburg six weeks ago, that he is the same Gourovitz who posed as a social reformer and editor of the socialist paper New Word of St. Petersburg five years ago, and who subsequently turned out to be merely a Russian Government spy.

Gourovitz is "tall, very dark; sometimes bearded, and a wearer of eyeglasses." According to the letter sent he recently became the right-hand man of Chief Ratskovsky of the Russian Secret Service at St. Petersburg. The east side gossiped about the possibilities suggested by the unsigned letter all through yesterday afternoon.

BOMB WRECKS BIG TENEMENT

Sleeping Tenants Hurled from Their Beds—Deny Receiving Threats.

A bomb was exploded in the front hallway of the five-story tenement at 345 East Forty-fifth Street just before last midnight. The concussion shook the plaster from most of the ceilings in the house, tore a hole in the hallway floor, smashed all the front windows and threw into a panic the horde of tenants.

The report of the explosion was heard in the East Fifty-first Street Police Station, more than a quarter of a mile away, and Capt. O'Connor sent the reserves to the scene. They found the street filled with excited men, women, and children, most of them only partly clothed.

Of the whole throng not a man could be found who would admit that he had received a Black Hand letter or a threat of any kind. According to them there was no reason why a bomb should have been exploded in the house.

There are no stores in the lower floor of the tenement, although among the tenants are the proprietors of several stores in the neighborhood. All the tenants are natives of Italy or Sicily.

CASTELLANE SUICIDE TALE.

Paris Hears Rumor About Count Boni, but No Confirmation Comes.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—A rumor was current here to-night that a Frenchman well known in aristocratic and political circles had committed suicide.

The report associated the tragedy with the name of Count Boni de Castellane, who married and was divorced by Anna Gould, but no reasons for this were forthcoming, and no confirmation whatever could be obtained.

BOLIVIAN-PERUVIAN BATTLE.

Peruvian Frontier Garrison Attacked—Many Killed and Wounded.

LIMA, Peru, Dec. 7.—According to dispatches received here, Bolivian forces surprised and attacked the Peruvian garrison at Guayabal, on the Bolivian frontier.

A sharp engagement followed, in which many of the Peruvians were killed or wounded. Peruvian troops have been rushed to the scene.

There are fears that this will lead to a serious rupture between the two countries.

PUERTO CORTEZ THREATENED

Rebel Attack Expected—Town Entrenched—Many Flee from Honduras.

PUERTO CORTEZ, Honduras, Dec. 7, (via wireless to New Orleans.)—In anticipation of a revolutionary attack this city is intrenched and heavily garrisoned with Government troops.

The authorities are momentarily expecting an attack.

Many of the residents of the republic have gone across the border or to the United States.

BERLIN'S COUNT 2,180,000.

Nearly 7 Per Cent. Increase in 5 Years—Greater Berlin Over 3,000,000.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.Berlin's population on Dec. 1, 1910, was officially announced to-night at 2,180,000, compared with 2,040,148 in 1905. The increase is thus 6.8 per cent. These figures, however, do not cover the so-called "Greater Berlin," embracing the independent municipalities of Charlottenburg, Schoenberg, Wilmersdorf and Rixdorf, which are commonly regarded as integral portions of the Kaiser's capital.

Including these independent municipalities, the population is a fraction over 3,000,000.

Other great cities of the Fatherland, according to the new census, are Hamburg, with 936,000 inhabitants; Munich, with 595,053; Leipzig, with 585,743; Dresden, with 546,882; Frankfort-on-Main, with 414,406; Nuremberg, with 332,539; Hanover, with 299,753; Chemnitz, with 286,465, and Magdeburg, with 279,684. Two other large towns, Cologne and Breslau, have not yet been heard from.

PASSION PLAY YIELDS $476,150

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN Dec. 7.—The gross receipts of this year's Passion Play at Oberammergau are officially reported as $476,150. After defraying the costs of the production and other incidental expenses $324,100 remain to be distributed, and $191,500 to be divided among 860 performers.

The managers of the play, musical directors, chief cashier, and portrayers of Christ, Pilate, Caiphas, Herod and Speaker of the prologue will receive $625 each for six months' services, the other salaries to be in proportion to the importance of the respective rôles. The men and women who played so vividly as members of the crowds in the streets of Jerusalem will receive $30 each, and school children $7.50 each.

$2,625 will be given to the poor and the balance of $108,750 will remain in the village treasury for communal purposes.

WOMEN HOLD UP BOND ISSUE

Court of Appeals Holds It Invalid Because Vote Was Denied Them.

ALBANY, Dec. 7.—Because women taxpayers were denied the right to vote at a special election, proceedings instituted by the village of Seneca Falls to issue $240,000 in bonds for water works improvements have been declared invalid by the Court of Appeals.

After the village authorities held that the women were not entitled to vote, an injunction was obtained prohibiting the opening of bids.

FLYNN SOLVES WARNER CRIME

Young Engineer Was Taken for an Express Strike Breaker and Stabbed to Death.

THREE ARRESTS FOR MURDER

Clue Came from an Anonymous Letter Telling of a Shotgun in Strike Headquarters.

DETECTIVES WEEKS AT WORK

Names of the Prisoners Withheld at Present Until a Fourth Man Is Taken.

Three men were taken to Police Headquarters yesterday on suspicion of being concerned in the murder of John C. Warner of Highwood, Conn., the young civil engineer who was waylaid and stabbed to death in Seventh Avenue, near Thirty-sixth Street, early in the evening of Monday, Oct. 31. The three were locked up there last night, and although the Detective Bureau declined to say a word about the arrests, after a long evening of investigation there is every reason to believe that this murder, the first under the régime of Deputy Police Commissioner William J. Flynn, has been solved.

For more than five weeks the police, under Mr. Flynn's personal direction, have worked night and day on the case, and last night the guarded admission was made that the men in custody knew all about the murder of young Warner.

Mr. Warner met his death through being mistaken for an express strikebreaker. After he had been stabbed several times a shotgun he was carrying to take on a duck hunting trip was wrenched away from him. This was taken later to the headquarters of the express strikers in Washington Hall, in Eighth Avenue, near Forty-seventh Street. It was the taking of Warner's gun to strike headquarters that gave the clue on which the police under Mr. Flynn's direction directed all their energies in their efforts to find the assailants of the youthful engineer.

Warner Stabbed From Behind.

Early on the evening of Oct. 31 young Mr. Warner left his office in THE TIMES building to go to the Pennsylvania Station, at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street. There he was to take a train for Long Island, where he expected to join some friends in a duck hunting party. As he walked down Seventh Avenue to the station several men—at least three, altogether—ran upon him from behind.

Warner put up a stiff fight, but the odds against him were too great. When he fell to the sidewalk he had four stab wounds, any one of which would have been mortal, in his back. Three days later he died in Flower Hospital. The failure of the medical staff of that institution to inform the police of the seriousness of Warner's injuries resulted in serious delay in the starting of the task of ferreting out the murderers.

Deputy Commissioner Flynn first learned of the murder from a TIMES reporter the night after Mr. Warner died. Mr. Flynn was astounded when he heard the facts in the case and immediately called on Inspector Russell for an explanation of the apparent inactivity of the police in the matter. Russell, however, was able to furnish an excuse. Detectives had been duly assigned to the case and the detectives declared they had been told when they went to Flower Hospital that Warner was in no danger.

The excuse of the detectives was verified by statements of relatives of the young engineer, who said that they too had been informed, up to within a few hours of Mr. Warner's death, that his condition was not serious. At any rate Commissioner Flynn lost no time in getting to work. Within an hour after he had learned the facts in the case the best men in the department had been detailed to run down the assassins. Their instructions were to keep at it until they could report results.

Strikers Showed the Shotgun.

There seemed to be no clues whatever at that time on which the detectives could concentrate. For two days they groped about in the dark. Then, one morning, just three days after Warner died, Deputy Commissioner Flynn received an anonymous letter. The writer said that on the Monday night after Mr. Warner was attacked several of the striking expressmen had exhibited a gun, similar to the one he was known to have carried, at their headquarters, in Eighth Avenue.

"See, here!" one of the strikers exclaimed on that night, showing the shotgun, "I guess this proves that those 'scabs' are carrying guns all right. We got this from one of them on Seventh Avenue to-night."

Later the gun was placed in a locker opposite a desk in the front room on the second floor of strike headquarters.

But Police Failed to Find It.

The day that Commissioner Flynn received this anonymous information, detectives were sent to strike headquarters. Every locker in the place was searched, but the gun was not found, and it is still missing. The detectives were able, however, to verify what the anonymous writer wrote. Commissioner Flynn now knows that the gun was in strike headquarters on the night of the murder, and that it was placed in the locker where the writer said it was.

The Commissioner also knows who the man is who put Warner's gun in the locker. It was understood last night that this man was one of the three prisoners.

With the establishment of the presence of the gun in strike headquarters the detectives began a search which gradually narrowed down to an investigation of the actions of a few men on the night of the murder. For more than three weeks these men have been under surveillance, and a chain of circumstantial evidence has been woven about them which definitely connects them with the killing.

"Third Degree" for Prisoners.

The detectives have been on the point of making arrests for several days, but Flynn held them back. Yesterday, however, the Chief decided that it was time to act. Three arrests were ordered. Lieut. Kear was told to make one, Lieut. Jones was told to look after the second, and the third was left to Lieut. Riley. The three are Flynn's most trusted men. Between 5 and 6 o'clock they came into Headquarters one after the other, and each had his man. All the prisoners were young. One of them wore the uniform of an expressman.

The prisoners were taken before Deputy Commissioner Flynn, and Inspector Russell, Capt. John Lynden, and Almuth C. Vandiver, former law partner of District Attorney Whitman and attorney for the express companies during the strike, were called in and took part in the examination of the prisoners. Earlier in the afternoon a cartload of baggage had been received at headquarters and taken into the Detective Bureau, but this had nothing to do with the case of the three men who were being put through the third degree. The examination lasted for several hours, and great secrecy was maintained as to what it was all about. Not one word would any of the police officials concerned in it give out. Capt. Lynden, however, warned the Headquarters reporters to be ready for "a big news story."

The reporters waited patiently in an ante-room for a summons to the Commissioner's office, but at the last moment Commissioner Flynn changed his mind and sent out word by his secretary that nothing was to be given out at present. He expects, it was learned, to make a fourth arrest in the case.

So secretly had the police proceeded that even the leaders of the recent express strike did not know last night that several of the men who had been identified with the strike either as strikers or sympathizers were under surveillance, and they do not yet know anything about the arrests made yesterday afternoon. The police refused to make public the names of any of the prisoners last night.

Commissioner Flynn was asked by a TIMES reporter to tell what had taken place in the conference at Headquarters, but declined to say anything.

"Will you deny that these prisoners are held in connection with the murder of John C. Warner?" he was asked.

"No, I won't deny it, neither will I affirm it," answered Flynn.

Story of Warner's End.

John C. Warner was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Warner of Highwood, Conn. He was employed by the Fidelity Development Company of this city, which has offices in the Times Building, and had been a resident of New York only a few weeks when he was killed. He had given up a Government place in Montana to go with the Fidelity corporation. The gun he was carrying when murdered was a present to him from his father.

He started down Seventh Avenue on the Monday night on which he received his fatal wounds, with the shotgun over his shoulder, and his game bag slung over his other shoulder. According to the story he told his mother in the hospital, while he was passing Thirty-sixth Street, several men ran up and tried to take his gun from him. While he was struggling with them for its possession another man struck him from behind with a heavy club, and another man stabbed him four times in the back as he fell. After the stabbing his assailants fled, taking the gun with them. No policeman appeared in all the time the men were struggling.

Warner got to his feet and staggered on. He reached Forty-second Street and Broadway before he found a policeman. There he fell unconscious at the feet of Policeman Guckain, who was regulating traffic. The policeman called an ambulance and Mr. Warner was taken to Flower Hospital.

In the hospital he grew rapidly worse, and at last blood transfusion was suggested by Dr. John Douglas, the surgeon called in consultation at the last moment as the only hope of saving him. Then it was found that there were not the necessary instruments for the operation in Flower Hospital. Before they could be borrowed from another hospital, Mr. Warner died.

The Coroner did not take an ante-mortem statement from the victim, and the police were inactive until the facts were brought to the personal attention of Deputy Commissioner Flynn. The Coroner's office afterward issued a statement asserting that the hospital was negligent in not informing the Coroner of the wounded man's serious condition. The police put the blame in the same quarter, and Harold B. Weaver, Chief Engineer of the Fidelity Development Company and Warner's friend, made charges against the hospital management. These were answered by Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Director of Flower Hospital.

PROGRESS IN SNOW REMOVAL

Main Thoroughfares Almost Cleared, but Work Will Take Several Days.

The work of removing snow from the city's streets went on all day yesterday, and from the quantities which at night still covered the pavements it appeared probable that the work would continue for two or three days more. Five days all told would be in accordance with the usual estimates of men familiar with the work, for the fall was estimated at five inches, and experience in other years has taught the Street Cleaning Department that about an inch of snow a day is all that can be removed all over the city.

In Manhattan, Brooklyn, and the Bronx 4,500 men worked yesterday, and an equal number at least will be busy to-day. Other gangs will be kept at work through the night as they were last night. Of the 4,500 men, Manhattan's allotment was 2,500; Brooklyn got 1,294, and the Bronx 706.

BALDWIN MAKES DENIAL.

Didn't Return Unopened Letters to Col. Roosevelt.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 7.—Judge Simeon E. Baldwin to-night authorized the statement that he had not returned unopened any letters of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, and that he declined to make any statement relative to his coming suit against Col. Roosevelt. It is known that powerful influences are at work to reconcile the Judge and the ex-President and induce them to sit at the same table at the Chamber of Commerce dinner.

A rumor that was promptly denied brought the name of President Hadley of Yale into the misunderstanding as peacemaker. The next step is expected from Col. Roosevelt, whose statement is likely to appear soon.

GLOVERS MAY STILL CONTEST EDDY WILL Talk in Their Home Town of Son's Settlement Not Affecting Grandchildren's Claims.

FUNERAL TO BE HELD TO-DAY

Glover and His Children Arrive at Dead Christian Science Leader's House—Will Not to be Read.

Special to The New York Times.

LEAD, S. D., Dec. 7.—There is talk here in the home town of George W. Glover, the only son of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, of a probable contest of the dead Christian Science leader's will on behalf of Glover's children. Since the settlement of his famous "Next Friend" suit against Calvin A. Frye and others, whom he charged with willfully influencing Mrs. Eddy, Glover has not been communicative as to the financial benefits received. It has been understood, however, that he received in trust for his children some $175,000.

It is now declared that in some old correspondence, part of which was written less than a year ago by William E. Chandler, Glover's Eastern counsel, the implication was made in guarded language that the settlement then made would not hold and that Glover's children still had a legal right to come in for a portion of the estate when Mrs. Eddy died. These letters implied that nothing could be done until that death occurred, and were written to a local attorney then connected with the Glover case.

"Mr. Glover is in no state to discuss what he intends to do about his mother's estate," declared Mrs. Glover to-day. "Mr. Glover is not in good health," she continued. "He is subject to heart trouble, and the unexpected news of his mother's death has completely unnerved him; in fact, he should not have made the trip East at this time. But for the fact that we are remodeling our home I should have accompanied him East, but I expect to join him later."

The home mentioned is the $10,000 domicile given Mr. Glover by his mother some years ago. It is plainly furnished, and in it the Glover family has lived simply. Mr. Glover himself is almost always attired in rough clothes and long mining cowhide boots. For many years he has followed the life of a prospector and has some good mining ground in this section. He is not a believer in Christian Science or a member of any church, but has never criticised his mother's beliefs, though he has frequently publicly expressed the opinion that she was not in full possession of her mental faculties and had not been for many years.

Two years ago, when the settlement of his suit was announced, Glover steadily declined to give out particulars beyond saying that the suit was settled. After his return from the East he paid many outstanding bills and opened up a small candy store on Main Street in this city, at which he is now making a fair living. He still takes an active interest in mining and in developing his ground.

Glover is eccentric and unusually determined in his views. He rules his family with a kindly but firm hand, and his word is law. He has rarely been without some litigation in the local courts. Even his local attorney sued him for fees in the "Next Friend" case. This last suit was compromised by Glover.

NOTHING LEFT TO RELATIVES.

Judge Smith Says Mrs. Eddy's Will Will Be of No Interest to Her Family.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy, head of the Christian Science Church, who died Saturday night, it appears left none of her estate, estimated to be valued at nearly two million dollars, to relatives. So much at least was gathered from a remark made tonight by Judge Clifford P. Smith, first reader of the Mother Church, who said:

"Mrs. Eddy's will is not to be read tomorrow, as it contains absolutely nothing which would be of interest to any of the members of her family."

He made no statement as to that portion of the estate which may go to the church.

George Glover arrived here to-day to attend the funeral. Mr. Glover, accompanied by his daughter, Mary Baker Glover, and his son, George W. Glover, Jr., was driven at once from the station to Mrs. Eddy's late home at Chestnut Hill.

Judge Smith, who will have charge of the funeral services to-morrow, said tonight that Mrs. Eddy's coffin will not be open during the services, it being preferred to remember her as in life.

The body will be clothed entirely in white before being placed in the coffin, which is also to be of white.

In addition to Mrs. Eddy's relatives, the members of her immediate household, the officers of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and four newspaper representatives will be admitted to the Chestnut Hill mansion.

LOYAL TO THE MOTHER CHURCH

First Scientists Here Pledge Their Faith by Telegram to Offset Stetsonites.

The First Church of Christ, Scientist, which repudiated its founder, Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, last year and caused her excommunication by the Mother Church, sent a message to the Mother Church Board of Directors last night pledging its loyalty to the Christian Science Cause. The message was in the form of a telegram, drawn up and signed by the First Church Board of Trustees, and approved by a rising vote of the congregation at last night's regular Wednesday evening testimonial meeting.

After the short service was over and the several testimonials had been given, Virgil O. Strickler, the First Reader, announced that the Board of Trustees, of which he is a member, had drafted a telegram to the Mother Church Directors, which he wished the congregation to vote upon. Mr. Strickler then read this message:

> The Christian Science Board of Directors.
>
> Dear Brethren: The fulfillment of the earthly mission of our revered leader, the Rev. Mary Baker G. Eddy, moves us to pledge our unshaken loyalty to the truth she discovered and to the cause she founded. The good she has done for us can only be acknowledged as we reconsecrate our lives to the service of humanity.
>
> BOARD OF TRUSTEES, FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST, NEW YORK CITY.
> (Signed) ARTHUR O. PROBST, Clerk.

The motion to adopt the pledge was made by Richard P. Verrall, Librarian of First Church, and it was adopted unanimously.

Eulogistic references to Mrs. Eddy were made by two of those who gave testimonials at the meeting.

Christian Scientists who have followed closely the quarrel between the Stetson and Eddy factions said last night that the pledge of loyalty to the Mother Church Directors was brought about by the present Trustees to forestall any efforts that might be made by Mrs. Stetson's followers to use Mrs. Eddy's death as an argument for trying to pull First Church away from the Mother Church.

$20,000 TO KEEP NEGROES OUT

Harlemites Subscribe That Amount to Save West 136th Street.

After one day of canvassing among the property owners in West 136th Street it was announced yesterday $20,000 had been raised by the Property Owners' Protective Association of Harlem for a campaign to keep the negroes of "Little Africa," just east of Lenox Avenue, from further encroaching upon the street. The step was taken, according to John G. Taylor, Vice President of the association, after fruitless appeals to the West 125th Street Police Station to preserve order in the neighborhood. Mr. Taylor said yesterday that he had already obtained the signatures of 121 out of the 142 property owners on the street, between Eighth and Lenox Avenues, forming a branch organization to be known as the Association of Property Owners of West 136th Street.

The first encroachment of negroes upon the exclusive residential section of 136th Street, west of Lenox Avenue, Mr. Taylor says, was when Mrs. Edna C. F. Minnott, a negress, owning the house at 121 West 136th Street, let it to negroes. Mr. Taylor says he protested to the police of the West 125th Street Station that the house was occupied by disorderly persons, but the police took no action, and he was informed none could be taken. Thereafter, he says, he addressed himself to the then Police Commissioner Baker, and six days later the occupants of the house moved away. He says the residents of the section are now obliged to carry their complaints concerning disorder in the neighborhood directly to Headquarters instead of to the West 125th Street Station.

It is suspected, Mr. Taylor says, that there are some property owners who are using the "negro scare" for financial gain, and contemplate renting their houses to negroes in order to induce owners of adjacent property to buy it at an enhanced price. The association, said Mr. Taylor, will spend the money subscribed by its members in getting evidence against these owners, and also in buying up, whenever possible, mortgages on the property. The $20,000 already subscribed was given by three members of the organization.

DAMAGED LINER IN PORT.

Kaiser Wilhelm Made Good Time with Only One Propeller.

The North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which lost her port propeller on Monday afternoon while on her way from Bremen to this port, arrived yesterday morning, several hours ahead of the time she was expected. Notwithstanding the accident she made nearly 418 miles on one screw, averaging 20.3 knots an hour. In his wireless message Capt. Polack said he would only be able to log 15 knots an hour.

The accident happened at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon in fine weather. Capt. Polack reports only a slight jar and a racing of the engines when the propeller dropped off. With the loss of the propeller the balance tank filled, bringing the stern down to usual bearings.

Investigation showed that the tail shaft had broken off, apparently from a flaw in the metal. The stern tube outboard was ripped off and the propeller carried away. There was little excitement among those on board.

The steamer came into port with two black balls hoisted signifying "unmanageable, not under control," but was handled without difficulty and the assistance of two tugs sent down the bay by the company was refused by the Captain.

After the loss of the propeller he said the vessel ran into a snow storm but lost no time on that account. The Kaiser will sail on Tuesday as scheduled.

RACING FUNDS FOR THE CLERGY

the letter. He had one himself, written by Mr. Belmont to Mr. Sturgis in 1906, in which it was stated that legal expenses amounting to more than $40,000 had been apportioned among the racing associations. Mr. Belmont said that it referred merely to the method of meeting the legal expenses in that instance.

"But it seems first to have been taken into consideration by The Jockey Club, then apportioned between the racing associations," suggested Mr. Bruce.

Fund Provided for Publicity.

Mr. Belmont said that he would have to answer that in his own way. The law firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach had represented The Jockey Club for fifteen years, acting for all the associations whenever the services of counsel were required.

"Counsel fees had been very large and I recommended this method of payment," said Mr. Belmont.

Q.—Whom did Davis, Stone & Auerbach represent—The Jockey Club? A.—No; they represented any case that came as a result of racing. If any arrests were made they saw that the parties were represented.

Q.—If litigation arose between layers and players, did they appear? A.—No; I mean public arrests. The Jockey Club was always responsible for the good conduct of racing and the observance of the law.

Q.—Now it appears in the evidence that the Westchester Racing Association in 1908 appears to have expended some $17,000 for publicity. Did each of the other associations have a publicity bureau? A.—I don't think so. I cannot recall whether The Jockey Club had a publicity bureau.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know what part of the $17,000 was expended for publicity, but Mr. Belmont said that he could give no details.

"By whom was Maurice Minton retained and what work did he do?" asked Mr. Bruce.

Mr. Belmont said Minton was employed by him, and that he was supposed to create a sentiment in favor of racing through the newspapers. Minton never presented any bills, but in 1908 he received $6,000 for work done while the Hart-Agnew bill was pending. Minton was never asked for a detailed statement.

Mr. Bruce wanted to know who C. J. Fitzgerald was and what service he had rendered to have received large payments from the Westchester Racing Association.

"I remember that he published pamphlets and wrote articles on racing," said Mr. Belmont. "He was for many years a newspaper man, and President of the Brighton Beach Racing Association."

Looking Out for Clergymen.

Mr. Belmont said he knew what the payments to Amassa Thornton were for. Then he went on to tell about Thornton having gone to him and told him that there were many clergymen who believed racing was being conducted properly and would be willing to take part in the fight against the anti-race track bill. A previous witness, John J. Coakley, Assistant Treasurer of the Westchester Racing Association and second accountant in Mr. Belmont's banking house, had testified that in March, 1908, $250 was paid to Thornton, a lawyer, with offices at 96 Broadway. Mr. Coakley also presented a letter from Thornton to Mr. Belmont, saying, "Unless it makes a great difference to you, send me your check, as the amount is not large, and I'd prefer to have my relations with you." The payment to Thornton, said Coakley, was charged to "publicity."

"Why did he ask for your personal check?" asked Mr. Bruce.

"It is very possible I did it in order to save myself my own time," replied Mr. Belmont, evidently misunderstanding the question. "I don't remember. It's such a small matter. Let me see the voucher."

After reading the voucher Mr. Belmont said that he must have refused to send his personal check. He explained that Thornton had gone to him and offered to do some work, saying that $250 would be the expense.

Mr. Bruce then wanted to know something about W. B. Hunter, who, according to Coakley's testimony, had received $7,500 for "publicity" from the Westchester Racing Association in 1908. Mr. Belmont said he could not recall who recommended Hunter, but that he was first engaged to carry on a letter-writing campaign against the Hart-Agnew bill. His duty was to urge people throughout the State to write their Representatives in the Legislature condemning the measure. Mr. Belmont said that a large part of the money went for postage and stationery.

Q.—Between May 16 and May 26 of 1908 he received $7,500. Was that for stationery and postage? A.—He told me when I was looking over his items that something like 300,000 letters were sent out.

Q.—Now, these disbursements by the Westchester Racing Association of $17,500. Did the other associations carry on a similar campaign, or did the whole burden fall upon the Westchester Racing Association? A.—I do not carry the details in my mind.

Q.—Then the money paid to Fitzgerald must have been a contribution? A.—We didn't employ him.

Q.—I infer that the other racing associations paid a like amount? A.—Oh, no. If you want to extract from me some confusion about these things——

Questions Confuse the Witness.

Before he could finish Mr. Bruce interrupted saying: "In the Hunter case it must have been for the benefit of all concerned."

"I don't understand you," said Mr. Belmont confusedly. "You jump from one thing to the other so."

"Now, the $17,500 spent by the Westchester Racing Association for publicity," went on Mr. Bruce serenely, "that does not include any part of the $12,500?"

"I refuse to answer until I understand you," exclaimed Mr. Belmont. "You wish to mislead me."

"Oh, no, I don't," said Mr. Bruce. "The confusion, if any, is that Judge Coyne's payment was $40,000 and the legal expense fund was $40,000."

"You go from one to the other," persisted Mr. Belmont. "I think you have confused me and every one else about it."

"Well," suggested Mr. Bruce, "we will go back to the Westchester Racing Association, which expended $17,500."

"I was not the treasurer," interrupted Mr. Belmont. "Mr. Kresel, your assistant, has been through the books and you have the vouchers. You are asking me questions and trying to make it appear that something is irregular. You have searched the books. I decline to answer any further. You have all the information you want to know from me. You are asking me questions, trying to trip me into some mistake. I can't inform you as much as you already know."

"If I have confused you, Mr. Belmont, I am sorry," remarked Mr. Bruce. "It is most unfortunate. Now, has any sum been spent since 1908 by the Westchester Racing Association for publicity?"

"You must rely upon the vouchers," said Mr. Belmont. "And I desire to state this: The Treasurer of the association was under examination by you. Every voucher and every check and all information from the records have been given over to you. I can't do anything to that. The questions you have asked me lead me to the presumption that you have something besides the record."

Belmont Insists Upon It.

"No," said Mr. Bruce, "you are wrong there. These vouchers do not contain a statement of the services rendered. That is why I have questioned you."

"No, you tried to make me say that if the $17,500 was spent in a certain way all the others were spent the same," said Mr. Belmont.

"Oh, no," exclaimed Mr. Bruce.

"That's what you tried to make me say," insisted Mr. Belmont.

"Have you anything else to say?" inquired Mr. Bruce.

"I can't put you on the witness stand, but I think I am right about what I have said," remarked Mr. Belmont as he quit the stand.

Ex-Assemblyman Murphy, who was Chairman of the Committee on Codes in 1908, said ex-State Senator Gardner, now under indictment in connection with the legislative bribery charges, had approached him in the Manhattan Hotel when the Hart-Agnew bill was before the Committee on Rules in the regular session of the Legislature in 1908.

"He asked me to hold the bill in committee a couple of weeks," said Mr. Murphy.

Q.—For what purpose? A.—He didn't say. He made no statement to me.

Q.—What was his interest in the bill? A.—He didn't say.

Q.—What was your reply? A.—I told him it was impossible. The bill was reported out the next night.

Then came the news that the ledger containing the bookmakers' accounts had disappeared from the Mutual Bank. This news was conveyed to the committee by H. N. Kirkland, a cashier of the bank, who followed Mr. Murphy as a witness. He had been served with a subpoena to produce the accounts of the Metropolitan Turf Association between Jan. 1, 1907, and Jan. 1, 1910.

Telltale Bank Ledger Missing.

Q.—Have you a transcript of these accounts? A.—From Feb. 17, 1908, until June 11 of that year I cannot produce the transcript owing to the loss of the ledger.

Q.—What? Lost the ledger of the bank? A.—Yes; we don't know what has become of it. It is supposed, however, that the ledger for that period was carried out with waste paper. In the latter part of January, 1910, it was discovered that the ledged had disappeared.

A thorough search was made, explained the cashier. Owing to cramped quarters in the bank some of the books had been taken to the Manhattan Safe Deposit Company. A search had been made there as well as in the bank.

"That is a most unfortunate circumstance," remarked Mr. Kresel of counsel for the committee, "for it covers a period in which we are greatly interested. Have you ever lost a ledger before?" Mr. Kirkland admitted that they never had. There were between 600 and 800 accounts in the ledger which was lost.

Charles E. Calhoun, chief clerk of the Lincoln Trust Company, where the Metropolitan Turf Association carried its investment account, was also a witness. He produced the books of account showing transactions with the association between January, 1908, and January, 1910, but was not questioned.

John J. Coakley, Assistant Treasurer of the Westchester Racing Association and second accountant in Mr. Belmont's office, began his testimony by saying that the administration office of the racing association was in the banking house of August Belmont & Co., but that the racing office was in the Windsor Arcade. He explained that James R. Keene was Vice President of the racing association and that Harry Payne Whitney was one of the Directors. Prior to June of last year Mr. Peltz, the former Treasurer, had charge of the books. Mr. Belmont, the President, had the power to order payments by the association, and in Mr. Belmont's absence they could be ordered by the Managing Director. Mr. Coakley had with him several books of accounts.

All for Publicity.

Turning to the "legal expense account" at the direction of Mr. Kresel the witness read these expenditures:

"For 1907, $18,062; for 1908, [illegible] 305."

"And what was the sum for legal expenses in 1909?" asked Mr. Kresel.

"It shows a credit balance of $224.12," said Mr. Coakley. "That was from a refund of $524.20."

"So that legal expenses for 1909 were how much?"

"Nothing."

Under date of Feb. 8, 1908, the book showed a payment of $5,000 to Maurice M. Minton. The entry read "on account of publicity." A voucher for the amount in Mr. Belmont's handwriting and signed with Mr. Belmont's name was produced. The check for $5,000 signed by Mr. Belmont was also produced in evidence, and Mr. Coakley explained that Minton received the cash in the office of August Belmont & Co.

"And that was for publicity?" asked Mr. Kresel.

"Yes," replied Coakley.

Another entry on Feb. 14, 1908, showed a payment of $2,216.50 to C. J. Fitzgerald. It was charged to "legal fees and miscellaneous," and the item read "on account of publicity." There was a voucher signed by Mr. Belmont. The check was signed by Treasurer Peltz and countersigned by Mr. Belmont.

"And that was for publicity?" inquired Mr. Kresel.

"That's what the ledger shows," said Mr. Coakley.

The next payment to Mr. Minton was $1,500, and was made on Feb. 21, 1908. It, too, was charged to "publicity."

Then came the payment of $250 to Amasa Thornton on March 5, 1908. The entry read "on account."

"And that was publicity?" asked Mr. Kresel.

"Yes, it so appears," replied the witness.

More Spent for a Press Bureau.

Another payment was made to Mr. Minton on March 5, 1908. This was $250. Then came a check to W. B. Hunter on May 16 of the same year. Two days later, so the book showed, Hunter received $4,000 on account of "publicity," and on May 26 he received $1,000. All the checks were signed by Mr. Belmont. On May 28 of that year $766.75 was charged to The Jockey Club "for press bureau." The amount of the bureau, explained Mr. Coakley, was [illegible], of which the Westchester Racing Association paid [illegible] per cent.

Q.—Now how much was paid by the Westchester Racing Association in 1908 for publicity? A.—$17,474.[illegible]

Q.—Now for all this money spent for publicity have you any other [illegible]? A.—None but The Jockey Club's, as far as I know.

Q.—Who in the Westchester Racing Association [illegible] gentlemen to [illegible]? A.—I don't know.

Q.—In November, 1908, the Westchester Racing Association [illegible] Treasurer of The Jockey Club $5,714.[illegible] What for? A.—[illegible] to The Jockey Club.

Skimming through the books, Mr. Kresel picked out [illegible] $3,715.[illegible] [illegible] They were [illegible] for "legal expenses," but Mr. Coakley said he could not tell what were the services rendered.

Big Expenses in 1908.

A. McL. Earlocker, the next witness, upon being asked his business, replied "It is hard to tell." He explained that he was the "jack of all trades" in the Saratoga Racing Association. "I assist all the officers, I guess," he said. "Among other things, I keep the books."

Mr. Earlocker said that R. T. Wilson was President of the Saratoga Racing Association and Harry Payne Whitney Vice President. Francis Hitchcock was President in 1908, while the anti-race track measure was pending.

Reading from his books Mr. Earlocker said that the association paid out for "legal expense" in 1907 $2,184.89. In 1908 the entries showed $18,544.14 expended for legal services, and in 1909, the year after the Hart-Agnew bill passed, only $875. Mr. Kresel found in the association's books an entry showing that Andrew Miller, the association's Treasurer, was paid $25,000 in 1908. Mr. Earlocker said this was Mr. Miller's back salary and charges for organization. He said that prior to that Mr. Miller had received no salary as Treasurer, as President Hitchcock had been opposed to it. But upon Mr. Hitchcock's retirement the Directors voted to pay Mr. Miller $25,000 in back salary and put him on a yearly salary of $5,000.

Mr. Kresel made note that the large payment to Mr. Miller immediately followed the payment to Coyne for legal services.

"That is a coincidence merely," said Mr. Earlocker. Mr. Kresel said it was somewhat odd that the minutes showed nothing about Mr. Miller's previous claims to a salary. He asked who Mr. Miller was and was told that he was the publisher of the magazine, Life.

Paid Out by the Jockey Club.

Algernon Daingerfield, assistant secretary of The Jockey Club, offered a statement showing that $31,492 had been collected from the various racing associations in 1908 for "legal expenses," and deposited with the Windsor Trust Company. Check stubs produced by Mr. Daingerfield showed these payments from the fund: E. P. Coyne, $1,500; Davies, Stone & Auerbach, $7,496; Jockey Club, $10,000; R. C. Cummings, $3,973; Westchester Racing Association, $2,096; A. D. Cross, $499; Jockey Club, $2,500; Davies, Stone & Auerbach, $1,874; C. S. Fitzgerald, $402; R. C. Cummings, $568, and Algernon Daingerfield, $43.

The R. C. Cummings, whose name has been so often mentioned since the books of the racing association have been examined, said that he was a lawyer at 60 Wall Street, and that he did some legal services for The Jockey Club in 1906 and 1908. He was retained, he said, by Mr. Auerbach of Davies, Stone & Auerbach. In 1906 his services were in connection with the Cassidy-Lansing bill. In that year he was paid $7,000. His bill rendered that year was reproduced. Mr. Kresel hit upon one item of $1,000 for E. Shaughnessy.

"What's his business?" asked Mr. Kresel.

"He is a leader of the politically unemployed," said Mr. Cummings. Shaughnessy assisted him in several ways. One was giving advice about political matters, especially race track legislation. Shaughnessy went to Albany several times.

Then came an item in Mr. Cummings's bill showing a payment of $1,500 to Charles H. Betts, publisher of The Lyons Republican. "I engaged him to act as publicity agent in 1906," said Cummings. "He was engaged in opposition to the Cassidy-Lansing bill." Mr. Cummings said that his specialty in the legal profession was legislative matters. In 1908, he was again retained by Mr. Auerbach, he said, in connection with the Hart-Agnew bill. Shaughnessy was also employed by him that year.

In November, 1908, Cummings received $3,900 and in June, 1909, $568, both payments in Jockey Club checks. He explained that the payments were for services rendered in 1908.

"But I wish to make this statement," said Mr. Cummings. "My services were absolutely legal in connection with the bills. I never served as a lobbyist or a legislative agent, and never influenced a legislator." The race track inquiry will continue this morning.

Treasurer Evans of the Metropolitan Turf Association, will be one of the first witnesses called. The Legislative Committee wants to learn from him more about the "legal" and other expenses paid by the bookmakers in 1908.

SERVICE BOARD MAY SUE INTERBOROUGH

Refers to Its Counsel Evidence That Orders for Service Have Been Ignored.

25 VIOLATIONS IN ONE SUNDAY

Only 3-Car Locals Used When Traffic Was Heavy—What Is the Use of Orders? Eustis Asks.

Public Service Commissioner Eustis, after a report had been received at a hearing yesterday showing a violation of the commission's subway service orders by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company in every one of twenty-five observation periods on Sunday, Nov. 27, at the Ninety-sixth Street station, ordered the matter referred to counsel for a decision as to whether the Interborough should not be prosecuted for its failure to comply with the commission's orders. The hearing was one of the series now being held to determine, among other things, whether the requirement now in force, that the Interborough shall provide in the Subway sufficient seats for the passengers traveling in each half-hour period throughout the day, or the maximum of service possible with its equipment, should not be modified so as to shorten the period to every fifteen minutes.

The witness was E. G. Connette, the Transportation Engineer of the commission, who has had a careful study made of traffic conditions at different points considered typical. Mr. Connette also gave evidence yesterday in another branch of the same inquiry, directed at determining whether all the local trains in the Broadway branch of the Subway above Ninety-sixth Street during rush hours should not be run thorough to Dyckman Street instead of stopping at 137th Street, and whether the Dyckman Street and Van Cortlandt Park expresses should not run local altogether above the Ninety-sixth Street crossover. Mr. Connette reported in the affirmative on both proposals, and gave figures showing a tremendous traffic increase on the Broadway branch in the last eight months.

The tabulations relating to the violations of the commission's order, according to the observations at Ninety-sixth Street, created the sensation of the hearing. Sunday was the day selected for these observations, for the reason that the traffic is more evenly distributed than on other days, there being no hour of morning and afternoon rush. The Ninety-sixth Street station was selected because it marks the converging point of the streams of traffic, respectively, from Washington Heights on the one side, and from the Bronx and Harlem on the other. To comply with the orders of the commission, the Interborough would have to provide sufficient seats for all the passengers riding in each half-hour period on the day of observation, or else operate its full rush-hour complement of equipment.

What the Figures Show.

Here are the figures in detail:

Observations at Ninety-sixth Street, north and south bound traffic, on the afternoon and evening of Sunday, Nov. 27, 1910:

NORTHBOUND.

Period.	No. Trains.	Excess Passengers Over Seats.
1:00- 1:30	10	340
2:00- 2:30	12	80
2:30- 3:00	12	1,380
3:00- 3:30	13	970
3:30- 4:00	12	750
4:00- 4:30	11	530
5:00- 5:30	11	80
5:30- 6:00	13	970
6:00- 6:30	11	00
8:00- 8:30	6	180
9:30-10:00	9	1,040
10:00-10:30	8	1,490
10:30-11:00	12	380
11:00-11:30	9	1,100
11:30-12:00	8	600

SOUTHBOUND.

Period.	No. Trains.	Excess Passengers Over Seats.
2:30- 3:00	12	810
3:00- 3:30	11	670
4:30- 5:00	11	60
5:00- 5:30	11	1,140
5:30- 6:00	13	980
7:30- 8:00	9	370
9:00- 9:30	8	20
10:00-10:30	10	120
10:30-11:00	10	60
11:30-12:00	9	810

As soon as Mr. Connette had read off these figures, Commissioner Eustis asked:

"Then does your report show that on Sunday afternoon and evening, when the traffic was quite large, the Interborough cut down its service to the minimum?"

"They certainly reduced it," replied Mr. Connette.

"Well," said Commissioner Eustis, "I'm going to recommend that this violation of our old order go to counsel to be considered in relation to prosecuting this company. It's no use for us to issue orders, if this company is not going to obey them. You go ahead [this was addressed to General Manager Hedley and Attorney Quackenbush of the Interborough, who were present]—you go ahead on Sunday when people want to ride and cut down your service, so that there is a violation of our order in every one of twenty-five periods of observation during the day."

Mr. Quackenbush said that his company had not received a copy of the report, and asked that one be given to the Interborough for examination, which was promised.

"It is our intention to comply with the commission's orders," said Mr. Quackenbush. Commissioner Eustis, however, reaffirmed his declaration that the report of the violations on Sunday, Nov. 27, would go to counsel.

Then Colin S. Woodward, representing an uptown property owners' association, asked Mr. Connette:

"Have you any records showing the overcrowding at Seventy-second Street and Ninety-sixth Street due to the fact that the Interborough at theatre hours run three-car locals past those stations to take [illegible] headed for the theatre[illegible] theatre[illegible]"

Mr. Connette said that he had no particular figures on that point, and Mr. Woodward said he had. Commissioner Eustis asked once more:

"Do you mean to say that they are running three-car locals on that service at that hour?"

"That's right. That's right," came from the Subway users in all parts of the room.

Mr. Connette said that the establishment of the fifteen-minute interval as the measure for the comparison between the number of seats and the number of passengers would help this situation greatly, for it would provide means of enforcing the accommodation of passengers who might be going to or coming from the theatre in any particular fifteen-minute period, as against allowing the company to distribute the passengers over a half-hour period with respect to the requirement for seats at the present time.

Mr. Connette was put on the stand earlier in the hearing to give figures compiled by the commission bearing upon the statement by General Manager Hedley when testifying at the last hearing, that the traffic above Ninety-sixth Street as indicated by station sales of tickets during the months of June, July, and August, 1910, had increased only one-tenth of 1 per cent. over that for the same three months of 1909. Mr. Connette declared that the commission's reports showed that during the rush hours in the morning the trains on the Broadway branch running downtown became overcrowded at 157th Street, and that during the evening rush the overcrowding did not disappear until the trains had passed the 157th Street station. He therefore offered figures showing that the traffic at 157th Street, between last March and November, increased 45 per cent. southbound, and 23 per cent. northbound.

The transportation engineer of the commission then made his recommendations that all locals above Ninety-sixth Street be run through to Dyckman Street during rush hours and that all rush hour expresses above Ninety-sixth Street be run on the local tracks, instead of running the Van Cortlandt Park expresses on the third track from Ninety-sixth Street and 137th Street as at present. Mr. Connette based this recommendation upon his judgment that the separation of the two lines of expresses at Ninety-sixth Street complicates the traffic congestion at that station, badly arranged as it is at present, and operates as a discrimination against persons taking the Subway from 103d, 110th, 116th, and Manhattan Streets by depriving them of 50 per cent. of their rush hour through express service.

Harlem Passengers Complain.

After the testimony had been concluded on the general question of service and on the troubles of the Washington Heights people, Charles A. Blandy, representing the Harlem Board of Commerce, addressed the Commissioner with the plaint of his fellow-sufferers along the Lenox branch, between Ninety-sixth Street and the Harlem River.

"We find ourselves in a pocket between Brooklyn and the Bronx," he said. "We have been in it for years, and thus far our complaints are in vain. Every express train starts from Bronx Park, and we have never yet enjoyed in the rush hours the pleasure of a seat, but have frequently enjoyed the pleasure of being shut out of a car because no more people could be jammed in.

"We sought before the present Subway was built to avoid this difficulty, which we then foresaw, by pointing out to the then Rapid Transit Board that two tracks from Ninety-sixth Street to the river would not accommodate Bronx and Harlem both. But we were told that we were too late. Then, to tease us, President Orr of that board said that there was a way out whereby we might get some kind of service in Harlem, and that was for us to get busy and get a yard at 145th Street, so that they could start expresses from that yard once in a while for the Harlem traffic.

"We thought that with a suggestion from so high a source we would be all right, so we got busy and interested Barclay Parsons and Mr. Rives, who was then Corporation Counsel, and we prevailed on the Board of Aldermen and a yard was established at 145th Street. But we have been buncoed out of that yard—I might use a more elegant word, but that is exactly what we feel. I have yet to hear of a single express train ever starting from 145th Street. I have no detailed figures, but I don't think I need them as long as no express trains have ever been run from that point for our accommodation."

Mr. Blandy said that what he would like to have the commission do was to order the operation of an occasional express from 145th Street downtown during rush hours for the Harlem people, and an occassional express uptown at night from South Ferry, so that folks getting on at Bowling Green, Wall, and Fulton Streets should not find all the seats taken by people coming over from Brooklyn. Commissioner Eustis promised to take the matter under advisement.

GRANTS ELEVATED EXTENSIONS

Interborough Can Now Build Queensboro Bridge and Bronx Lines.

The Public Service Commission issued yesterday to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company certificates for the extension of its elevated lines in the Bronx and across Queensboro Bridge and for the third tracking of the Second, Third, and Ninth Avenue Elevated lines in Manhattan. The routes followed by these extensions and the general terms of the agreement with the city became public some time ago after the Public Service Commission and the Interborough had concluded their negotiations on this matter, but there were in the actual certificates as made public yesterday many features of importance not brought out in the earlier publications.

So far as concerns the extensions of the elevated lines it is provided that the city shall receive a sum equal to 2 per cent. of the gross receipts "from whatever source derived," and at all stations on the extensions, this to be determined by a count of the tickets taken, or by such other method as may be adopted. The original rate of compensation is to last for twenty-five years, after which there will be a readjustment at the end of each twenty years of the eighty-five year franchise, but at no subsequent time of readjustment shall the city's compensation be less than the 2 per cent. of the gross receipts on the extensions.

The Interborough is bound by the certificates to operate the extensions in connection with its present elevated lines for a five-cent fare, and the type of construction that is laid down is that which has been followed on the Van Cortlandt Park extension of the Subway—the city, however, having the right reserved to require construction with solid floors and other devices to make noiseless operation over 15 per cent. of the route. This will make it possible to have noiseless construction over parks, roadways, and other public places.

The city also reserves the right in the case of the Queensboro Bridge extension and the extension out Jerome Avenue in the Bronx, which was originally laid out as a part of the Triborough subway route, to permit lessees or operators of any rapid transit railroad to use these tracks on terms to be agreed upon between the company and the city, or such lessee or operator. Arbitration is provided for as a recourse in case the parties fail to agree in this negotiation. The city has the right to take over the Bronx extensions by paying their value at any time after ten years, and the Queensboro Bridge extension at any time after five years on the same terms. At the expiration of the lease the extensions are, like the subways, laid out and built to revert to the city without payment.

The third-tracking agreement is on a somewhat different basis, for the reason, first, that third tracks can hardly be separated from the actual structure to which they may be added, unless they are broken up for scrap, and, second, that the Manhattan Elevated has a 999-year franchise. They are to be built on the Second, Third, and Ninth Avenue Elevated lines, in part as a double-deck structure and in part on the present level, and extensive additions are contemplated between Chatham Square and City Hall to enable the Second Avenue Elevated line to operate its express trains into the City Hall station as well as the Third Avenue.

The Interborough gets also under the agreement a two-track connection between the present Third Avenue elevated structure at 143d Street and the West Farms division of its existing Subway, the franchise of this connection expiring Oct. 26, 1954. The franchises are perpetual like that of the Manhattan Elevated, but it is provided that if at any time the Manhattan lease be terminated and the city acquire that property no additional payment shall be made for the third tracks.

A method is provided in the certificate for computing the increase in gross revenue due to the third-tracking and the city is to receive 2 per cent. of this amount, subject to readjustment at the end of twenty-five years and at the end of each 20-year period thereafter. The Interborough has three months to get the consent of the Board of Estimate to the third tracking, and the elevated extensions [illegible] date to get the [illegible] property owners, or [illegible] the Appellate Division, and two years thereafter to complete all the construction.

East Side for McAdoo Subway Plan.

At the meeting yesterday of the East Side Property Owners and Business Men's Association at Lorber's restaurant in Grand Street, resolutions were adopted indorsing the proposal of William G. McAdoo, submitted to the Public Service Commission, for the contract to build the new subways. Copies of the resolutions were sent to the Mayor, the Public Service Commission, and the Board of Estimate.

MOTHER AND BABY SAVED BY A BOY

Twenty-Year-Old William Brusle Makes a Thrilling Rescue in Harlem Fire.

ACROSS AIRSHAFT ON PLANKS

Risks Life to Save Fainting Woman and Her Child—Runs from Plaudits of Crowd.

Flames shooting from the basement of a five-story tenement at 113 East 118th Street last night drew a group of boys and young men from their play in the snow to the task of waking and rescuing the fifteen families sleeping in the house. As the youths, led by William Brusle, 20 years old, of 21 East 118th Street, rushed into the lower hall, they were met by dense rolls of smoke, through which flames which had started in a pile of rubbish in the cellar and swept up the airshaft and stairway, were already visible. The boys rushed upstairs, knocking on every door, and crying to those within to same themselves without waiting to dress. As well as they could the boys guided the terrified tenants, many of them old people and children, to the rear fire escapes and up to the roof, the flames gaining rapidly upon them.

Most of the tenants had piled out by way of the rear escape and the roof, making their way from there to adjoining houses, when Brusle learned that Mrs. Mary Cramston and her 13-month-old baby, Vincent, were asleep in their flat on the fourth floor. The baby, one of the women called to him before she disappeared down the fire escape, was ill of bronchitis, and Mrs. Cramston had been unable to sleep before last night.

Brusle looked down the smoke-filled passage from the roof. The flames were already up to the third floor. Nevertheless he jumped down, and rushed to the door of the Cramston flat.

It was closed, but he burst into the room. Mrs. Cramston and the baby were both fast asleep, although the roaring of the flames could be heard distinctly and the smoke was stifling. Brusle woke them and told Mrs. Cramston to follow him to the fifth floor and the roof while he carried the baby. As they reached the door, however, the woman, at the sight of the flames already licking their way up the stairway to the fourth floor, fainted.

Brusle cried for help, but all the other tenants and rescuers had left the building. The flames were almost at his feet. Then Brusle, who is a well-built youth, still holding the baby in one arm, lifted the unconscious woman in the other and staggered up the stairs to the fifth floor. He reached the fifth floor and stumbled toward the narrow stairs leading to the roof. By this time the flames had reached him, and Mrs. Cramston's hair was ablaze. The baby's, too, was singed. Through the dense, hot smoke he pulled his heavy burden up the stairway and fell out upon the snow-covered roof with them, just as the flames shot up the scuttle opening.

The mother was still unconscious and the baby crying. Brusle again shouted for help, but there was none near to hear him. Now he could see the flames shooting over the front edge of the roof, as well as through the scuttle. Escape down the rear fire escape with the unconscious woman was impossible.

In his dilemma, Brusle packed snow upon the bodies of both mother and child and then, rushing over to where the roof had been patched with weatherboards, tore up some of the planks, and placing them together to form a bridge about a foot wide, laid this across to the roof of 105 East 118th Street, the nearest separate building, eight feet away.

Several men on nearby roofs saw him about this time. They saw him run back to where Mrs. Cramston lay unconscious, and, tugging at her limp arms, drag her across the roof to the narrow bridge he had built. They shouted to him to stop; that they would come to him. But the flames were now stealing around the edge of the roof, and he could not wait. While the lookers-on held their breath in frightened amazement he dragged the unconscious woman across the perilous foot plank and let her drop into the snow of the adjoining roof. Then, more lightly, he ran back across the plank, picked up the baby, and carried it to safety.

Both were then taken in charge by others and carried down stairs, where Mrs. Josephine Smith, the janitress of the building, cared for them until an ambulance surgeon from the Harlem Hospital arrived. He found Mrs. Cramston badly burned about the head, face, and hands, but said she would recover. The baby was burned slightly on the scalp, and had suffered from exposure.

When Brusle reached the street the news of his heroic rescue had already preceded him, and a crowd of several thousand cheered him again and again. He ran away as fast as he could, and had not returned to his home to receive the congratulations of his friends at midnight.

There were several other rescues also, if in lesser measure thrilling. Half a dozen old people were helped down the arduous descent on the rear fire escape by the young rescuers, and one or two others were carried bodily out of the building. George McKenzie of 123d Street and Park Avenue found ten-year-old James McKenzie overcome by smoke on the second floor, and carried him safely to the roof and thence down through the house adjoining at 115 East 118th Street.

Mrs. Sam Seidner, who lives on the fifth floor, became hysterical when she saw the flame-filled hall beneath her, and tried to jump to the fourth floor. She fell on the steps, badly injuring her left knee, but was caught by Harold Geigerman of 122 East 123d Street and carried to the roof and down the rear fire escape.

All the rescues were carried out before the firemen reached the building. By that time all entrance into the halls was cut off, and the blaze could be fought only from the street. The fire had spread so quickly that the second, third, fourth, and fifth floors were burned out before the fire was under control.

The cause of the fire could not be discovered. The damage was about $5,000.

School Drum and Fife Corps Welcomes The Times's Representatives.

Gen. J. H. Brensinger, Principal of Public School No. 17, in Duncan Avenue, Jersey City Heights, is also Principal of the City's Teacher's Training School, and the Duncan Avenue school building is the Training School's headquarters. Some of the Training School pupils had entered into the competition for THE NEW YORK TIMES's medals for the best essays on the history of Bergen Village, and, all unknown to the representatives of THE TIMES, they sat in the hall of School 17 when the medals were presented to No. 17 School's prize winners last week.

When THE TIMES's representatives came to the presentation of their medals to the Training School winners, they discovered that they would have to go back to No. 17 to find them, and the second visit to that school building was made yesterday afternoon. Gen. Brensinger had his School Drum and Fife Corps out to greet THE TIMES's representatives when they reached there, and school songs preceded and followed Col. Molony's presentation address.

The morning hour had been given up to a visit to Public School No. 14, in Union Street, in the South Bergen section of the city. Principal W. F. Babcock received THE TIMES's emissaries cordially, assembled the school, and arranged an hour of song to mark the presentation of medals. The school children greeted every recipient of medal or certificate with a hand-battery that showed all were quite as much pleased to see honors come to their school, as were the recipients at having won them.

His policy, he declared, was free from ambiguity. The supremacy of the Imperial Parliament must be associated with home rule. The Premier indicated his belief that the changes which had taken place between England and Ireland had removed the fears that home rule would lead to separation.

Yesterday's Results.

The unopposed returns of Unionists announced to-day were as follows:

William Thompson, for the North Division of Down.

E. Royds, for the Sleaford Division of Lincolnshire.

The Right Hon. Austen Chamberlain, for the East Division of Worcestershire.

Arthur H. Lee, for the Farsham Division of Hampshire.

The following Liberals were returned unopposed:

Sir A. Williamson, for Elgin and Nairn.

Sir John A. Dewar, for Inverness-shire.

Sir J. Brigg, for the Keighley Division of Yorkshire, West Riding.

Sir J. Barran, for Hawick.

These Nationalists were returned unopposed:

T. Scanlan, for the North Division of County Sligo.

P. Crumley, for the South Division of County Fermanagh.

John Swift MacNeill, for the South Division of County Donegal.

Laurence Ginnell, for the North Division of Westmeath.

J. P. Farrell, for the North Division of Longford.

J. Esmonde, for the North Division of Tipperary.

The following Independent Nationalists were returned:

John Fitzgibbon, for the South Division of County Mayo.

John McKean, for the South Division of Monaghan.

Among those returned unopposed to-day the most interesting candidates were Arthur Hamilton Lee, who was the British Military Attaché with the United States Army during the Spanish-American war and later Military Attaché at Washington; Austen Chamberlain, son of Joseph Chamberlain, and John Swift MacNeill, who has sat for Donegal, South, since 1887.

ASTOR'S SECOND ATTEMPT.

First Resulted in Defeat—New M. P. Once Said He'd Remain an American.

Waldorf Astor's success as a candidate for Parliament crowns his second venture into the English political field, for in 1908 he was an unsuccessful contestant for a seat in the House of Commons. He is only 31 years old, having been born in this city on May 19, 1879, the son of William Waldorf Astor, who since has become a British subject, and Mary Dahlgren Paul Astor.

Young Astor is the eldest of three children, the others being John Jacob, now in the First Life Guards, and Pauline, the wife of Capt. Spender Clay, a wealthy Englishman. Gwendoline Astor, another daughter, died in England shortly after the removal of the Astor family there in 1890.

For a time the family occupied Lansdowne house, one of the great mansions of London, but later removed to Cliveden on the Thames, one of the estates of the Duke of Westminster, which Mr. Astor afterward bought. Waldorf Astor was educated at Eton, where he won some prominence in athletics, especially as an oarsman.

In his earlier years, even after the completion of his schooling, young Astor retained his love for America, and on the occasion of his father's naturalization as a British subject Waldorf Astor publicly acknowledged his American citizenship and reaffirmed his allegiance to the land of his birth. At about that time he was appointed co-executor of the estate of his grandfather, John Jacob Astor.

Waldorf Astor was frequently reported engaged to different Englishwomen of rank, but up to a short time prior to his marriage in 1906 to Mrs. Langhorne Shaw, there had been no rumor of his attentions to one of the four Langhorne beauties of Albemarle County, Va. Mr. and Mrs. Astor have a son and a daughter, the latter having been born in March, 1909.

PAINTINGS STOLEN FROM WALL ST. SHOP

Pictures by Zeim, Inness, Selnac, and Others, Valued at $75,000, Too Large to be Carried Away.

The Wall Street Branch of the Detective Bureau is working on a burglary, in which four paintings valued at more than $1,000, were stolen from the Ainslie Art Gallery, at 1 Wall Street, some time between 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon and 8 o'clock Monday morning.

The gallery, which is situated in the basement of the building, and through which stream daily thousands of Subway passengers to and from the train platform, which adjoins the gallery on the west, was locked at 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, heavy fireproof iron doors shutting it out from the Subway platform, and from the stairs that lead to the street. At that hour this station of the Subway is abandoned till Monday morning, passengers using the one in Broadway instead.

At 8 o'clock on Monday morning the colored porter, Robert Showel, opened the gallery, and began dusting the paintings. He noticed nothing amiss, but a few minutes later his helper, William Lewis, also colored, who has been employed in the gallery for twelve years, arrived, and in a moment noticed that something was wrong. An investigation showed that four fine paintings, all of them small enough to be conveniently hidden under an overcoat, were gone. They were a landscape by George H. McCord, measuring 10 by 14 inches, valued at $300; two by J. R. Kellogg, measuring 8 inches by 10, and valued at $200 each, and one by W. Merritt Post, 16 by 20 inches, valued at $250. The thief apparently had not been without art sense, although far more valuable paintings had been left untouched, probably because they were too bulky to be removed without attracting attention.

Among those thus left were one painting by Zeim, worth $4,000; one by George Inness, worth $3,500; one by Selnac, valued at $2,500, and a large painting of Columbus's fleet valued at $2,500, besides others, bringing the value of the entire collection up to about $75,000.

George H. Ainslie, the manager of the gallery, upon his arrival notified the Wall Street Branch of the Detective Bureau, and Lieut. Holland and Detective Millmore were assigned to the case. They found that entrance to the place had probably been effected by means of a skeleton key through a door leading from the southeast corner of the gallery to the hall of the office building above. This door had been left open by the thief upon his departure.

Although no clue to the visitor was found in the gallery, the police said yesterday that they had several men under suspicion, and were hopeful of soon recovering the stolen paintings. The paintings had been insured against burglary until a few months ago, when Mr. Ainslie allowed the policy to lapse. He said yesterday that he was inclined to feel almost satisfied when he considered how much heavier his loss might have been.

CHARGES UNIVERSITY BARTER

Dr. Cattell Says Pennsylvania Professorships Are Rated Even at $1,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Charges that large sums of money, ranging from $100,000 to $1,000,000, have been offered and some accepted for the privilege of naming men to fill professorships in the University of Pennsylvania, are made by Dr. Henry W. Cattell, the noted pathologist, in a current number of the Medical Notes and Queries. He calls upon the present provost, Prof. Harrison, to resign, so that his successor, Prof. Edgar Fahs Smith, may not be handicapped.

Dr. Cattell thinks that an advertisement might be put out by the University reading like this:

> FOR SALE—Professorship vacancies in the University of Pennsylvania; prices ranging from $100,000 to $1,000,000.

"Resignations from former positions held, forced or otherwise," he goes on, "have been accepted from J. William White, John Marshall, Allen J. Smith, and Forest Willard. There is now a question whether the Professorship of Surgery will be given to Prof. Edward Martin or to Prof. Charles H. Fraser.

"In Dr. Pepper's day as provost," he goes on to say, "$30,000 is alleged to have been the price for driving Dr. Howard A. Kelly to Baltimore. In recent years $100,000 has been the sum alleged to be the sum tentatively offered for naming the successor to one of the present vacancies.

"If Charles C. Harrison has the real interests of the University of Pennsylvania at heart he will resign from the Board of Trustees and not handicap his successor by his policies, which have shown themselves to be so detrimental to education at the University of Pennsylvania and to civic reform in the City of Philadelphia."

Dr. Cattell, speaking of recent charges in the medical Faculty, says:

"If it is the intention of those in power to make the medical school purely a scientific institution for turning out laboratory workers and ultrascientists, they evidently have failed in the changes already announced. If it is intended by the powers that be to turn out practitioners of medicine fitted to cope with the vexatious problems of this everyday common world they have lamentably failed."

Dr. Edgar Fahs Smith, Provost-elect, declared Dr. Cattell's charged unfounded to-day.

"I know of no case," he said, "where any financial consideration in the way of endowment or otherwise has induced the Trustees to make an appointment to the Faculty. Although I have warm personal regard for Dr. Cattell, I cannot agree with him in respect to the charges of chaotic conditions he makes against the university. I do not think they exist, and I am very sorry that he should have published them, when they must influence the public opinion and the university itself adversely."

THE HOLLOW TREE SNOWED-IN BOOK

A Splendid Book to Give Any Child

By ALBERT BIGELOW PAINE

Author of "THE HOLLOW TREE DEEP-WOODS BOOK"

IN this new book for youngsters of six to twelve years the author and artist have again collaborated in another set of "Hollow Tree" tales. There is a new "Little Lady" and a new "Mr. Dog," but it is the same Hollow Tree and the same Deep Woods, and the stories are told in the familiar room of the Lowest Ceiling and the Wildest Fireplace. The 'Coon and the 'Possum and the Old Black Crow are back again, and with them Mr. Rabbit and Mr. Robin and Mr. Fox—all of the old favorites. *Fully illustrated from Pen-and-Ink Drawings by J. Conde. THE WRIGHTS TIE UP AIR MEET RECEIPTS

Serve a $15,000 Attachment on Belmont Park Management, Alleging Breach of Contract.

$198,000 UNDER INJUNCTION

An Outrage, Declares Chairman Allan A. Ryan, Recalling That the Dayton Aviators Received Over $30,000.

The receipts of the recent International aviation tournament at Belmont Park, approximating $198,000, have been tied up by a suit instituted against the Aero Corporation, which managed the event, by the Wright Company. This company obtained from Supreme Court Justice Seabury yesterday an injunction restraining the Aero Corporation from distributing any of the proceeds of the meet. The money is held by the Equitable Trust Company.

At the same time an attachment for $15,000 was served on the Aero Corporation by Williams & Smith, attorneys for the Wright Company. It is on this attachment that the suit hinges, the Wrights alleging that this amount, in addition to payments of between $30,000 and $40,000 which already have been made to them, is due them for services at the recent meet.

The original contract of the Wright Company with the Aero Corporation called for the payment to the company of 25 per cent. of the gross receipts for not interfering with the meet, and later they agreed to accept $25,000 cash instead of this percentage, and at the same time to furnish five machines and five aviators for the meet. They performed this part of the contract. The Wright Company alleges, however, that there also was an oral agreement by which the company was to receive $15,000 more, providing the receipts warranted it. The supposed expenses of $125,000 were exceeded by $50,000, the Wright Company alleges, a violation of the oral agreement, and as the receipts for the meet exceeded $200,000, the Wright Company demands the additional $15,000.

The claim of the Wright Company was denounced yesterday by officials of the Aero Corporation as outrageous, and as an evidence of the fact that the Wrights are interested solely in the commercial side of flying.

Allan A. Ryan, who was Chairman of the Committee on Arrangements at the Belmont tournament, characterized the claim as "a disgraceful attempt to force the corporation into giving up $15,000 after it had lived up to all its obligations and fulfilled its contract with the Wright Company to the letter.

"While the Aero Corporation is trying to advance the science and art of aviation, the Wrights are imbued only with the spirit of commercialism, and have little or no interest in the real science.

"The Wrights may be assured, how- The Aero Corporation will not repudiate The Aero Corporation will not rejudicate any just debt or obligation, but the officers of the corporation will not submit to any attempt to collect money that is not owed."

FIRE INSURANCE CAN BE LESS

Profit at 12 Cents a $100, Official Testifies—General Electric Pays Only 8.

In striking contrast to the rates fixed for the fire insurance companies by the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, came information yesterday that the General Electric Company is getting its insurance through the factory, or mill, mutual companies as low as 8 cents per $100. This information was given yesterday to the Legislative Graft Investigating Committee in City Hall, by M. F. Westover, Secretary of the General Electric Company. Mr. Westover said his company has been insured in mutual companies for the last sixteen years.

"Sixteen years ago," said Mr. Westover, "we had to pay the stock companies from 50 to 75 cents for each $100 worth of insurance. Our rates are mutual rates. For fifteen years they have been on an average of 8 cents per $100."

On Tuesday the committee was informed by Willis O. Robb, Manager of the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, that the stock companies here, during the last three years, have been collecting at the rate of $25,000,000 premiums in this city and paying back in fire losses anywhere from $10,000,000 to $11,000,000.

Prior to Mr. Westover's testimony yesterday it was shown that the so-called mill mutual companies operating in other States would like to enter New York State, but are afraid to do so owing to the present conditions governing fire insurance business here.

NEW MINERAL DISCOVERED.

Find in Spain May Put an End to the German Sulphate Monopoly.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 7, (by telegraph to Clifden, Ireland; thence by wireless.)—A telegram from Madrid says that a new mineral has been discovered at Vinhadux, near Almeria, and has been named "calafatita," after its finder, Señor Calafat.

This mineral consists of a substance which, after being calcined, produces pure alumina and pure sulphate of soda. As the vein is a large one, it is believed that it contains several million tons.

It is thought that the discovery will bring about a revolution in the sulphate of soda market, which up to the present has been monopolized by the Germans. An American firm has already made an offer to purchase 60,000 tons of the new mineral annually, but so far no decision has been arrived at.

FIRE SURVIVORS WITNESSES.

Tell at the Inquest of Their Escape from the Newark Blaze.

Evidence tending to show that the door on the third-story landing of the ill-fated High Street factory was opened and hooked back at the direction of Anna Haag, the forewoman, was brought out at the Coroner's inquest yesterday in the Essex County Court House, in Newark. Several of the fire survivors told how they made their escape down the stairway and of the forewoman's heroism.

It was Laurin H. Paddock, engineer and Superintendent of the building, who testified that he had gained access to the fourth floor while the door was open. On Tuesday, however, Eugene McQuat, Superintendent of the Anchor Lamp Company on the third floor, where the fire originated, testified that this door was locked when he went to give the alarm to the girls in the Wolf Undergarment Company on the fourth floor. He declared that the door was opened by Miss Haag in response to his pounding on it. The presumption is that Paddock got to the fourth floor after Miss Haag opened the door and before it was closed again.

Arrangements have been made for exhuming the body of Mrs. Mary La Pierre, a victim of the fire, who was buried in the Arlington Cemetery, by George La Pierre of Ottawa, Canada, who believes that the woman was his wife.

JACK ABERNATHY RESIGNS.

Called to Washington on Charges, He Tires of Waiting to See Wickersham.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Jack Abernathy, United States Marshal for Oklahoma, an appointee and hunting companion of former President Roosevelt, came here to-day and handed his resignation to Attorney General Wickersham's secretary.

Abernathy came East on a leave of absence to answer charges, but owing to a great crush of Congressional collers, the Marshal was kept waiting all morning. After demanding several times to see the Attorney General, Abernathy wrote his resignation, presented it to Frank Cole, Mr. Wickersham's private secretary, and stalked out. Later the Marshal announced he was going to New York to see Col. Roosevelt.

"I've got business there, you understand," he said, "but of course I'll see the Colonel. I didn't wait to see the charges against me, but I've got an idea of what they are, and if such charges make me incompetent I don't want the job.

"I've hewed to the line and done my duty and of course I've made enemies. I never said the Colonel wouldn't let them fire me. I'd die before I'd ask him to use his influence. He's done a plenty for me already. He's the boy, too, all over the West, Democratic victory or no Democratic victory. A man can't save a cent in that job, anyway. It's a case of give to everybody."

$350,000,000 Claim Invalid.

Supreme Court Justice Whitney decided yesterday that the Long Acre Electric Light and Power Company is sole owner of its electric lighting franchise, and that a $350,000,000 mortgage placed on record against the franchise should be adjudged invalid. The decision came in a suit brought by the company against John D. Moore and the Anti-Monopoly Company to have the mortgage removed from the record.

None of the defendants, Justice Whitney decides, has any right, title, or interest to the franchise, which was originally held by M. F. Minturn. It was testified in the trial that Moore's father obtained a half interest in it for $50.

CLAIM SPEED RECORD IN MEMPHIS FLIGHT

Barrier Credited with 16 Miles in 10:55 1-5, but Distance Has Not Been Verified.

HAMILTON HAS BAD FALL

Moisant, Defeated by Barrier, Is First to Cross the Mississippi—Says He Will Try to Fly to Cuba.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 7.—Rene Barrier, a Frenchman, flew a distance estimated at more than sixteen miles in 10 minutes 55 1-5 seconds to-day, winning a prize of $5,000 offered by the Memphis Commercial-Appeal. He outwinged John B. Moisant, whose time was 18 minutes 16 3-5 seconds over a longer distance. Both used Blériot monoplanes. Should Barrier's time be accepted it is a new world's record, his average time being 87.93 miles an hour. The record over a closed course was established by Leon Morane at Rheims last August. In this flight a speed of 65 miles an hour was attained.

The course lay from the aviation field at the old Montgomery Park race course to a point several miles north of Memphis known as Hen and Chicken Island, thence along the Mississippi River to President's Island, four miles to the south and back to the starting point.

Barrier ascended at 2:02:35 P. M. Describing uniform spirals he rose to a height of 3,500 feet. Then he darted westward over the housetops of the suburbs, and in three minutes was looking down on the roofs in the downtown district. At the first turning point he switched sharply to the south, following the course of the river to the second turn. He then headed eastward, landing at 2:12:30 1-5 P. M. He held to the prescribed course almost to a dot, and had an advantage over Moisant, who in his turns described wide semi-circles at a height of 7,200 feet. Moisant's time was 18 minutes 16 2-5 seconds, part of which was lost in aerial gyrations for the benefit of those who crowded housetops and other points of vantage.

Although he lost the race Moisant gained laurels by being the first to cross the Mississippi River in an aeroplane. Then he announced that in view of the cold weather in many parts of the country he would seek more balmy climates, and if inducements now practically promised were made good that he would attempt an airline flight from New Orleans to Cuba during the Winter.

A tentative offer from southern enthusiasts of $50,000 has been made for such a trip and Moisant has accepted. New Orleans business men, it is said, will guarantee the amount in conjunction with Havana merchants.

While the cross-city flight was the feature it did not furnish all the thrills to the afternoon's programme. Charles K. Hamilton, in his biplane missed death by a hair's breadth and in his effort performed a spectacular feat of airmanship. In an exhibition flight he had reached a height of 200 feet when his motor went dead. He started to glide, striking the earth with a thump. His machine was wrecked but he was not hurt beyond minor cuts and bruises about his face an dbody.

ENGINEERS ELECT OFFICERS.

E. D. Meir Chosen President at the Annual Meeting Here.

At the second day's session of the annual meeting of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers at the Engineers' Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, yesterday, the result of the election of officers held last Tuesday was announced. E. D. Meir, head of the Heine Safety Boiler Company, 11 Broadway, was elected President. The Vice Presidents elected were H. H. Vaughn, Montreal, Canada; E. M. Herr, Pittsburg; George M. Brill, Chicago. Here are the new managers: D. F. Crawford, E. B. Katte, and Stanley G. Flagg, Jr. Calvin W. Rice was elected Secretary and William H. Wiley Treasurer.

DISLIKE THOMPSON UNIFORMS

Test Case by One City Employe of the Commissioner's Order.

Whether Henry S. Thompson, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, has the right to direct his inspectors to wear uniforms to be paid for out of their own pockets was the question made the subject of a test suit brought into the Supreme Court yesterday. Herbert J. Smith, attached to the electrical inspection division, asked Supreme Court Justice Amend for a temporary injunction restraining the enforcement of the order.

The Commissioner made his order after several complaints had reached him to the effect that householders had been bothered by the intrusion of men asserting falsely that they were inspectors. A uniform would serve to identify the genuine city employes, but Smith objects that a uniform would embarrass that part of his work which is detective in character, and embarrass him in public places.

Proprietors of hotels and restaurants, he says, object to uniformed guests, which would work a hardship to those whose duties keep them late in the business section. It is also contended that the Commissioner is without the legal power to make a uniformed force out of an ununiformed force. The court reserved decision.

OUT FOR GRUBER'S SCALP.

Progressives Start an Uprising Against His Little Dictatorship.

There is what the "progressive" Republicans term "an uprising," but what Abraham Gruber calls "a ripple on the surface" in the making in the Senatorial district where lives the little Colonel, who for so many years has been the Republican leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District. The movement, which began in the Nineteenth Assembly District and has ramifications throughout the Seventeenth and Fifteenth, was launched last night when the Progressive Republican Club elected its officers at a meeting held at its clubrooms, Broadway and 106th Street.

The club has fifty charter members. The officers selected last night were Albert C. Phillips, a newspaper man, for President; Phillip R. Dillon for First Vice President, and Miles M. Dawson, an insurance actuary, for Second Vice President. Gilbert E. Roe, a lawyer who resides in the Nineteenth Assembly District, is slated for Chairman of the Executive Committee.

The proclaimed purpose of the club is to advocate progressive policies to oppose dictatorial leadership and corrupt practices in politics.

WITNESS CROSSED HIS LEGS.

Theatrical Manager Brady Thereupon Learned About Court Etiquette.

William A. Brady, the theatrical manager, was a witness yesterday in his suit for $15,000 against the New York Taxicab Company, and, though glad enough to testify, he needed a little training in the etiquette which prevails before Supreme Court Justice Goff.

On the witness stand Mr. Brady went so far as to cross his legs. One of the court officers, looking grieved, hustled forward and did a little whispering, which resulted in the Brady legs being uncrossed. Still, Mr. Brady was not quite erect in the chair, but after Justice Goff had said something to him, and he had blushed a bit, he straightened up and was impeccable throughout his examination.

Mr. Brady complained that he was struck and seriously injured by a taxicab on the night of Oct. 19, 1908. It was at Forty-sixth Street and Eighth Avenue, he testified, that he had stopped to hear an open air Socialist orator, and was making for a car from the curb when a taxicab sprang out of the darkness. It struck him, and he was dragged for some distance, dislocating his left shoulder and keeping him in the hospital for ten days. As for the time he lost, he could not estimate its value, for no employe could take his place.

The defendant company sets up contributory negligence against Mr. Brady's complaint.

Ten Years for Stealing 21 Cents.

Joseph Klein of 461 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, was sentenced to serve ten years in prison and adjudged an habitual criminal by Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday after he had pleaded guilty to stealing a pocketbook containing 21 cents from Mrs. Fanny Leibowitz. Klein stole the pocketbook at the downtown entrance to the elevated station at Sixth Avenue and Fourteenth Street on Nov. 15. Klein has served two terms in prison for similar crimes.

ONLY FOR COLUMBIA MEN.

The Baccalaureate Degree Not to be Given to Students in Other Colleges.

Columbia University will not grant its baccalaureate degree to students of other colleges after the completion of a certain amount of work in one of the Columbia professional schools. With the determination of this question by resolution of the Trustees at their November meeting, a matter which has divided the camps of Columbia alumni and Trustees for some months has been settled.

The Trustees adopted a resolution last could be entered into with other universities it might be advisable to confer the baccalaureate degree of Columbia upon students who, having completed two years' work in the college from which they came, had pursued two years' further work in one of the Columbia professional schools. There was immediate opposition by the alumni to the adoption of any such course. The alumni position was that the Columbia degree would be cheapened by its being conferred upon men of alien colleges.

At the last meeting of the alumni it was the unanimous vote of the association that it would be unwise for Columbia to adopt the plan, and yesterday it became known that the Trustees had repealed the April resolution.

AUTHORESS DIES IN FIRE.

Mrs. L. H. Jenkins's Escape Cut Off by Flames—Daughter Just Escapes.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Dec. 7.—Mrs. L. H. Jenkins, a writer, 72 years of age, was burned to death, and her daughter Eva, aged 40, narrowly escaped to-day when fire partially destroyed the boarding house of Caleb S. Thompson at 106 Montgomery Street.

The boarders were preparing for breakfast when flames from an overheated furnace burst out in the lower stair case, cutting off escape from the upper floors. Those on the second floor escaped to the roof of a piazza and were rescued by firemen. Mrs. and Miss Jenkins were caught on the third floor and were not taken out until the fire was under control. The elder woman was dead, but her daughter, who was taken to the Vassar Hospital, is expected to recover. The loss on the house was about $5,000.

12+4—2=14

The science of numbers is immutable.

Two and two will make four as long as the world lasts.

And 8% on a $400,000 building is eternally $32,000.

But figures are so terribly infallible that, if extravagance, poor quality, and delay creep into your building operation, they will increase the cost and deplete the income.

On the other hand, if you ensure a maximum of Economy, Quality and Speed, the income will take care of itself.

Why not see us about it?

GIRL HAD MET GLOVER JUST BEFORE KILLING

Hattie Le Blanc's Statement, Through Interpreter, Declared He Attacked Her in Laundry.

ESCAPE THROUGH A WINDOW

In the Struggle, She Says, Glover Held a Revolver and She Heard a Shot After Fleeing from Him.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 7.—Hattie Le Blanc, at to-day's session of her trial for the murder of Clarence F. Glover, was shown, by her own statement, made immediately after her arrest three days after the shooting, to have been in the laundry with Glover on the fatal night. She saw, according to her statement, the revolver in Glover's hand, struggled with him, heard a noise in the laundry like the rustle of a woman's skirt, which also attracted Glover's attention, then escaped from him, and afterward heard a shot fired. She declared in those statements, which she gave to the police in French, and which were interpreted by Miss Zella Gallant, that she never shot Glover, and that she did not know how to use a revolver. She did not know that he had been shot or that he was dead until after her arrest. She claimed that she ran back to the Glover house after escaping from the laundry and remained three days without food, hiding under the bed, where she was finally found.

All this evidence was placed before the jury through Miss Gallant by a tedious method, which involved the mixing up of French and English in the questions and answers.

Mayor Walker of Waltham described Hattie's appearance at the hearing, saying that she looked "just like a little bird that had flown in through a window and against a wall."

District Attorney Higgins read to the court Hattie's statement at the police station examination, according to which Hattie was first warned of her rights, and when asked if she wanted to talk, replied in the affirmative. She said that she was 16 years old, and that she had left her home in West Arichat, C. B., when she was fifteen. She had gone directly to Mrs. Glover's home in Waltham, where she had lived ever since.

Describing her movements on Nov. 20, 1909, the day of the murder of Glover, she said that she stayed about the house in the morning and in the afternoon accompanied the Glovers to a football game at the Harvard Stadium. They returned from the game about 5 P. M. and went for a short automobile ride. Supper followed. It was about 7:15 when she left the house, Glover having departed at 6:40. She went to the laundry. That morning, when Mrs. Glover was upstairs in the house, Glover had asked her to meet him in the laundry that night.

When she met Glover at the laundry, she said, he made advances which she rejected. He then caught her and dragged her upstairs in the laundry, where he attacked her. Afterward she began to cry and Glover grasped her by the throat and choked her to make her stop crying. Glover had a revolver in his hand at the time, but she never touched the weapon. He threatened to kill her if she told what had occurred.

Breaking away from Glover, she ran down the stairs, and as she reached the foot of the stairs she heard a shot. She heard only one shot, she maintained, and thought that he had shot himself.

She found the door locked at the foot of the stairs, and she went out through a window, going directly to the Glover home, where she hid under the bed in the guest room. She remained there until she was discovered on the night of the following Tuesday. During the time she was under the bed she had nothing to eat or drink, she said; nor did she see Mrs. Glover, Mr. Elmore, or Mr. and Mrs. Freeman. In the statements made to the police, Hattie said that she had never seen the revolver before the night that Glover was killed. He had never before pointed a revolver at her. She did not try to get the weapon away from Glover. She did not see any one else in the laundry. If any one else had been there she probably would not have seen the person because of the darkness.

Hattie told the police, her statement continues, that she did not know a funeral was being held in the house on the Tuesday following the shooting, and did not know that Mr. Glover was dead.

In the struggle with Glover, she said she felt her comb slip from her hair and a pin give way. She said that both the comb and pin found in the laundry were hers. She denied that the handkerchief, also found in the laundry, belonged to her.

The defense scored its second important victory of the case early in to-day's hearing, when Judge Bond ruled that he would exclude from the statements made by the defendant at the Waltham Police Station on the night of her arrest any and all portions of the questions and answers which made any reference to the alleged dying declaration of Glover that Hattie had shot him.

The strain of the trial became too much to-day for Mr. Johnson, the girl's lawyer, and the court adjourned for two hours while Mr. Johnson received medical treatment.

At the afternoon session, the prosecutor introduced Glover's overcoat, which has two holes in it, and Inspector McKenna of the Waltham police, testified that he saw no marks as if made by powder on Hattie's hand when she was dragged from her hiding place. This allegation, made by Samuel D. Elmore, the lawyer who represents Mrs. Glover, on the witness stand on Monday, was again made a matter of question when the District Attorney said that both sides had agreed that there were no signs of powder grains on a part of her hand, that had been minutely examined by experts.

The Government then rested having occupied eight days in submitting its case, and the court adjourned.

The defense will open to-morrow morning, when two residents of Cape Breton, including Hattie Le Blanc's priest, will testify.

MAYOR COMMENDS POLICE.

Writes to Cropsey About the Good Work They Did in Recent Strikes.

Mayor Gaynor sent a letter to Police Commissioner Cropsey yesterday, commending him for the manner in which the police handled the recent express and taxicab strikes. It reads:

> Office of the Mayor.
> Dec. 7, 1910.
>
> Sir: Permit the Mayor to express his thanks to you and the force under you for the skill, good judgment, and discretion displayed by you and them in the preservation of order in the recent express company and cab company strikes. It all shows that the confidence in the police force which I have heretofore expressed is not misplaced. I beg also to inform you that the information I had from your department that there was little or no violence by the express company employes on strike, notwithstanding loose and mischievous statements to the contrary from day to day has been verified by the companies themselves, only one being excluded from re-employment under the clause which I caused to be put in the settlement agreement that no employe who had committed any violence should be taken back. Please furnish me also with the names of any of the cabmen who committed violence so that I may report their names to the companies under a similar clause in their agreement. Very truly yours,
>
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
>
> James C. Cropsey, Esq., Police Commissioner.

The Mayor said yesterday that he is considering the adoption of a plan suggested to him for the appointment of fifty or a hundred civilian taxicab inspectors to co-operate with the regular city inspectors. These would be men who are in the habit of riding in taxicabs, as it is thought they might see personally more violations of the taxicab ordinance than the official inspectors.

WOMAN'S WELFARE LECTURES

First of Series to be Delivered at Waldorf This Afternoon.

The first of the series of lectures on "The Growing South," given under the auspices of the Woman's Welfare Department of the National Civic Federation, will be delivered in the Sun Parlor of the Waldorf-Astoria this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. The lecture will be delivered by G. Grosvenor Dawe, managing director of the Southern Commercial Congress, and will be followed by a talk by Claude N. Bennett, manager of the Congressional Information Bureau of Washington, which will be illustrated by moving pictures showing the work being done on the Panama Canal.

The lecture is given at so late an hour for the purpose of showing the moving pictures without having to darken the room. In addition to course tickets the committee has decided to sell single tickets, which may be bought at the door.

Among the members of the Woman's Welfare Department are Mrs. Francis McNeil Bacon, Jr., Chairman; Mrs. George Blumenthal, Treasurer; Mrs. William Rand, Jr., Vice Chairman; Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, Mrs. V. Everit Macy, Miss Maud Reeves Borland, Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, Miss Anne Morgan and Miss Elizabeth Marbury.

DETECTIVE IS REDUCED.

Merchant's Complaint Against Kennedy May Cause His Dismissal.

John Kennedy, a first-grade detective in Brooklyn Police Headquarters, has been reduced to a patrolman and charges have been preferred against him by Commisisoner Cropsey as a result of a complaint made by Henry Rubenstein, a butter, egg, and poultry dealer at 1,151 Broadway, Brooklyn. Rubenstein says that when Kennedy was sent out to investigate a robbery which he had reported to the police, Kennedy declared that the complaint was false.

Rubenstein wrote a letter to Mayor Gaynor, in which he said:

> I reported the matter promptly to the police and in due time was visited by a man representing himself as a Headquarters detective, giving the name of Mr. Kennedy. I acquainted him with all the facts, and after he had looked around a few minutes, he deliberately turned around and accused me of creating the burglar story in the presence of a witness. The man's assertion at first astounded me, but I attributed his remark to his evident ignorance which he had displayed at the very outset of his supposed investigation, but when he persisted in his charge and deliberately called up the register company on my telephone and expressed his contention in a loud voice with the store full of customers, I decided it was time to ask you to bring your influence to bear.

The Mayor turned the complaint over to Second Deputy Commissioner Flynn for investigation, and the Commissioner's action followed.

Carnegie Hall to Stay as It Is.

A newspaper report that Carnegie Hall would soon be altered into a loft and office building was declared absurd yesterday by a real estate representative of Andrew Carnegie. The purchase of the property at 155 West Fifty-sixth Street, on a lot 25 by 100.5, for $45,000 several weeks ago by Mr. Carnegie was for the purpose of protecting the light and air on that side of the hall.

HIS BABY BRINGS A BANK THIEF BACK

Walter A. Hall Comes from Canada, Surrenders to Greenwich Bank and Tells of His Crime.

MAKES PARTIAL RESTITUTION

Spent Most of the $44,000 He Stole at Race Tracks—Wife Refused to Keep Funds He Sent Her.

Declaring that he could not rest until he had seen his four-months-old baby, Walter A. Hall of 87 Grant Street, Tompkinsville, S. I., former paying teller of the Herald Square Branch of the Greenwich Bank, who ran away with $44,000 of the bank's money last Summer, surrendered to the District Attorney yesterday and confessed to stealing the money. Hall was at once taken before Judge Crain in General Sessions and remanded until Friday for sentence.

Hall was accompanied by his counsel, State Senator Howard R. Bayne of Richmond; his brother, and former Commissioner of Parks Henry Smith, the counsel of the Greenwich Bank. Immediately upon reaching the District Attorney's office Hall returned $15,690 of the money he had stolen, saying that he had lost the rest at the race tracks in Canada, and he wanted to make all the restitution possible. Hall placed thirteen $1,000 bills on the desk before District Attorney Whitman, declaring that they were the original bills he had stolen from the bank.

The investigation which followed Hall's disappearance last July disclosed the fact that for some time there had been a shortage in his accounts, and it was believed by President William C. Duncan of the Greenwich Bank that Hall had become temporarily deranged by the heat. Mr. Duncan took personal charge of the search for Hall, who is married and has three children, and who up to the time of his disappearance had a fine reputation.

In his confession to District Attorney Whitman, Hall said that he had been with the bank since he was 15 years old, and had been raised to the position of paying teller in the main bank at Fulton and William Streets at a salary of $1,400 a year, but on account of a deficit of $1,000 in his books he had been transferred to the Herald Square Branch of the bank and his salary reduced to $1,000. He said that he used to handle between $15,000 and $20,000 a day, and the temptation was too great. He began to take money from the bank in small amounts, thinking he would be able to repay, only to become more deeply involved.

"On July 2 last I determined to take a large sum of money and get out of New York. I stuffed the money into my pockets and decamped," Hall said.

He then went on to tell how he went to Canada and began to go to the race track in the hope that he might double the $44,000 and thus be able to repay what he had taken. Instead of making money he lost. Then he received word that his wife had given birth to another child and he was seized with a desire to see the little one.

"I then decided to come home and give myself up while I still had enough money to make up a little of what I took from the bank. I intend to live a straight life hereafter and do all that I can to be of some use to my wife and children," Hall finished.

While in Canada, Hall sent $500 to his wife, which she refused to keep and returned to the bank. He said that he sent her $1,000 more, but that it had never reached her and is still unaccounted for.

Hall was indicted July 25 last, and detectives were sent out in search of him, but no trace of the paying teller could be found, and it was believed that he had fled to Europe.

At the time of Hall's disappearance the officials of the Greenwich Bank maintained the greatest secrecy about the affair, and gave out that Hall had been overcome by the heat. It was reported that the paying teller's accounts were short, but the bank officials denied this. It is said that they made up the loss.

Hall returned to this city last Friday, and on Monday his counsel called at the District Attorney's office and said that Hall was in the city and ready to surrender himself. Mr. Whitman instructed Senator Bayne to bring his client before him yesterday, and this was done. Hall made no plea for clemency, and said that he was ready to take a full sentence if the court thought he deserved it.

CONCEAL HUSBAND'S DEATH.

Invalid Wife Not Informed of It Lest the News Might Kill Her.

"Uncle Jim" Burtis, one of the best-known characters on the North Shore of Staten Island, died on Sunday of Bright's disease, and will be buried this afternoon at Lake's Cemetery, Graniteville, S. I., following services at Summerfield M. E. Church.

For many years Burtis dredged for oysters and dug clams off the Staten Island shore, but, growing old, he opened a fish and sea-food store and restaurant at Harbor Road and Richmond Terrace, where his lobsters, steamed clams, broiled oysters, and chowders made him famous. His place was long the objective point of New York and New Jersey fishermen.

Mrs. Burtis, who is old, blind, and ill, has not been informed of her husband's death lest it might kill her.

THE CHRISTMAS STORE

Sweeping Reductions in Women's Tailor-Made Suits
Suits that have been $35 to $45 at $25
BOTH BUILDINGS.

Our season is over and Winter suits to-day, no matter how beautiful, no matter how exquisite in style, are reduced in price so greatly that those who have put off buying until now can buy to tremendous advantage, even though Winter has only begun.

These suits are made of every desirable fabric that is worn—velvet, corduroy, zibeline, rough basket cloths, broadcloths, cheviots and mixtures of a dozen kinds. They are this season's beautiful models and materials, lined with peau de cygne most of them, and many of them copies of the last importations from France.

It is a question in our minds whether as good suits as these have ever been so greatly reduced as early in the season as this. Certainly we have never before, ourselves, sold such suits at such prices before Christmas.

CANADA TO PLACATE IRRITATED CONSULS

They Refused to Go to Drawing Room Because They Do Not Get Sufficient Precedence.

LAURIER ADMITS GRIEVANCE

Says Larger British Colonies Have Become Practically Nations, and Consuls Act as Diplomats.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Dec. 7.—At the opening of the Parliamentary session some interest was created by the fact that the Foreign Consuls General had refused to attend the viceregal drawing room because they did not regard the precedence given to them as sufficiently dignified.

The question came up in the House of Commons to-day, when Dr. Sproule, in moving for a copy of the correspondence between the Governor General and the Colonial Office or between any member of the Government and the Foreign Consuls General relative to the status of the latter at official functions such as the viceregal drawing room, asked for a statement upon the question.

The Premier replied that the status of Consuls was at present undetermined and undefined. If the Consuls General were in England or in any country which had absolute independence they would have no status whatever, such as was contemplated by this motion.

"I have often taken the view," added Sir Wilfrid Laurier, "that we are now a nation, and in fact we are in many respects. We have the power and the duty and the responsibility of a nation. But we cannot have, under present conditions, diplomatic agents among us other than the Consular agents, who are intrusted by their Governments with commercial functions alone. But by the force of things these Consuls General have become with us semi-diplomatic agents, and many of the Consuls have really performed in Canada diplomatic duties. The American Consul, Mr. Foster, has been acting for his Government in what is a diplomatic function, and the Consul of Italy and the Consul of Germany were charged with similar duties last year.

"All this has been done without authority, and is contrary to the rules that apply in civilization, but it became a necessity because of the development of the larger colonies of the British Empire, which have become practically nations.

"Now, I believe we should endeavor to determine by law, or rather officially, what the rights and status of the Consuls of the different nations who reside at Ottawa are. Practically they are diplomatic agents as well as Consular agents, and for my part I think it would be proper that at an early date their official position should be defined.

"I think we should have an understanding with the Imperial Government that the Consuls should have semi-diplomatic recognition among us. It may be a proper subject for discussion at the next Imperial Conference."

TO GET EX-SULTAN'S FUND.

Turkish Government's Action Against the Reichsbank Successful.

LEIPZIG, Dec. 7.—The suit instituted by representatives of the Turkish Government against the Reichsbank to compel that institution to surrender $4,500,000 which it has on deposit to the credit of the deposed Sultan Abdul Hamid, came before the Imperial Supreme Court to-day.

When Abdul Hamid intrusted his personal fortune to the Reichsbank he exacted a solemn agreement that the funds should not be withdrawn except on presentation of an order under his hand and seal. After he was driven from the throne the new Government attempted to recover these funds and laid before the bankers what purported to be a letter from the deposed Sultan authorizing the withdrawal. The order, however, did not bear the secret seal agreed upon, and the bank, which took the further ground that its customer, being practically a prisoner, was unable to act of his own free well, refused to surrender the money.

Suit was then brought against the bank in the name of the ex-Sultan in the Provincial Court at Berlin. This court dismissed the complaint, holding that it was brought under compulsion, and otherwise sustained the contentions of the Reichsbank.

After hearing the testimony to-day the Imperial Supreme Court refused to entertain the plea that Adbul Hamid signed the order of withdraway under duress and decided that the Reichsbank must pay the money as demanded.

KILLED 600 SENEGALESE.

French Lost Six Officers and Twenty-eight Men in the Battle.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Official advices announce that Lieut. Col. Moll, Lieut. Joly, Lieut. Beulo, and four under officers were killed in the engagement between a French column and tribesmen in the Oualai region of Senegal.

The French column was attacked by 5,000 natives on Nov. 9, and after fighting lasting for an hour and a half the enemy were routed, leaving 600 dead and many wounded on the field.

The French lost six officers and twenty-eight Tirailleurs killed and an officer, three subalterns, and sixty-nine Tirailleurs wounded.

The Sultans of Massalet and Doudmourah and an ex-Sultan of Oualai were killed.

LINCOLN NO RUSTIC—REID.

Ambassador Says He Was an Ardent Partisan and Master Politicitan.

BIRMINGHAM, Dec. 7.—Ambassador and Mrs. Whitlaw Reid were the guests to-night of Sir Oliver Lodge, F. R. S., Principal of the University of Birmingham. Mr. Reid delivered an address on Lincoln, which concluded a course arranged by the university authorities on "Makers of History."

In th ecourse of his address the Ambassador said:

"I place Lincoln far above any other of your shining list of the makers of history in the nineteenth century—far above Bismarck, far above Gambetta, or Massini, or the Marquis Ito."

Hr. Reid referred to the emancipator as not in the least a simple-minded rustic or a professional reformer, but, on the contrary, an ardent partisan and a master hand in the intricacies of the game of politics. Although personally modest and sensitive, Lincoln was pictured as being from his earliest manhood a persistent office-seeker and the most ambitious of men.

Mrs. Reid to-morrow will open the High School for Girls at Dudley.

COTTON BILLS SETTLEMENT.

Risks to be Covered by Insurance—Bankers Consent to Plan.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 7, (by telegraph to Clifden, Ireland; thence by wireless.)—There is excellent authority for the statement that a basis of settlement of the cotton bills of lading dispute is in sight. Risks are to be covered by insurance.

The scheme as settled by the committee of the European bankers has been passed by the latter as a whole and has also been accepted by the insurance companies. Formal announcement of the settlement has been delayed pending the acceptance by the American railroad companies of the specific form drawn up covering the insurance, which is not likely to present difficulties.

It is confidently expected that the dispute will be effectively settled before the end of the year, when the extension of the period under which the European bankers undertook to accept bills without guarantee expires.

The bill of lading guarantee which has been agreed to between the European bankers and the surety companies here is the guarantee which was formulated by a group of American companies headed by the American and the National Surety Companies at the instance of Sir Edward Holden of the London City and Midland Bank. The American committee was recently notified from London that the European committee had withdrawn the demand for a guarantee of all American cotton bills of lading after Dec. 31, and the understanding here is that the question whether or not a guarantee is required will be ltft to settlement between the individual importers and exporters of cotton.

Sir Edward Holden, it was made known a few days ago, proposed to provide a surety company guarantee on all cotton bills accepted by his bank, which was to undertake to pay the premium on these guarantees and add this to the charge made for the services rendered by the bank to the English cotton firms which are its customers.

OUR SHIPS CHANGING PLACES

Third Division Sails for Brest and Fourth Division for Gravesend.

GRAVESEND, Dec. 7.—The third division of the United States Atlantic fleet, Rear Admiral Murdock commanding, sailed for Brest to-day. Before the anchors were hoisted the Mayor and other civic officials paid farewell visits to the officers of the ships. The Americans were greatly pleased with their visit to England.

A civic welcome will be given to the ships of the fourth division, which are due here to-morrow.

BREST, Dec. 7.—The fourth division of the United States Atlantic fleet sailed for Gravesend to-day.

In quitting Brest Capt. Howard, the commander, signaled that the crews of the four battleships were complete, except for one man, who was lost overboard from the Nebraska last night.

SAYS WE COERCED CUBA.

Made Her Buy Coast Defense Ships from Us, German Paper Asserts.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—Under the sarcastic headline "American Guardianship," the Frankfurter Zeitung publishes a Havana telegram alleging that the United States Government has just compelled the Cuban Government to "annul" contracts it was about to place with the Vulcan Shipyard at Stettin for several coast defense vessels and to give the order to American yards, although the German bid was the lower.

THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is assured by Señor Quesada, the Cuban Minister at Berlin, that this statement is wholly without foundation. So far as the Minister is informed, the German bidders were beaten both by the Cramps of Philadelphia and by Vickers Sons & Maxim of England.

The Minister says that if the Stettin yard lost the business it is simply because it was outbid. The American Government has never sought to exercise the slightest censorship over Cuba's military and naval requirements. The Cuban Republic purchased a coast defense vessel at the Vulcan yard several years ago and also ordered guns from the Creusot Works in France.

The Germans have never stopped complaining over their loss of the order for rifles for the Cuban army a couple of years ago. Cuba placed the order in Berlin on condition that the rifles were exactly the same as those used in the German army, but when the time came for delivery it was discovered that the guns were of an obsolete pattern. Cuba thereupon obtained permission from the United States Government to purchase the standard Springfield rifle in use in the American army.

IMPURE FOOD KILLS GERMANS

Family of Seven Dead in One Place—Hundreds Poisoned.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—A family of seven persons has died at Graudenz, Prussia, from eating impure food. Within the last week there have been several hundred cases of similar poisoning in this city, Düsseldorf, and Hamburg, and in the last-named city several of those rendered ill have died.

A Hamburg manufacturer of artificial butter has issued a statement saying that a recent product of the firm was manufactured from a consignment of French fat which was rancid, but had been chemically purified.

Another Increase in British Trade.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—The November statement of the Board of Trade shows increases of $12,399,500 in imports and $17,879,500 in exports. The imports of foodstuffs decreased, but there were gains of $7,500,000 in American cotton and $7,750,000 in Egyptian cotton. Manufactured goods made the largest increase in exports.

THE LIFE OF CECIL RHODES

by Sir Lewis Michell 2 volumes, illustrated, in a box, $7.50 net.

¶ It would be difficult to overestimate the importance and interest of this biography of one of the most commanding figures of the latter half of the nineteenth century. Cecil Rhodes divides with Lord Cromer the honor of being perhaps the greatest empire builder of modern times. His personality was more than ordinarily interesting, and the world in general has always been anxious for authoritative information about him. This desire will be amply gratified by the present work, as is guaranteed by the author's position, for many years Rhodes's close associate and his Executor and Trustee under his will.

CUMMINS SETS TRAP FOR STAND-PATTERS

Offers Resolution Designed to Facilitate Tariff Revision a Schedule at a Time.

NEW TARIFF BOARD BILL

Lenroot Offers One in House Providing for Permanent Commission, with Large Powers of Inquisition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Insurgents are chuckling over the quandary in which they believe they have put the standpatters by a joint resolution introduced this morning by Senator Cummins of Iowa. The resolution provides for a change in the rules of the Senate and the House whereby in case a bill is introduced amending a paragraph or item of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff act the bill cannot be amended by dragging in some other item from another part of the measure.

The resolution looks to making possible a revision of the tariff by schedules, and the insurgents think that, as the President has declared for revision by schedules, it will be an embarrassing moment for the President's regular friends when they have to vote against the rule making his declarations possible of fulfillment. This resolution is brother to another formulated by the Iowan permitting a bill not reported from a committee within sixty days after its introduction to be called up by a vote of the Senate. This second resolution is aimed, of course, at preventing the burying in committee of any measures the insurgents may bring in amending the tariff law.

Senator Hale of Maine, perhaps the most conservative of the regular camp, raised the point that a resolution affecting the rules could not be considered without the Senate having first received notice of the proposed amendment one day before it is called up. The Cummins resolution, Mr. Hale said, effected a radical, if not a revolutionary, change in the rules of the Senate, and insisted on his point of order. This point the Chair sustained.

The matter will therefore come up tomorrow, but it is practically impossible that it will get any further than a reference to the Committee on Rules, where it will itself be buried. Even if it should come to a vote it would probably not worry the regulars as much as the sanguine insurgents expect. The regulars point out that the resolution places no restriction upon the number of separate bills that might be introduced and called up under it.

The regulars do not now express any hostility to the President's proposed plan for schedule by schedule revision, but they say that they will wait until the Tariff Board reports on a particular schedule. Then they will bring in a rule restricting amendments to schedule.

In the House the insurgents are much encouraged by the President's message supporting their chosen idea of a strong Tariff Commission. They intend to take Mr. Taft at his word and begin at once the struggle for the scientific ascertainment of tariff phenomena and to apply the principles of scientific management to the tariff precisely as up-to-date manufacturers are doing in their factories. Representatives Lenroot of Wisconsin today introduced a bill for a permanent Tariff Commission. The bill provides for five Commissioners to be appointed by the President with terms of office of ten years, the first appointees holding for two, four, six, eight, and ten years, respectively.

The commissioners are required to possess special qualifications, one having a practical knowledge of the manufacturing industry, one a representative of labor, one a lawyer who has made a special study of tariff laws, one who has expert knowledge of costs of production and accounting, and one who is a neconomist, who has made a special study of wages and cost of living. This commission is directed to ascertain the difference in the cost of production of articles in this and competing countries, making detailed investigations of all the factors. It is made the duty of the commission to hold public hearings, though testimony taken may be in secret session if the witness so desires, and the testimony so taken hall not be reported to Congress in detail unles Congress so desires. The Commission is given power to require the attendance of witnesses and the production of books, papers, and documents. The information gotten shall not be disclosed to competieach yeartors. The commission is directed to make annual reports to Congress on the first day of December of each year.

This bill has the approval of the National Tariff Commission Association, of which John C. Cobb of Boston, Vice President of the Boston Chamber of ommerce, is President, and Henry R. Town, President of the New York Merchants' Association is Treasurer.

President obb said to-night that he had found a very general feeling among Republican members of Congress for harmony and an equally general sentiment that the Tariff Commission idea had been generally accepted by the country.

UNVEILS VON STEUBEN STATUE

Helen Taft Does So Before 10,000 Germans—President and Bernstorff Speak.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Miss Helen Taft, daughter of the President, unveiled the statue of Baron Frederick William von Steuben this afternoon. The ceremonies, over which Secretary of War Dickinson presided, were of an elaborate character, President Taft and Count von Bernstorff paying tribute to the Revolutionary hero in addresses to the great crowd which assembled about the statue.

The German-American societies of the United States were represented, it is estimated by fully 10,000 visitors in the city for the occasion. The societies provided a chorus of 1,000 voices which furnished appropriate music, accompanied by the United States Marine Band.

The von Steuben statue stands on the northwest corner of Lafayette Square, opposite the White House. The parade, in which 10,000 soldiers, sailors and civilians marched, followed the unveiling.

The German Ambassador said that many descendants of the old German stock who had found a new home in this hospitable country, and now formed a natural bond of an ever-increasing friendship between Germany and the United States, had come to Washington to do honor to the memory of one of the most distinguished of their number at the foot of his statue, which was also the work of an American citizen of German descent. He was therefore very much pleased to be able to regard the monument not only as one erected to the memory of a distinguished German officer, who ably served this country, but also as a monument to the unbroken friendship which has existed between Germany and the United States since the birth of the people of the United States as a Nation.

Representative Bartholdt of Missouri said that unlike many other foreign officers, Baron von Steuben never returned to his native country. His burial place, near Utica, was known to but few, but this isolation in death seems to have been in accordance with his last wish. Today, however, he had been lifted from his obscure grave by means of this monument, which held up his sterling qualities as guiding stars to this and future generations.

A final tribute to the soldier's memory was paid by President Taft, who afterward was escorted to the White House by a troop of Uhlans from Philadelphia.

PLEADS FOR THE CANTEEN.

Gen. Duvall Says Its Absence Causes Most of the Army Disorder.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The anti-canteen law is seevrely criticised in the annual report of Major Gen. William P. Duvall, commanding the United States troops in the Philippine Islands. He says that it is responsible for many of the offenses which sause the soldiers' trial by court-martial, and adds:

> The desire of a very large percentage of normal men for some sort of stimulant is a desire which such men are sure to gratify. This demand of the soldier previously was gratified by the canteen without harm to himself or to the service.

Since the privilege of purchasing a wholesome beverage under satisfactory conditions was withdrawn, Gen. Duvall declares that "there have grown up on the outskirts of every reservation disreputable places where liquor of the most unwholesome, vile quality is dispensed, usually at exorbitant prices, from the direct effects of which the soldier commits many of the offenses which cause his trial by court-martial and often bring about htis physical collapse."

Gen. Duvall expresses the conviction that an investigation by a committee of Congress would result in prompt remedial legislation. He quotes the Judge Advocate of the Philippines as declaring that the use by soldiers of native intoxicants, "usually procured in the absence of sane drinks, which cannot be had upon the reservations," seems to be at the root of most of the court-martial cases.

The total number of summary courts-martial in the Philippines in the last year was 10,720, resulting in 10,495 convictions. The total number of such courts-martial the previous year was 7,018.

Gallagher's Trial Set for Dec. 20.

It was announced at the office of District Attorney Garven of Jersey City yesterday that James J. Gallagher, who shot Mayor Gaynor in Hoboken on Aug. 9, will be tried in the Court of Oyer and Terminer on Dec. 20, instead of Dec. 21, as planned. The change was made in view of the fact that another trial scheduled for Dec. 20 has been postponed. Gallagher will not be tried for shooting Mayor Gaynor, but for assault with intent to kill Street Cleaning Commissioner William Edwards.

TEXAS NOW RANKS FIFTH IN POPULATION

Big State Passes Missouri and Stands Next to Ohio with 3,896,543 Inhabitants.

DECADE'S GAIN 847,832

Would Have Four More Congressmen at Present Ratio—Two Dakotas Also Show Big Increases.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Texas, the largest State in the Union in point of area, made greater progress in its increase in population during the last ten years than any of the States which exceed it in the number of inhabitants, and now takes rank as fifth State in population, passing Missouri, which in 1900 held that place.

Statistics for the thirteenth census, issued to-night, show that the inhabitants of Texas now number 3,896,543, and thus that only New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, and Ohio surpass that State in population, while Missouri drops back to seventh place, having been passed by Massachusetts during the last ten years.

The figure of the new census represents an increase of 847,832, or 27.8 per cent. over the figure for 1900, which gave the big State on the Rio Grande 3,048,710 inhabitants. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 813,187, or 36.4 per cent.

Thus the increase in the past decade would give Texas four new Representatives in Congress if the present ratio of apportionment is retained when Congress enacts the new apportionment law.

Only 30 of the 245 Texas counties showed decreases in population, and these were slight.

For the counties containing the principal cities population figures are announced as follows: Bexas, 119,676; Dallas, 135,748; El Paso, 52,599; Galveston, 44,497; Harris, 115,693; Jefferson, 38,182; McLennan, 73,250; Tarrant, 108,572; Travis, 55,620, and Webb, 22,503.

No city population statistics for Texas were issued.

Population statistics for North and South Dakota were also issued as follows:

North Dakota, 577,056, an increase of 257,910, or 80.6 per cent., over 319,146 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 136,427, or 74.7 per cent.

South Dakota, 583,888, an increase of 182,318, or 45.4 per cent., over 401,570 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 72,762, or 22.1 per cent.

No city statistics for these States were issued, but the population of the counties containing the principal cities is given as follows: In North Dakota—Burleigh, 13,087; Cass, 33,935; Grand Forks, 27,888; Ward, 42,185. In South Dakota—Brown, 25,867; Lawrence, 19,694; Minnehaha, 29,631; Pennington, 12,453.

Population statistics were issued also for the following Pennsylvania cities:

Braddock, 19,357; Carnegie, 10,009; Duquesne, 15,727; Homestead, 18,718; McKees Rocks, 14,702; North Braddock, 11,824; Wilkinsburg, 18,924.

DR. WILSON GETS LOVING CUP

Speaks at Princeton Dinner of Importance of College Men in Politics.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 7.—A loving cup was presented to Dr. Woodrow Wilson to-night at a dinner in his honor given by the senior class. Replying to the presentation speech of the class President, M. W. Dwight, which prophesied higher honor for the Governor-elect, Dr. Wilson said:

"Your gift is a token to a Princetonian embarking on a voyage for what port I do not know; nor do I care. I am making it for the fun of navigating well, whatever the destination."

Dr. Wilson emphasized the importance of college men taking an active interest in politics. He said that if they could not get more benefit from four years in college than from four years in their father's business, then they should not come to college.

LAMAR FOR SUPREME COURT.

Democrats Hope to See Taft Appoint Georgian to Place.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Some of the Democrats of the Senate Judiciary Committee are hopeful to-day that the President will select as the Democratic nominee for the Supreme Court, Joseph Ricker Lamar, now Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia. The Democrats profess to be reasonably certain that, after the recent frank talks at the White House, a Democrat will be appointed, and considerable pressure is being brought to bear in support of Justice Lamar's candidacy.

Yesterday, Senator Bacon, who is ranking minority member of the judiciary, and several other members of the Georgia delegation, called on the President, and presented arguments in his favor. The President did not commit himself any more in regard to Justice Lamar than he has in regard to the other appointments for the Supreme bench, but the Democrats are feeling optimistic about his selection.

Exactly how the insurgents would view his appointment is not known, though it is a fact that they are inclined to consider many Southern Democrats as hide-bound reactionaries. A number of the insurgents have indorsed Judge Hook of the Eighth Circuit, but their feeling is more of antagonism to any reactionary than of active advocacy of a progressive.

Judge Lamar is safely under the age limit, the President once tentatively set himself for future appointments to the Supreme Court, being just 53 years old. He was born in Ruckersville, Ga., and received his education at the University of Georgia, Washington and Lee University and elsewhere. He was admitted to the bar in 1879, and practiced at Augusta, Ga., until 1903, when he became Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. He has served in the Georgia State Legislature.

The President is reported by persons who profess to know something of his views, to be disappointed and somewhat chagrined over the situation that has arisen in connection with the pending Supreme Court appointments. All Mr. Taft's consultations with the regular and "insurgent" Republicans and with the Democrats of the Senate have so far served chiefly to increase the difficulties of the task.

GIMBELS,
The Unusual—

ACCEPT it that the Gimbel Christmas stocks contain to a complete degree those commodities common to the glossary of things mercantile—still do they further encompass a broad compendium of answers to that Christmas question, "the gift unusual.".

Probably no country common to the globe-trotter has failed to contribute something unique to this unusual Christmas store ---probably no store in the world today presents so many new, different, rare and curious things peculiarly applicable as gifts. Briefly, this is expressed in

Gimbel Gloves---
By white gloves stitched in pastel shades to match the gown, the same idea in washable chamois gloves, seamless gloves, and men's gloves bound in leather—at Gimbels only;

Gimbel Corsage Montures---
By those from Javey, Frost and others, made from rare blossoms such as cyclemen, Japanese mimosa and English field-flowers;

Gimbel Pictures---
By choice mezzotints, steel-point etchings, original proof etchings, pastels, water colors and oils, paintings by Wobring, Chatignon, Schaefer, Weber, Bonnefoy and others of equal fame:

Gimbel Decorative Art---
By rare period-reproductions of cornices and other French accessories, fac-similes of old Gobelin tapestries and modern signed-pieces, drapery-copies of famous originals now in foreign museums and private homes, antique Chinese and Japanese embroidered silk panels and squares; each with its own significance or personal history, strange antique bronzes and carved hinoki and teakwood;

Gimbel China and Glassware---
By unwonted examples of the ancient arts of Japan, Italy, Holland, Saxony, France and Belgium, by Royal Worcester, Balmoral and Capi del Mont ware, by Vienna bronzes, French enamels, English rock crystals, art objects in alabaster, Damascus brasses, Halle, Bohemian and Venetian glass, pieces of Carrara and Castilian marble and original bronzes bearing such names as Debut, Pheffer and Raoul Larche:

Gimbel Lamps---
By those of brass from distant Persia, of bronze from France, of wicker from Japan, of bisque, carved wood, hand-painted and decorated, from many unusual sources and odd French candle-shades and antique-seeming brass sconces;

Gimbel Clocks---
By period pieces, clocks of French enamel, hand-carved wood and real bronze an unusually complete collection of ship-bell clocks and other beautiful hall, desk and mantel time-pieces,

Gimbel Antiques---
And Rare Furniture—By original historic pieces from Italy, France, Germany and England, furniture-period replicas from famous master-turners, a library suite from the Brussels Exposition, a bed-room of precious Scotch Hare Wood (the first shown in America), original designs by the great German Bedemeir, and scores of other equally authentic and interesting individual pieces and suites;

Gimbel Rugs---
By a collection of antique orientals admittedly the finest in America, outside of museums and private collections, including a Persian Hunting Rug, a Persian strip 350 years old, a royal Kashan with almost 400 knots to the square inch, a rarely beautiful Souj-Bulak of Fereghan design, Sehna-Kilims, and several royal Bokharas of a fineness and beauty of texture never before seen in this country;

Gimbel Jewelry---
By the new Abalone pearl settings; exquisite bits of rare Italian hand-made filigree, Dutch silver pieces, repousse enamels on silver—found only at Gimbels;

Gimbel Toys---
By boats and trains of all sorts, scores of new mechanical inventions that taxed the world's ingenuity to produce, entire street car systems and electric lighting plants, aeroplanes of every model;

Gimbel Dolls---
By those of bisque, accurately representing in miniature foreign types from the bourgeoisie to the elite, by "character" dolls depicting Chanticler and the others in "big print" and dolls, with wardrobes even unto six and eight changes;

Gimbel Fans---
By beautiful creations inspired by original Watteaus, fans of ivory, mother-of-pearl, sandal-wood, feathers, and many hand-painted;

Gimbel Perfumes---
By rare essences from Japan and India and real Turkish Attar-of-Roses, the marvelous "Coty Combination Box" direct from this Parisian Beauty-wizard;

Gimbel Leather Novelties---
By the new travel-comforts for the motorists, by hand-wrought hand-bags (one of a kind) from Paris, Vienna, Japan, by art pieces of hand-tooled leather, by purses, portfolios, traveling sets, oddly made and individual;

Gimbel Hand-bags for Women--
By novelties in leather, tapestry, and velvet, from famous French coutieres—and bags to harmonize in color, material and period-designing with any gown;

Gimbel Handkerchiefs---
By exquisite peasant-handiwork from Appenzells and the cottages and convents of Ireland, Switzerland, Germany, France, and Madeira, and wonderful lace kerchiefs from Armenia and Belgium;

Gimbel Scarfs for Women---
By Japanese embroidered crepe hand-drawn Spanish lace, Princess and Lierre lace effects from Belgium, wonderfully woven metallic French fancies, and feathered scarfs of variegated marabout that were exhibited at Brussels;

Gimbel Canes---
By those of step-partridge, pimento, and canes skillfully carved and with unusual mounting and odd trick tops;

Gimbel Umbrellas & Parasols---
By those with handles shoulder high, others of adroitly carved ivory and those with Parisian wood-animal handle and jet and silver in rare designs;

Gimbel Haberdashery---
By matched accordion pleated silk ties and hose, scarfs from silk squares exhibited at the Vienna Exposition, silk reefers from France and matelasse lounging robes;

Gimbel Fancy Linens---
By choicest examples of the clever needlewomen of Ireland, Italy, France, Germany, Japan, Madeira Islands and England;

Gimbel Infant Outfits---
By delicate silken coats and caps and mist-like dresses within describable French embroidery, washstands and breakfast services with quaint German decorations, layettes and baskets that have caught baby notions from almost every land;

Remembering that "First of All, RELIABILITY" at Gimbels encompasses reliabilty of style, of period, of scource and of quality, the "gift unusual" from Gimbels is the gift of permanent value.

UPHOLD BALLINGER, BUT NOT HIS POLICY

Majority of Committee, While Indorsing His Acts, Disapprove Selling Alaskan Coal Lands.

URGE LEASING, LIKE TAFT

They Say Animosity Inspired His Accusers, Score Glavis and Garfield, and Call Forestry Bureau Wasteful.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The long-delayed Pinchot-Ballinger majority report was made public to-day. The majority of the committee, consisting of Senators Knute Nelson, Frank P. Flint, George Sutherland, and Elihu Root, and Representatives S. W. McCall, M. E. Olmsted, and Edwin Denby, declare that "the evidence has wholly failed to make out a case. Neither has any fact proved nor all the facts put together exhibit Mr. Ballinger as being anything but a competent and honorable gentleman, honestly and faithfully performing the duties of his high office with an eye single to the public interest."

In the main the report is a plain, straightforward narrative of the quarrel which for months resounded from one end of the country to the other. It begins by the cautious statement that the charges against Mr. Ballinger "appear to have had their origin in a strong feeling of animosity created by a supposed difference in policy respecting the conservation of natural resources." This strong feeling is credited with much of the acrid and vehement attacks on Ballinger, and the committee say that the friends of conservation came to regard the most natural and innocent acts of the Secretary as having some sinister object. The virulence of the controversy evidently appeared at its worst to the committee, who speak of the petty squabbles and jealousies of the subordinates of the head of the department in a disdainful tone and allude to the fact that they had to listen to divulgences secured secretly from the Secretary's confidential stenographer, who had charge of his private papers.

If the report had stopped with the vindication of Mr. Ballinger he would have cause to be a happy man. But it proceeds in a judicial manner to review everything proved in the course of the long hearing and the inevitable power of the record pervades the report. While the conduct of the Secretary in regard to the Cunningham coal claims is declared to be "not justly censurable," the committee find with manifest satisfaction that the entire body of coal fields of Alaska is practically untouched, and declare that it should never be sold, but kept by the Government and leased for the benefit of the people. Even the Cunningham claims are still where they were a year and a half ago, when the insubordinate official, Glavis, had his suspicions aroused in regard to them, but the committee recommend that they should be transferred to an appropriate court for hearing and decision.

The committee then pass on to make the star declaration of the conservation policy in these words:

> Your committee believes that it would be the heighth of unwisdom to permit the great coal fields to be monopolized or gathered into the private ownership of a few for speculative purposes. As they increase in value the income should inure to the benefit of all the people. To bring about this result and at the same time put an end to the unreasonable condition now existing your committee recommends that the Government refuse to sell these lands, but that, retaining their ownership, it shall grant leases at fair royalties for periods limited but long enough, and covering areas large enough, to justify the necessary investments upon sound business principles, and thus secure the opening and operation of sufficient mines to meet the necessities of Alaskan consumption, afford relief from the present outrageous prices paid by consumers, and at the same time afford some revenue to the Government. We recommend legislation to that end, and that pending such legislation the existing withdrawal from entry of the Alaska coal lands be continued.

Thus the view of the committee is manifestly in line with all that Gifford Pinchot or his sometimes uncontrollable pupil, Theodore Roosevelt, have ever said on the subject. Almost at the same time the report came out, the annual report of Secretary Ballinger urged that the policy of the Government be diametrically opposite to that recommended by the committee, and that the coal lands be sold. The President yesterday in his message to Congress and the country gave a tip as to the Secretary's ideas when he said in discussing the Alaskan coal land matter:

"The Secretary of the Interior thinks there are difficulties in the way of leasing public coal lands, which objections he has set forth in his report, the force of which I freely concede. I entirely approved his stating at length in his report the objections in order that the whole subject may be presented to Congress, but after a full consideration I favor a leasing system and recommend it."

And then Mr. Taft, as is to show how out of line his Secretary of the Interior could persist in being, called attention in his message to his conservation speech at St. Paul on Sept. 5, suggesting that he considered it worth attention, and, to make it convenient for Congress to read it, he had had the speech attached to the message as an appendix.

In the St. Paul speech President Taft said he had looked into the report made to President Roosevelt upon the leasing of coal lands in New Zealand, Tasmania, and Australia, and had found that the system of leases worked well, and the plan had been generally approved by all competent authorities. He then went on to elaborate the conditions and limitations of coal leases to prevent monopolies and secure to the people the assurance of a supply of fuel for heat and power for many generations to come. To ordinary men this utterance by the President would have served as a hint. But Mr. Ballinger wanted something wider than a barn door, and now he seems to have got it. One day he is repudiated by the President, and the next by the very committee that he relied on to buttress him in good standing in the Administration. The report of the minority of the committee was made public last September during the Conservation Congress in St. Paul. Representative Madison of Kansas, a member of the committee, filed an individual report dissenting from the majority as to Ballinger's responsibility in the conservation policy.

The committee concluded its work today. The report, representing the views of the majority of the committee, was presented to both houses of Congress at the opening at noon, Senator Wilson introducing it in the Senate and Representative McCall in the House. At the same time the independent reports of the Democratic members of the committee and of Representative Madison of Kansas also were submitted.

The conclusions of the Republicans were submitted to the Democrats at a meeting of the full committee held this morning. All Republican members except Representative Madison had signed the report. Senator Nelson, Chairman of the committee, put the majority report to a vote. The Democratic members, with Representative Madison, voted against it.

The interest will not centre in the disposition to be made of all the reports made by the committee. The House today accepted all the reports, and the Speaker referred them to the Committee on Agriculture, although that committee has nothing before it bearing on the questions involved, and its members are puzzled to know what is expected of them in the matter. It has been suggested that they make a report to the House embodying the recommendations of the Pinchot-Ballinger Committee as to the policy of retaining the coal lands and leasing them and referring the Cunningham claims to a competent court for adjudication, but it is more than likely that the whole matter will be allowed to sleep for a long time.

Senator Fletcher said later that steps will be taken by the Democrats to bring about action in accordance with the recommendations contained in their report.

The reports were accepted in both houses without comment. The plan of action to be followed by the Democrats has not been determined upon, but it is understood a resolution will be presented to carry out the recommendation made for the Secretary's removal. Such a resolution probably will call flatly upon the President to discharge his Cabinet officer. The Democrats held a conference on the matter to-day. They characterize the majority report as "weak." An effort undoubtedly will be made to put the House on record as to its opinion of the majority report.

"I have no comment to make on the report of the committee," said Secretary of the Interior Ballinger when asked in regard to the findings.

The report makes the following specific findings:

> That the charges and insinuations against Secretary Ballinger in regard to the Cunningham coal land entries or other coal land claims in Alaska are not justified, and his conduct in respect thereto is not justly censurable.
>
> That he was fully justified in revoking the Indian co-operative agreement.
>
> That the restorations of water power sites by Secretary Ballinger were made in good faith, and not in enmity to the Government. * * * and that no injury appears to have been done to the Government and the cause of conservation by either the restorations or withdrawals.
>
> That, in view of the opinion of the Attorney General, he was justified in abandoning the use of the so-called water users' co-operative certificates in connection with the reclamation of arid lands.
>
> That the administration of the reclamation law presented features justly subject to criticism. * * * No unfair criticism or improper conduct on Secretary Ballinger's part has been shown, nor any action by him not within the sound discretion of the head of the Interior Department in the faithful performance of his duty.
>
> That he is not an enemy of nor hostile to a reasonable and judicious policy of conservation, and that no ground whatever has been shown justifying the opinion that he is not a faithful and efficient public officer.

After setting forth the fact that the entire known coal fields of Alaska, covering more than 8,000,000 acres, are still in Government ownership, the report takes up the strife between Secretary Ballinger and other officials of the Government, including several of his subordinates, and Mr. Pinchot, who was deposed as Government Forester. The report then says:

"Your committee finds that the interests of the people as owners of the Alaskan coal fields are not threatened or endangered under existing conditions."

Speaking of the Cunningham claims, the committee finds that it would be improper for it to pass upon the merits of these claims and thus prejudge them while they are pending.

"If they are regular," the report says, "patents should be allowed. If they are fraudulent, the claims should be canceled. The claimants are entitled to an impartial judgment upon their rights in the premises."

As to the conduct of Mr. Glavis during the long period during which the Alaska coal claim cases were under his control as special agent of the Land Office, the report declares that he had sufficient time and abundant assistance to make the field examination which he had demanded. In this connection the committee says:

"If his demand was in good faith Glavis was grossly remiss in his duty in not having the examination made then."

Commenting upon the blanket withdrawals of public lands which were made by James R. Garfield, when Secretary of the Interior, the committee says this action was taken by him after "he ascertained that he would not be retained under President Taft." It is stated that these withdrawals were made "haphazard" from the mere inspection of the Land Office State maps. Many of these lands were restored to the public domain by Secretary Ballinger, and a portion were again set aside. The rewithdrawals, according to the committee, were made by Secretary Ballinger after a careful examination of the maps, notes, data, and reports in the geological survey, and it is held by the committee that the rewithdrawals embraced all the power sites in the original blanket withdrawals made by Mr. Garfield.

Explaining the exoneration of Mr. Ballinger because of his abrogation of the Indian co-operative agreement relative to logging and lumbering on Indian reservations, the committee says the Secretary found that operations were being carried on by the Bureau of Forestry of a wasteful and extravagant nature, and entailing loss to the Indians.

$8,926,000,000 VALUE OF THE YEAR'S CROPS

Secretary of Agriculture in Report Says That the Total Is the Greatest in History.

CORN ALONE $1,500,000,000

Exonerate Farmer from Blame for High Cost of Living—Production Per Acre Catching Up with Population.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The value of the farm products of the United States this year, according to the Secretary of Agriculture in his annual report for 1910, published to-day, is $8,926,000,000, the greatest total in history. If the value of the products of 1899 is placed at 100, the value for this year is 189, or almost double the value for the census year eleven years ago. "During this period of twelve years, during which the farmers of this country have steadily advanced in prosperity and wealth and in economic independence, in intelligence, and a knowledge of agriculture, the total value of farm products is $79,000,000,000," the report says.

The corn crop of 3,121,381,000 bushels exceeds that of the record year 1906, and is greater than the average crop of the preceding five years by 14 per cent. While the value of this corn crop is below that of 1909 and also of 1908, its amount can hardly be reckoned as less than $1,500,000,000, a sum sufficient to cancel the interest-bearing debt of the United States, buy all of the gold and silver mined in all of the countries of the earth in 1909, and still leave to the farmers a little pocket money.

Year of Highest Production.

This is the year of highest production for corn, oats, the total of all cereals, and for tobacco. But the only crop that reached its highest value this year is cotton. The value of the farm products of 1910 shows both gains and losses in comparison with 1909. A gain of $130,000,000 is made for cotton lint and seed, $30,000,000 for hay, and $3,000,000 for barley. A loss was suffered in the case of wheat amounting to $104,000,000, corn $98,000,000, oats $26,000,000 and potatoes and wool $23,000,000 each.

The farm value of the cereal crops declined $230,000,000 in 1910 from 1909, and the value of all crops declined $119,000,000. A gain was made, however, in the value of animal products amounting to $424,000,000. It has been a year of high prices for meat and animals, for poultry and eggs, and for milk and butter, and for these reasons the total value of all farm products increased in 1910 $304,000,000 above the estimate for 1909.

The value of the exports of farm products after constant oscillation from the earliest times increased to the enormous amount of $1,017,396,404 in 1908, from which there was a decline in 1909 and another in 1910, for which latter year the amount stands at $871,107,067, a value which has been exceeded only in the years 1901 and 1906 previous to 1907.

Cotton was the principal item of export in 1910, with a value of $450,447,243, and packing-house products followed, with a value of $135,959,373; third in order are grain and grain products, valued at $133,320,418; after which are tobacco, $38,115,386; oil and oilcake meal, $19,251,012; fruits, $18,504,591; live animals, $17,447,735. Compared with 1909, there was a decrease in all of the principal items except cotton, for which the increase was about $33,000,000, fruits about $2,500,000, and tobacco about $7,000,000.

The Farmer and High Prices.

High prices receive considerable attention in this report. In the farmer's aspect of the matter he receives various percentages of the consumer's prices for farm products. In the case of milk, in 78 cities distributed throughout the United States where the subject was investigated by the department, the farmer receives a scant 50 per cent., or one-half of the price paid by the consumer. The railroads get about 7 per cent., so that the remaining 43 per cent. of the consumer's price is received mostly by the retailer. The farmer receives hardly more than half of the consumer's price in the case of poultry, 69 per cent. in the case of eggs, cabbage 48 per cent. when bought by the head and 65 per cent. when bought by the pound, celery 60 per cent. when bought by the bunch.

The apple grower receives 56 per cent. of the consumer's price when the purchase is by the bushel and 66 per cent. when by the barrel; the strawberry grower gets 49 per cent. of the consumer's price in purchases by the quart and 76 per cent. when by the crate. When the consumer buys a peck of onions at a time the farmer receives 28 per cent. of the retail price; when he buys a barrel the farmer receives 58 per cent. So in the case of oranges, when the purchase is by the dozen the grower receives 20 per cent. of the consumer's price, whereas when the purchase is by the box the grower gets 59 per cent.

After presenting many details with regard to the increase of prices on farm products between farmer and consumer, the Secretary of Agriculture declares that "the conclusion is inevitable that the consumer has no well-grounded complaint against the farmer for the prices that he pays. The farmer supplies the capital for production and takes the risk of his losses; his crops are at the mercy of drought, and flood, and heat, and frost, to say nothing of noxious insects and blighting diseases. He supplies, hard, exacting, unremitting labor." The Secretary suggests that the problem of high prices is one for treatment by the consumer.

Direct Purchases from Farmers.

"Why do not consumers buy directly from the farmers?" he asks. "A distribution of farm products in this simple way has already begun in England, where co-operative organizations of farmers are selling by direct consignment to co-operative organizations of consumers in cities. Farmers' co-operative selling associations are numerous in this country, but co-operative buying associations among the people of cities and towns are few."

Production per acre is beginning to overtake increase of people, declares the Secretary, in discussing one of the features of his report. "The evidence is very plain that the yields per acre of our crops are now increasing, and if the fact were assembled in detail for the States it would be found that the percentage of increase in yield of many of them is greater than the percentage of normal increase of population—that is, the increase of births over deaths in the old native element."

The Secretary, while in hearty accord with the general proposition to provide better facilities for work in the interest of public health, expresses himself as opposed to any plan which will remove from the Department of Agriculture the inspection work involved in the enforcement of the Food and Drugs act and meat-inspection law, to say nothing of certain plans which would take way the biological and entomological work of the department.

The report notes progress made in improving sanitary conditions in dairies and consequently in the milk supply of many cities, and the measures taken for the oradication of tuberculosis among cattle in the District of Columbia.

As a result of the teaching of the methods of the Department for scientific farming, farmers throughout the country have increased their yields. The demonstration work among Southern farmers has shown excellent results and progressive growth. Organized in 1904 for the purpose of fighting the boll weevil in Texas, this work has now extended to all the Southern States. The boll weevil has been fought progressively, and where the farmers have followed the instructions of the agents of the Department an average crop of cotton has been produced in spite of the weevil, and statistics shown that on the other hand where planters have not followed the instructions a crop failure has resulted. This is conspicuously true in the alluvial sections of Texas, Louisiana, and Mississippi.

WINTER WHEAT POOR.

December Condition Only 82.5 as Against 95.8 in 1909.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The area in the United States sown to Winter wheat this Fall is estimated by the crop reporting board of the United States Department of Agriculture to be 2.5 per cent. more than the revised estimated area in the Fall of 1909, equivalent to an increase of 828,000 acres, the indicated total being 34,485,000 acres.

The condition of Winter wheat on Dec. 1 was 82.5, compared with 95.8 in 1909, 85.2 in 1908, and 91.8, the ten-year average.

Area and condition by States were:

United States	34,485,000	82.5

The area sown this Fall to rye is estimated at 1.2 per cent. less than the revised estimated area sown in the Fall of 1909, equivalent to a decrease of 25,000 acres, the indicated total area being 2,188,000 acres.

The condition on Dec. 1 of rye was 92.6 against 94.1 in 1909, 37.6 in 1908, and 93.5 the ten-year average.

Area and condition by States were:

States.	Acreage.	Condition.

United States	2,188,000	92.6

The Government's report of the condition of Winter wheat, which is the lowest in several years, indicates a crop of 524,172,000 bushels, according to the Produce Exchange statistician's figures. This is an increase of 65,888,000 bushels over the Winter wheat crop harvested this year, and compares with 446,366,000 bushels in 1909, 437,908,000 in 1908, 409,442,000 in 1907, and 492,884,000 bushels in 1906.

The fact that the indicated crop is larger than the actual yield in each of these years, notwithstanding the low condition, is, of course, due to the increase in acreage. The acreage is the largest on record.

COMMUTING COSTLIER HERE THAN IN BOSTON

150 Per Cent. Higher in Some Instances, Suburbanites Show the Utilities Board.

A LOSS, SAYS THE NEW HAVEN

Better for the Road's Purse if Westchester Were a Desert—Increase Due to Central's New Terminal.

Testimony to show that the handling of all their New York suburban traffic is a loss and that it was necessary to raise the rates of their commuters' tickets in order to help pay for their share in the building of the new Grand Central terminal as well as for the electrification of their tracks within the suburban zone, was presented yesterday by officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad at the adjourned hearing of commuters' complaints before the Public Service Commission of the Second District, which was held in the assembly rooms of the Metropolitan Building.

Although one official of the railroad declared that it would be better for them if Westchester County were a desert instead of a thickly populated community, evidence was produced to show that the cost of commuters' tickets in the vicinity of New York is 40, 60, 80, and in some cases even 150 per cent. higher than is charged Boston commuters on the same road for the same distance. Twelve-trip tickets between Boston and Dedham cost $1.65, while between New York and New Rochelle, practicaly the same distance, the rate for the same number of tickets is $4.20.

Counsel for the railroad officials attempted to show that the increase in the rate of commuters' tickets was due to the enormous cost of changing the motive power of the suburban trains from steam to electricity, but at the same time it was brought out by the complaining commuters' lawyers that the New Haven Road had not only made the change in the motive power of their own accord but that a new four-track railway which the New Haven is building between 177th Street and White Plains and known as the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway, is to be electrified throughout.

Cost of Electrification.

Septimus C. Fleetwood, auditor of the disbursements of the New Haven Road, submitted a report showing that the electrification of the road cost $4,292,466.05. Of this amount, he said, $1,270,000 was expended for power houses. Joseph S. Wood, counsel for Mayor Fiske of Mount Vernon, and Hugh H. Harmer, Corporation Counsel of New Rochelle, appearing for Mayor Harry E. Colwell of that city, attacked the authenticity of the figures. George L. Carlisle, representing Thomas G. Hall of New Rochelle, was allowed to enter an additional complaint relating to school tickets on behalf of his client.

"I have learned," said Mr. Carlisle, "that the rate of a yearly school ticket from New Rochelle has been raised from $33 to $69, an increase of 120 per cent. This is a greater increase than that of all commutation rates and constitutes an additional tax on education."

General Counsel E. D. Robbins of the New Haven system said he thought no one was aggrieved, as the total revenue of the New Haven in the State of New York from school children was not more than $2,000 a year. He said he couldn't see why the road should give reduced rates to residents wealthy enough to afford sending their children to school in New York.

Lawyer Robbins said the road was justified in increasing its rates, as it was compelled to pay the New York Central 14 cents for every passenger brought into the Grand Central Station. The New Haven, he said, paid $1,131,000 to the New York Central for the use of the Grand Central and Mott Haven terminals in 1910. Even with the advanced rates, he said, the road was losing money, for its revenue from commuters was only about 11 cents a head.

Rentals to Blame, Too.

Vice President E. H. McHenry, in charge of electrical construction of the road, testified that the increased passenger rates were due to the fact that the New Haven had to pay additional rentals for the use of the new terminals at the Grand Central Station. The larger the terminal the greater the expense, he said.

"Then we are paying for a far greater inconvenience?" asked Mr. Wood.

"For the additional cost of an additional inconvenience," corrected Mr. McHenry, who added that the terminal facilities were not as good to-day as they were six years ago.

"Gracious!" remarked Mr. Wood, "that is an alarming statement from a railroad official."

Mr. Wood, then addressing Chairman Stevens, said he proposed to show that the New York Central was guilty of gross mismanagement and extravagance in expending $43,000,000 or more for a terminal, and for which the New Haven was expected to pay 42 per cent.

"For $12,000,000, or about $3,000,000 a mile," he went on, "the Central and the New Haven Roads could have built a subway to the battery. Then we would not have to be dumped out at Forty-second Street. But they will continue to dump us out there despite the fact that we do not want to be. Furthermore, if they built a subway to the Battery their revenues would be increased even greater than they are now. We would be willing to pay 5 cents extra in that event."

When Mr. McHenry admitted that he had no knowledge of the terminal facilities of other roads Mr. Wood remarked that it seemed mighty queer that a Vice President of a large road had never made a study of what other roads were doing for the purpose, at least, of bettering his own.

Would Abolish Commutation.

Mr. McHenry said he believed that the New Haven Road would eventually be compelled to electrify its road from New York to Boston, one of the reasons being the necessity of abating the smoke nuisance. Mr. Robbins at this point remarked that he knew it wouldn't be a paying investment. He added that the entire commuter business is unprofitable, and that if it had it to do over again it wouldn't do any commuter business whatever. He said the whole business was a heritage from which the road would be glad to escape.

While Mr. Robbins contended that the electrification of the service was run at a loss, Commissioner Decker wanted to know why the New York, Westchester & Boston Road was constructing a four-track road between 177th Street and White Plains at a cost of $500,000 per mile in order to get more commuter traffic.

Benjamin Campbell, another Vice President of the New Haven, in charge of the traffic department, was asked what he thought of the new commutation rates.

"They are reasonable to the commuters and unreasonable to the company," he replied. "We pay out more money for our business between New York and Woodlawn, for instance, than we get out of it."

Mr. Campbell suggested as a solution to the congestion at the Grand Central Station and the great expense in maintaining it, an extension of the subway system to the outlying districts. He said he could offer no definite plan, but he thought that tubes running to Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, and other cities would relieve conditions immeasurably.

Mr. Campbell will resume the stand this morning, and upon the completion of his testimony the commission will hear complaints against the New York Central.

Anthracite Shipments Increase.

The shipments of anthracite coal during November amounted to 6,071,746 tons, or 43,946 tons over November, 1909. The Philadelphia & Reading Railway led in tonnage, with 1,252,466 tons. The Lehigh Valley came second, with 1,018,879, and the Lackawanna third, with 850,720 tons. The total shipments of anthracite in the eleven months ending with November amounted to 58,674,208 tons, an increase of 2,479,761 tons over the same eleven months of 1909.

HAMMERSTEIN HAS GONE.

Sails Away with a Few Remarks About Ingratitude.

Oscar Hammerstein, in his silk hat, sailed for England yesterday afternoon on the White Star liner Majestic. Before sailing Mr. Hammerstein had a few remarks to make on grand opera and opera singers. He met each interviewer on deck with a deprecatory smile, and the hat pushed back on his head. No one would want to interview him, said Mr. Hammerstein, when so much had been published about him already. Then he was interviewed.

"I am going to remain in London just one week," he said. "I have been called over by cable to confer with architects and builders. The new opera house in London will be completed in October. Then I will remain in London.

"You ask what are the plain people here going to do without opera now. Well, the plain people ought to have thought of that long ago. Here is the Metropolitan Company with a subscription list of from $[illegible] to $800,000, while I only had $300,000. Not only that, but I paid my singers the biggest salaries. The time to have thought of these things was long ago, not now. I do not accuse any singer of ingratitude. Sometimes artists are grateful—very grateful. At other times they are most ungrateful. It's all the artistic temperament."

Mr. Hammerstein as asked why Chicago had refused "Salome."

"'Salome' was turned down," said he. "That's all. The reason has been kept a secret. Chicag is the home of the Beef Trust, and maybe the packing houses out there want no competition in the slaughter house business. Another thing—this is confidential—the women in Chicago wear flannels, so they are opposed to the nude. Artistic lines do not appeal to them."

Mr. Hammerstein was asked who would open his new opera house in London.

"Oh somebody new," he said. "I have discovered new Tetrazzinis and Carusos who will sing for me and new Puccinis to write new operas. In the operatic pond there are always good fish to be caught. I know where to look for them."

Miss Stella Hammerstein was down to see her father off. She was asked if she was really engaged to be married.

"Do I look insane," was her reply.

"Take care of yourself, popper," she called as a parting admonition when the vessel sailed away.

HUMPERDINCK ARRIVES.

Falls Into Arms of Caruso—Will Supervise His "Konigskinder."

Engelbert Humperdinck, the composer of "Hänsel und Gretel," who has come to this country to supervise the first performance of his new lyric drama, "Königskinder," arrived in New York yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which had been delayed a day. Late in the afternoon he came to the Metropolitan Opera House and met the newspaper men.

One of them, a large Italian with a pad of paper and a pencil, stood in one corner and wrote assiduously, while others asked the composer questions in German. Finally some one asked, "Have you heard Caruso, Mr. Humperdinck?"

"Often," answered the composer, "both when I came here several years ago, and in Germany. I admire his singing very much."

At this there was a general roar, and the Maestro, looking hard at the Italian journalist in the corner, whom he had not recognized before, discovered that it was none other than the famous tenor, whereupon they fell into each other's arms. Mr. Caruso had been making caricatures of the composer.

"I wanted to make an opera of 'Königskinder' in the first place, Humperdinck said, "but the author of the play objected, and so I wrote merely incidental music. Afterward, I had my way. The themes which occurred in the incidental music I have expanded and developed, but much of the original material, of course, remains.

"My interest lies with the drama of childhood, with the folk song, and the simple story. Some day I may write an opera on a more realistic subject, but there shall be no murder in it. I do not care for murder in opera.

"My latest work is incidental music to Maeterlinck's play, 'The Blue Bird,' which is written for production at a theatre in Berlin, and will be given there at Christmas time. I have also a string quartet in mind.

"There seem to be many currents running in Germany's musical river just now, and not the least interesting one is the reactionary current which is going against the wild movement after novelty."

When asked for his opinion of Debussy, Humperdinck said that he had heard only one performance of 'Péleas et Mélisande' at the Scala in Milan, conducted by Signor Toscanini, and that one couldn't make up one's mind about Debussy from a single performance.

Mr. Humperdinck will remain in New York more than a month. While he is here "Hänsel und Gretel" will be revived in his honor, and a special Sunday night concert of his works will also probably be given.

A. Hammerstein to Produce Opera.

Arthur Hammerstein is to become an impresario on his own account. Since the success of "Naughty Marietta" he has made an arrangement with Edward Locke, the author of "The Climax," to write him a book, the scenario of which he suggested himself. This music play, which will require twelve people and an orchestra of fifty, he will produce on Jan. 23 in Syracuse. The title of the play is "The Maestro's Masterpiece." The composer of the music has not yet been annouuced.

TRUNK MURDER HUNT WILL OPEN A GRAVE

Question of the Identity of William Lewis, Buried in Rhode Island, to be Settled To-day.

NEW YORK SLEUTH THERE

Description of the Man Killed There a Month Ago Fits That of Albert Callier's Slayer.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 7.—The grave of William H. Lewis, who lived in the town of Foster for four years until his death about a month ago, will be opened to-morrow in an effort to identify him positively as the William Lewis who is sought by the New York police for the murder eight years ago of Albert C. Callier, an artist, whose body was found in a trunk in that city on Nov. 18.

Lieut. James J. Kane of the New York Detective Bureau, arrived here at 6 o'clock to-night and went to police headquarters, where he consulted with the local detective bureau as to the best way to get at the lonely grave in Foster. He communicated with Dr. Henry Arnold, Medical Examiner of the district that includes the town of Foster and arranged for that official's attendance at the exhuming of the body. Undertaker Steere, who buried Lewis, was also notified to be ready to identify the grave.

The permit for digging up the body will be procured from the Foster town council in the morning.

The whole countryside of Western Rhode Island is astir over the Lewis case and the possibility that the man may have been Callier's murderer is the chief topic of conversation. That the Lewis for whom the New York police are searching was the man buried in Foster seems as certain as is possible, lacking positive identification of the body. The photograph sent on by the New York police has been identified by those who knew Lewis well at Foster when it was shown to them. The description sent out also fits the Foster Lewis in every essential. A careful inquiry into the life of the man since he came to this State coincides in all important respects with what is known of the New York waiter.

When the body is exhumed the identity will be determined to a large extent by the teeth, and those who knew the Foster Lewis well are of the belief that his teeth were like those of the men wanted. The Lewis wanted in New York had false teeth, and to-day Mrs. John Allen, who owns the farm where the Lewises lived in Foster, said that the tenant also had false teeth.

William Lewis, the New York waiter disappeared in 1906, leaving a trunk marked with his name which was found last month to contain a body. Since then nothing has been heard of William Lewis in New York. On Nov. 1, 1906, William Lewis came to this State, and on April 1, 1907, appeared in the town of Foster, where he lived until a month ago. On Nov. 9 he was killed, apparently, by a fall from the wagon which he was driving from Hopkins Mills to Providence.

Nothing was known about Lewis's past history, and he took pains never to tell anything about himself. That he was concealing something and feared pursuit of some kind was long suspected. He was about 45 years old.

William Herbert Lewis, as he gave his name in Foster, came to that town on April 1, 1907, answering an advertisement for a manager for the town poor farm. He got the place, and a woman who passed as his wife became matron. For two years Lewis held this place, and then rented the Walker place at Hopkins Mills and raised vegetables. He and his wife lived in half of a house on the place, a Mrs. Elvira Adams occupying the other part.

The farming venture not proving successful, Lewis last Winter got a place with John Hopkins, a storekeeper at Hopkins Mills, and worked for him nine months before he died.

When Lewis and his wife came to Foster they had no furniture and no clothing except that which they wore. Mrs. Lewis often spoke of having furniture and trunks in New York and once went there for them. She returned, however, with no furniture and no explanation.

Lewis and his wife were apparently in fear of being followed all the time they lived in Foster. The two quarreled frequently, and after Mrs. Lewis's death the body was found by Medical Examiner Arnold to be covered with bruises. During one of their quarrels Lewis was heard to say to her:

"You'd better keep still or I will tell."

This fear was further shown on the night when Lewis met his death. About midnight on Nov. 8 he left with a four-horse wagon loaded with wood for this city. Although he was never known to carry a revolver on these trips, he carried one that night, while his wife begged him not to go.

About daylight on the morning of Nov. 9 his body was found just over the line in the town of Scituate. Dr. Henry W. Smith of that town examined it and found that the seat of the wagon had apparently broken loose, that the man had been thrown to the ground, the wheels passing over him. There was also a theory that he had been struck over the head and stunned, and then placed on the road and the wagon driven over him.

Two days after Lewis's death the wife took poison and died that night. Her brother, Charles F. Tukey, who appeared in Foster about a year ago, denies all knowledge of Lewis. He thinks that Lewis came from Boston, while Lewis said he came from New York.

The New York police are not inclined to take overseriously the report coming from Foster, R. I., that the William Lewis buried there is the William Lewis wanted for the murder of Albert C. Callier, the artist. They said it was true they had sent a man to Foster to investigate the matter, but in doing so they were only following their custom of looking up the various William Lewises who were reported to them. They have found several dozen of them, but none of them proved to be the man for whom they are searching.

PLAN NEW MUSICAL PLAYS.

Shuberts and Associates to Present "Trilby" and "Man with Two Wives."

Plans for a number of musical plays to be produced by the Shuberts and their associates were announced yesterday, the details of some of which have been told before. "The Balkan Princess" will be among the first of the new pieces to appear, and Louise Gunning will have the star rôle, with Herbert Corthell as the principal comedian. Others in the cast will be Joseph Herbert, Teddy Webb, Vida Whitmore, and Kenneth Hunter. "Marriage a la Carte," which is to be a Liebler production, will follow soon after, with Emma Wehlan and Harry Conor in the principal parts.

The musical version of "Trilby," which was to be this season's starring vehicle for Fritzi Scheff, is now announced for early production with an unnamed foreign star in the title rôle. "The Love Waltz," with music by O. M. Ziehrer, is to be the vehicle for Ida Brooks Hunt, who was the Nadina in "The Chocolate Soldier" last year. The American book of this piece is by Edgar Smith, and the lyrics by Matt Woodward.

A production in English from Franz Lehar's operetta, "The Men with Two Wives," produced in Vienna last season, is also announced for an early appearance. The American libretto of this piece has been made by Paul M. Potter. "The Girl in the Woods," with music by Victor Herbert and libretto by Rida Johnson Young, librettist of "Naughty Marietta," will also be produced, with Mabel Barrison in the principal part.

Most of these plays will have their first appearances out of town, but will be brought to Broadway as theatres for them become available.

NEXT WEEK'S OPERA BILLS.

Melba's Last Appearance Here This Season on Monday in "La Traviata."

The bills for next week at the Metropolitan Opera House were announced last night, and it is to be observed that the subscribers of that institution will not have an opportunity of hearing "The Girl of the Golden West" at once. However, as no opera is announced for Saturday night, it is probable that the second performance of the work will be presented then.

On Monday night Mme. Melba will make her last appearance here this season in "La Traviata," with Messrs. McCormack and Amato. On Tuesday the company will present "Tannhäuser" in Philadelphia.

Wednesday eevning "Madama Butterfly" will be sung by Miss Farrar and Messrs. Jadlowker and Scotti. Thursday, "Gioconda," sung by Miss Destinn, Mrs. Homer, and Messrs. Caruso and Amato, will be presented. Friday night "Faust" will be sung by Miss Farrar and Messrs. Jadlowker, Gilly, and Rothier; and Saturday afternoon "Tannhäuser," with Miss Morena, Mme. Fremstad, and Messrs. Soomer and Slezak.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Russian Balalaika Orchestra will give another concert next Sunday evening in the New Amsterdam Theatre.

W. T. Carleton, the baritone, will give a song recital to-morrow evening in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria.

Next Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock Harry Rowe Shelley's "Vexilla Regis" will be sung at the Church of the Ascension. The organ will be played by the composer and augmented by an orchestra.

Napoleon Writes:—

(In 1792, as an obscure soldier)

"At the news that the Tuileries were attacked, I started for the Carrousel. Before I had got there, in the rue des Petits Champs, I was passed by a mob of horrible looking fellows parading a head stuck on a pike. Thinking I looked too much of a gentleman, they wanted me to shout Vive La Nation! which I did promptly, as may easily be imagined."

Reveals Napoleon as Never Before

(After his first triumph)

"Paris has a short memory. If I remain longer doing nothing I am lost. After I have been seen three times at the theatre, I shall not be looked at again; I shall therefore not go very frequently."

(To Talleyrand; at the height of his power)

"If the note contains the word ultimatum make him understand that that word means war; if the note does not contain it, get him to put it in on the ground that we must know where we are."

(Of Josephine)

"Josephine is always afraid I may fall seriously in love; she doesn't realize that love was not made for me. For what is love? a passion that leaves the universe on one side, to place the loved one on the other. And surely such an exclusion is not in my character."

New York Pie Baking Co. Uses Only the Best and Purest of Ingredients in the Making of Its Pies

COMMISSIONER FOSDICK DID NOT AND DOES NOT CHARGE THAT THE NEW YORK PIE BAKING CO. USES ANYTHING BUT FRESH EGGS

STATE, CITY and COUNTY of NEW YORK, ss.:

John F. Kohler, being duly sworn, deposes and says: That he is the president of the New York Pie Baking Co. That a great injustice has been done to the said company by the intimation that Commissioner Fosdick charged the New York Pie Baking Co. with using eggs that were not fresh. That Commissioner Fosdick has not and cannot make any such charge. Commissioner Fosdick merely says in his report that the New York Pie Baking Co. was a customer of Bernard Kochman. That the only eggs ever purchased of the said Bernard Kochman by the New York Pie Baking Co. were purchased on June 24, 25, 27, 29 and 30 and July 1, 1910. That the amount so purchased from the said Bernard Kochman was only about one-fifth of the amount used by the New York Pie Baking Co. in the making of its pies on said days. That the said eggs purchased by the New York Pie Baking Co. were fresh eggs and were paid for at fresh egg prices.

Sworn to before me this 6th day of December, 1910.

Talks on Teeth

PROOF

The strongest proof we have of the superiority of Martinolar teeth is the testimony of our pleased patients.

Read the following letter recently received from Mr. Henry Lesinsky, Secretary and Treasurer of the Columbia Typewriter Mfg. Co.:

G. Gordon Martin, Inc.,

New York City.

Gentlemen:—
Having reached the age of seventy-five years, it was not so much my years that oppressed me as the trouble I had with my teeth. I went to my dentist, and the only comfort I received from him was a proposition to insert a bridge or plate or what not, in order to relieve me.

Accidentally I came across your notice in the New York Sun. I read the advertisement several times, and I must confess that I felt skeptical as to the promises you make. Nevertheless, in my distress I thought that I would look you up and investigate for myself.

All this happened some time ago, and I beg leave to state here that in spite of my skepticism I have come to the conclusion that you are certainly the most wonderful dentists known at the present time. What you did for me is not only satisfactory, but it gives me more pleasure than I can express. You relieved me from my distress, and if my testimonial could be worded differently and more ably I would cheerfully make it so.

I shall take every opportunity in advising my friends of the existence of your Company and of your ability to relieve distress, doing away with the old time tortures of the bridge work and the plate.

I remain, gentlemen,
Very respectfully yours,
HENRY LESINSKY.

There is no uncertainty about testimony of this sort, and it should convince you of the superiority of our work.

We invite you to call at our office for a free consultation and examination of your mouth and let us explain what we can do for you.

If you cannot call at once, send for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry."

It is sent free on request.

The reading of this book has brought us patients from everywhere.

LEFT WIFE IN PERSIA TO STUDY BIBLE HERE

BROTHER CHOSE THE BRIDE

Bridegroom Then Only 15—Wife a Lace Weaver Now—American Persian Consul to Take Testimony.

The Persian marriage troubles of the Rev. Dr. Joel Werda, pastor of the West Side Tabernacle, whom the American Bible Society brought to this country nineteen years ago to translate the Bible into the Persian language, will have an international hearing in a few days when the Supreme Court of this county forwards interrogatories concerning the marriage to Gordon Paddock, American Consul at Tabriz, Persia. Mr. Paddock will propound questions to Bishop Dinha of the Christian church of the East in Persia as to whether the Bishop remembers having granted the Rev. Dr. Werda a divorce from his Persian wife.

The Rev. Dr. Werda was married under the Persian law at the age of 15 about twenty-one years ago. Mrs. Werda is now supporting herself as a weaver of Persian laces in Chicago. The couple have not lived together since the American Bible Society brought the Rev. Dr. Werda to this country. The parents of both the Rev. Dr. Werda and Sara Mooshool Werda, his wife, will be examined by the American Consul. On the result of his examination will depend the Supreme Court's decision as to whether the Rev. Dr. Werda should be divorced from his Persian wife or be obliged to support her.

The life story of the Rev. Dr. Werda, as told in papers on file in the Supreme Court, resembles a page from an Oriental romance. His father, though a Persian, was a member of the Christian faith, which has been one of the three recognized religions of Persia for eighteen centuries. The father was a Presbyterian minister and gave his son an excellent education in the College at Urmia, from which the Rev. Dr. Werda graduated when he was 17.

Immediately after his graduation the young man, whose tastes for literature and philosophy were already strongly marked, became editor of a paper called Rays of Light. He achieved sufficient distinction to induce the American Bible Society to open negotiations with him for the translation of the Bible into Persian. It was at this point, according to his deposition in the Supreme Court, that his matrimonial troubles began.

His parents were living at Seer at this time, and his elder brother, Yacob, who was regarded as the head of the family, lived in Tiflis. Young Joel was thunderstruck one day, according to his present deposition, to find that Yacob had, without his knowledge, betrothed him to a very young girl—Sara Mooshool, daughter of Hooda, an Urmian political and social leader; a wealthy man, to be sure, but one whom Joel knew only very slightly.

"My parents and I both resented my brother's act," says Joel in one of his depositions, "but, according to the Persian custom, young people have no will of their own in marriage affairs. They have no voice at all. The will of the parents or oldest immediate relative is the will of the contracting parties."

Some months after the marriage the Rev. Dr. Werda was brought to this country to complete the translation of the Bible. He asked his wife to live with his parents in Persia. He says in his present deposition that she didn't do this, but instead did things which caused him to start divorce proceedings. He adds that he obtained a divorce from her from Bishop Mar-Ar-Goriem of the Eastern Church; but that the Bishop lost the divorce papers subsequently and was afterward assassinated by the Turks in the Christian massacres in Persia in 1901. Mrs. Werda in her counter suit denies that a legal divorce was ever obtained.

The Rev. Dr. Werda says he then obtained another divorce from his wife from Bishop Dinha of Persia. But Mrs. Werda, who is now making lace in Chicago, says she was never served with any divorce papers. This is one of the matters which Consul Paddock will have to look up.

Mrs. Werda came to this country three years ago with a number of other Persians and went to Chicago. The couple have had considerable correspondence, but have not lived together here. Mrs. Werda has started a counter suit, charging non-support and abandonment. She says that the Rev. Dr. Werda refuses to live with her in spite of her frequent requests. She is represented by William R. Hill of 141 Broadway, and the Rev. Dr. Werda is represented by J. Arthur Hilton of 150 Nassau Street.

Besides having translated the Bible into Persian, the Rev. Dr. Werda has translated the Persian Sunhadus, the Persian code of moral laws, into English.

COMPLAIN OF A MAGISTRATE.

Mr. Hylan Angry That This Is Made Public Before Inquiry Is Made.

At a stormy meeting of the Brooklyn Board of Magistrates held in the office of Chief Magistrate Otto G. Kempner in Borough Hall, Brooklyn, yesterday complaints were read by the Presiding Magistrate against Magistrate John F. Hylan of the New Jersey Avenue Court. Magistrate Hylan at once jumped to his feet and indignantly protested against the action of the Chief Magistrate in making public complaints before they had been tested. He also threatened a suit for libel if the charges were made public, and declared that he would hold any newspaper printing such complaints to a strict account.

The Chief Magistrate did not appear to be affected by Mr. Hylan's anger. Following the reading of the complaints they were referred to a special committee of Magistrates for investigation. The committee consists of Magistrates Dooley, Dodd, O'Reilly, Harris, and Kempner. It was said that a report will be made by this committee at the next meeting of board later this month.

The complaints against the accused Magistrate were made in two letters. One from John J. A. Rogers, a lawyer, who asserted that Mrs. Blanche T. Schlitz, one of his clients, had been unnecessarily detained for several hours in the Magistrate's court office. The other letter was sent by Joseph Englander to Mayor Gaynor, who had forwarded it to Chief Magistrate Kempner. Englander complained that Magistrate Hylan had spoken in a "snappy and impolite manner" to the writer's wife when she had occasion to appear before the Magistrate.

Magistrate Hylan denied both accusations and warmly declared that there was no foundation of fact in them. So far as the complaint of Mrs. Schlitz was concerned, he said she came to his office to make an affidavit that she did not wish to have her husband put under bonds to pay her the amount of money he had been adjudged by the courts to pay her. She had previously brought an action against her husband for non-support and abandonment. Magistrate Hylan said that the affidavit was made voluntarily after mandamus proceedings had been instituted compelling him to require Schlitz to give bonds for the payment of this money to his wife. He declared that at no time was the woman detained unnecessarily in his court or office.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Judge Charles S. Cutting allowed to-day Attorney Clarence A. Knight $95,000 fees for his services as counsellor for the estate of the late Charles T. Yerkes and for Louis Owsley, its executor. He had asked $250,000.

W. N. Amory Wants More Money.

Supreme Court Justice Seabury instructed William N. Amory yesterday to put in a bill of particulars in his suit against William M. Ivins. Amory contends that he did not receive sufficient compensation for the expert services he rendered in the matter of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, when Ivins was special counsel for the Public Service Commission.

STATEN ISLANDERS IN A ROW.

A John Doe Secret Hearing Follows Action Against a Physician.

Under a John Doe proceeding a secret hearing was held yesterday by Magistrate Marsh in the Police Court of Stapleton, S. I., to inquire into the facts behind a petition addressed to the Governor by residents of New Dorp, who alleged that there was dangerous automobile speeding in their village and reckless driving in defiance of the law. Residents of Staten Island believe that yesterday's action is only the outcome of a long-continued neighborhood row and it is thought the freely-expressed conviction that several suits for slander might result, together with the prominence of some of the men involved, was responsible for the hearing being closed to spectators and reporters, an unusual proceeding in a Police Court. At the hearing a score of residents of New Dorp testified under oath.

Some time ago a petition was circulated among members of the New Dorp Land Improvement Association, which protested against automobile recklessness, although no local automobile owner was mentioned. The document was signed by twenty-eight members and forwarded to Gov. Hughes prior to his retirement. In due course of time it came to the attention of Gov. White, and was referred by him to the Secretary of State. Mr. Koenig in turn sent it to the New York Police Department, and Capt. Donald Grant of the New Dorp Police Station was ordered to investigate.

Attached to the petition were affidavits from John P. Purcell, E. V. Brandenburg, Alexander Steele, Jr., A. V. Osborn, and William D. Thomsen, in which the responsibility was laid to Dr. John L. Devlin. All of them said he violated the speed law, and the affidavits of Purcell and Brandenburg accused him of driving his machine while under the influence of liquor.

Magistrate Marsh said after the hearing that the men who had signed the petition testified that they were not aware of the existence of the affidavits that were to accompany it, and declined to be responsible for their contents. Some of them testified, the Magistrate said, that if they had known Dr. Devlin was to be accused they would not have signed the petition.

No action was taken as a result of the hearing, as no specific complaint was made to the court. The signers of the affidavits reserved the right through their counsel to make a complaint later. The Magistrate said he would send a copy of the evidence taken to the District Attorney.

Residents of the section say that there is a great deal more to the story, and the attack on Dr. Devlin than was covered by the question brought to court. They said that only a week ago a rumor was circulated late one night that he had driven his automobile against a telegraph pole in an effort to end his life, and failing that had shot himself with a revolver. Capt. Grant admitted yesterday that the circulation of this report had been brought to his official attention. It is believed that the rumors were traced to their source.

NEW LABORATORY FOR CITY.

Will Test Chemical Supplies and Eliminate Graft, Mitchel Says.

At the convention of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, at the Hotel Astor yesterday, John Purroy Mitchel, who welcomed the members of the institute to the city, announced that the city had decided to establish and maintain a fully equipped chemical laboratory for the examination of all chemicals purchased by the city. He said that this laboratory would be governed by a Board of Directors, who would be men of high standing in their profession. Manufacturing chemists have been urging the city for some time to establish such a laboratory. They say that the present laboratories of the city are not equipped to do the work satisfactorily, and that as a result the city often pays dearly for poor material. With such a laboratory as has been suggested manufacturers and chemical engineers say that such a thing as graft or favoritism in the granting of contracts will be impossible.

At the convention yesterday the principal topic discussed was that of chemical engineering education. It was agreed that the course in technical schools and universities should be lengthened from four years to five or six.

In the afternoon the members of the institute visited the plant of Marx & Rawolle in Brooklyn, where they witnessed a new method of distilling glycerine for making dynamite.

The following officers were elected by the conventon: F. W. Frerichs of St. Louis, President; Vice Presidents—Dr. L. H. Baekland, George P. Adamson, and Dr. George C. Olsen. About forty members are attending the convention.

To-morrow the members of the institute will visit and inspect a large plant of the Standard Oil Company.

HAD COUNTERFEIT BILLS.

Stoker on a Liner Trapped by United States Secret Service Men.

With nothing but the smallest kind of a clue to begin on, Richard H. Taylor, Chief of the local branch of the United States Secret Service, with his agents, after a month's work, yesterday arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields, Cesare Paoletti, a stoker in the employ of the Anchor Line of steamships, on a charge of having in his possession counterfeit National banknotes. The arrest of the Italian puts a stop to the circulation of what, according to Chief Taylor, is one of the most dangerous counterfeit $5 notes the Government sleuths have ever discovered.

The arrest of Paoletti was made on Tuesday night in a saloon at West Broadway and Bleecker Street, after a trap had been laid for him by Chief Taylor and his men. Five hundred dollars in the counterfeit bills was found in his possession and he, according to Taylor, acknowledged that he was responsible for the circulation of the bills, which began about a month ago.

Commissioner Shields held the prisoner in $15,000 bail for examination. He could not furnish the necessary bond and was committed to the Tombs. The examination was set down for next Wednesday.

Young Women of Pasadena Refuse to Attend Ball for Mikado's Officers.

PASADENA, Cal., Dec. 7.—Leading society girls of Pasadena have declined to meet the Japanese naval officers, even on the ballroom floor. Upon the arrival of the Japanese training squadron at San Pedro a few days ago, the management of a Pasadena hotel arranged to give a ball for the commander and his officers. The hotel people learned that the young women who would naturally have been invited, would have nothing to do with the function. It was found necessary consequently to call off the ball on short notice to the Japanese Admiral.

Meantime the Admiral had sent out engraved invitations for a return dance on his flagship yesterday. These were not delivered and nobody appeared for the Admiral's ball.

INVITED HER TO RENO, SAYS HIS SUING WIFE

Mrs. F. C. Dale Avers That Dale Advised Her to Join "the Eastern Colony."

CALLED HER "A SIGHT"

He Began "Unique and Varied" Annoyances, She Says, Soon After Their Marriage in 1909.

Lillian P. Dale, daughter of Dr. Frank Patterson of 51 West Fiftieth Street, has brought a suit for separation from her husband, Francis C. Dale, whom she describes as a real estate man, possessed of an income of $30,000 a year. She says she has not seen him since Sept. 3, subsequent to which date he departed for Reno, Nev., and yesterday Supreme Court Justice Bischoff gave her permission to serve her complaint by publication.

The Dales were married on New Year's Day, 1909, and have one child. Only six months of their married life had passed, the wife now asserts, when Dale began the cruelty of which she makes complaint. She sets forth in her papers a long list of grievances, unique and varied annoyances, all of them, according to her contention, but part of his fixed plan to alienate her affections in such a way as to make any subsequent break between them seem to be inspired by her desire rather than by his.

Although she has not seen Dale since early in September, he telephoned her on Oct. 4, she says, bidding her come to the Pennsylvania station in Jersey City, as he was about to take a train for the West. The word did not reach her in time, she says, and later in the month, he wrote her from Reno, suggesting that she and their child join him there. This letter, she says, gave a tempting description of the "very respectable and hospitable people" in the "very substantial Eastern colony" at Reno, a place with a lower cost of living and with plenty of good saddle horses to help her "reduce."

Of the things Dale did that were not to her liking, Mrs. Dale furnishes many examples. On one occasion, when they were bound for a concert at the Hotel Astor, he warned her that if his mother-in-law went along, it would mean a deduction of $10 from her $50 pin money for the following month. When she was ill in March, she says, that he brought a band of amateur musicians to the house, and despite her protests, bade them "play on."

Their home at 145 West Seventy-sixth Street was luxuriously furnished, she says, and comforts were all about them, so that she could see no reason why she should have been sent to board for $7 a week at an uncomfortable Westchester farmhouse during the Summer. He is wealthy and his family is wealthy, but for all that, she says, on Aug. 26 he published a notice in THE NEW YORK TIMES to the effect that he would not be responsible for her debts. He had told her, she says, that it was his intention to leave his property to his sister-in-law, Mrs. Chalmers Dale, and she complains that he took her own jewelry from her strong box in the bank.

He liked to tease her, Mrs. Dale asserts, and persisted in keeping a loaded revolver in the house and an axe hanging on the wall, so that she was nervously afraid that it would fall on her. He was arbitrary, too, and if she disobeyed his order so far as to stay up after 9 o'clock of an evening he would turn off all the lights.

Mrs. Dale recites that she has been called such names as "paid housekeeper" and has been told that she was a "sight," and that she had to endure an accusation of taking money from his pockets, followed by his assurance that if she were a bellboy he would have had her arrested. This was accompanied by his threat that he would go to Europe and take the baby with him, leaving her to follow if she cared to. Over there, she says he explained, he would show her what a husband can do with his wife.

RARE BOOKS IN A SALE.

The Suppressed Life of Lincoln Is Bid Up to $61.50.

A letter of Nathaniel Hawthorne to Charles Sumner, dated Jan. 6, 1849, and referring to a lecture by the latter, brought $30 at Merwin-Clayton's yesterday. Samuel Hopkins's "Historical Memoirs, Relating to the Housatunnuk Indians," 1753, one of the rarest works of New England, sold for $97.50. A copy of "Peter Parley's Universal History on the Basis of Geography," two volumes, 1837, the rare first edition of Nathaniel Hawthorne's book, which he and his sister wrote and compiled, while doing hack work for Goodrich, better known as "Peter Parley," brought $72. An undated letter of Charles Lamb went for $17.

A good copy of the rare suppressed life of Abraham Lincoln by William H. Herndon and Jesse William Weik, brought $61.50, and John Locke Scripps's rare pamphlet, "Life of Abraham Lincoln," consisting of only 32 pages, fetched $17. A rare Mohawk Valley document, dated Sept. 14, 1765, and containing the signatures of sixteen pioneer settlers, including Nicholas Herkimer, who was wounded at the battle of Oriskany, in the American Revolution, and died a few days later, realized $46.

American Pilgrims in Reunion.

The 700 American pilgrims who went round the world on the Cleveland last February, will hold a reunion to be followed by a dinner to-night at the Manhattan Hotel. During the voyage an organization was formed to meet annually in this city to talk over their travel experiences. Dr. D. E. Lorenz, the Secretary, has received letters from over 100 members living in fourteen different States, who have signified their intention of being present.

EQUITABLE UNMUTUALIZED.

No Announcement at the Annual Meeting, Which Is Purely Formal.

The annual meeting of the Equitable Life Assurance Society was held yesterday, and passed without incident other than the re-election of all Directors whose terms expired this year. No announcement was made regarding any plans of J. P. Morgan for the mutualization of the society, nor was it indicated how much more time would elapse before Mr. Morgan's purpose in respect to the majority stock he owns will be made known.

Seven of the Directors re-elected yesterday are representatives of the policy holders, and six were elected as representatives of the stockholders, in addition to two re-elected to fill vacancies. The amendment to the charter of the society effected after the life insurance investigation provides that twenty-eight out of the fifty-two Directors shall be elected as representatives of the policy holders, and twenty-four only as the represntatives of the stockholders. for the last four years, however, the policy-holders have accepted the names proposed by the Voting Trustees, and have not actively participated in any of the recent elections, the administration ticket being accepted annually without contest.

The seven Directors re-elected as the representatives of the policy holders are Thomas Spratt, Eben B. Thomas, J. Edward Swanstrom, Wallace L. Pierce, Thomas A. Gillespie, Eugenius H. Outerbridge, and Willis F. McCook. Those re-elected by the stockholedrs are Gage. E. Tarbell, A. De Navarro, Paul Morton, T. De Witt Cuyler, L. P. Morton, W. C. Redfield, W. C. Van Horne, and W. A. Day.

At the stockholders' meeting 735 shares were represented, including the 502 shares owned by Mr. Morgan, which constitute a majority of the society's $100,000 of stock. This stock still stands in the names of George Westinghouse and ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, the surviving Voting Trustees, who relinquished control of the stock to Mr. Morgan at the termination on June 15 last of the first five-year period of the voting trust established by Thomas F. Ryan. Both Mr. Westinghouse and Judge O'Brien attended yesterday's meeting, and in person voted the majority stock of the society.

At the office of Morgan & Co. it was said that no announcement was to be made at this time regarding the Equitable Life or the proposed mutualization of the society.

WOMEN TO PROTECT WORKERS

Their Trades Union League Will Take Up Conditions in Factories.

The Woman's Trades Union League of this city announced yesterday that it had passed a resolution of sympathy for the families of the twenty-five working girls who lost their lives in the recent factory fire in Newark. The organization will also take immediate steps in connection with other labor organizations in respect to fire protection in the factories of New York. In its resolution the union says that the loss of life in Newark was "due to greed of factory owners and criminal negligence on the part of the proper authorities in permitting the maintenance of such firetraps and exposing the lives of working people to unnecessary danger."

At the union rooms it was said yesterday that in New York there are 1,000 or more factories where in case of fire loss of life would be almost inevitable. The laws in regard to doors opening out and fire escapes, the league members say, are indefinite, being modified as a rule with the expression "where practicable," and leaving much to the discretion of the Inspectors. With only fifty-three of these in the entire State, they say, the force is inadequate to perform the work demanded of it.

"There are many factories," said a member of the league, "where the girls are locked in, where the halls are dark and the windows barred."

The Central Labor Union of Brooklyn, the Federated Union of New York, and the Labor Council of the Bronx will cooperate with the woman's league. Members of all the unions will be asked to investigate the conditions at the different factories at which they are employed and report conditions. A summary of the laws will be printed and given to them that they may know what the law covers, and as a standard by which to measure their own facts.

TRADE SCHOOL WORK ON VIEW

Many Visitors at the Manhattan's "Open Day" Make Purchases.

It was "Open Day" at the Manhattan Trade School, 209-213 East Twenty-third Street, and all the friends of the school were asked to come and see the good work the girls are doing in fitting themselves to earn their livelihood at different trades, and to buy the pretty underwear and fancy work that they sell for the benefit of the school. Those things are always on hand, for the girls do real work while they are learning, under competent instructors, and there is not much in the way of needlework that they cannot do, even to the making of handsome gowns and hats.

How to Get South American Trade.

Charles H. Sherrill, United States Minister to the Argentine Republic, yesterday told the members of the National Association of Manufacturers what the opportunities are for increasing the volume of trade between this country and Argentina and outlined the chief obstacles to be overcome. He advised the manufacturers to get together and work for a settlement of the tariff question and the establishment of an American merchant marine. Mr. Sherrill's speech was virtually a repetition of the address he made before the Chamber of Commerce last week.

EATS 32 QUAIL IN 32 DAYS.

Chicagoan Thereby Wins $700—Will Bet $1,000 He Can Eat 32 More.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—George Razakles ate the last bit of a broiled quail, sipped the last drop of a quart of champagne, pushed back his chair, smiled and gazed about at other diners at a downtown restaurant last night. Razakles had gone through this same programme for thirty-one nights preceding.

The accomplishment of his thirty-second meal of quail and wine in an equal number of nights made him the winner of a $700 wager.

"Now I will bet $1,000 that I can eat thirty-two more quail in the next thirty-two nights," Razakles said.

"You couldn't bet with me on any proposition," said the proprietor of the restaurant, at whose expense the quail and wine were served.

OVERCOAT A SNARE FOR A SWINDLER

Detectives Identify a "Count" Wanted in Germany for a Big Jewel Fraud.

CATCH HIM IN THE SUBWAY

Recover Some of the Plunder, but Most of It Is Gone with a Confederate Who Escaped.

None of the score of persons who might have seen two large men pursue another dressed in the extreme of oversea fashion out of a Subway train at the Times Square station yesterday afternoon, and holding a low-voiced conversation with him when they caught up with him, guessed that two Central Office detectives were putting an end to the activities of an international jewel thief and swindler, who had been sought in this city for three weeks on a cable request of the German Government.

But right there on the platform the prisoner admitted that he was the "Don Cirillo José de Elerduy" whom the police had been looking for, and later, according to information given out at Headquarters, gave the detectives, who had been working on the case for a week, clues that enabled them to recover some of the stolen jewelry. The prisoner is said also to have made a confession.

Another man is implicated in the theft, according to the cablegrams which were received several weeks ago from Germany, and the adventures of the pair read like exciting pages from a ten-cent "thriller." Not only was their latest robbery one of the most audacious and seemingly impossible swindles, but developments have since arisen which indicate that a short time ago the second man, whose name is given in a jewelry trade magazine as Emil Becker, quietly collected all the pair's plunder and decamped.

Cirilio Elerduy, which the police believe is the prisoner's real name, was left in New York with no money and could not escape, although he knew the police were hunting him.

Last August Becker and Elerduy met in the Café Richelieu in Paris. They formed a partnership there and immediately went to Munich. Becker is an art connoisseur, and it was not long before, strolling through some of the public art galleries, he made the acquaintance of some painters, whom he impressed by his apparent culture. He introduced Elerduy as a rich Mexican planter, the latter assuming the title of count and calling himself Don Cirilio José de Elerduy. Becker posed as his private secretary.

Through some of these acquaintances they got a letter of introduction to Otto Koch, court jeweler at Frankfort. Becker saw him and told him that his employer would like him to come to Munich, bringing some of his choicest jewels with him. The jeweler made the trip and, impressed by the style in which they lived at the Hotel Bayrischerhof, parted, with gems worth $28,400 for a check on a bank in Wiesbaden. This was on Sept. 10. Elerduy convinced the dealer in some way that he had a large account in the Bank of France. By the time the jeweler had discovered that the check was worthless, the swindlers had disappeared.

The German authorities found that this was not the only swindle in which Elerduy had participated. A description of the two men was prepared and sent to this country, where it was believed they had fled, by way of Mexico. Elerduy has been in New York about three weeks. The detectives here got their first clue by tracing some of the stolen jewelry. By this means they learned the section of the city in which he lived and began a systematic search.

The real clue to his identity was furnished by a peculiar overcoat which he wore. The sleuths were in a Subway train on Tuesday night when they saw a man wearing a green coat which was unlike any other they had ever seen in color and cut. They watched the man, and he seemed to fit the description of the one they were looking for. A finger on his left hand was shortened, according to the cabled description, and their tried to identify him by this means, but he kept his hand gloved. They followed him to a house in West Eighty-fifth Street. Late yesterday afternoon their quarry came out, wearing the same coat. They followed him on the Subway, and just before reaching Times Square station he removed his glove. The deformed finger added the last detail, and as he was getting off they arrested him.

The prisoner lived at 134 West Eighty-fifth Street, under the name of Denvaire, and was also known as Stefano. There he had a companion named Anderson. The latter answers the descsription of Becker. Becker disappeared about two weeks ago, and "Denvaire" soon after complained that he had gone after cashing a check for $5,000, which he had indorsed over to him, expectin to receive half of it.

Elerduy told the detectives that he had a wife and children living in California.

WIFE, ALONE, A SUICIDE.

Mrs. Alice Hoffman, Separated from Her Husband, Shoots Herself.

Mrs. Alice Hoffman, 37 years old, committed suicide yesterday by shooting herself in the head with a revolver in a furnished room at 38 West Sixty-fifth Street. She had been separated from her husband, Michael Hoffman, who is living with their two children at Nanuet, Rockland County, N. Y. Ill health, due to nervous breakdown, caused her to take her life, according to the police.

Mrs. Hoffman rented a front room from Mrs. Ellen Brown at the Sixty-fifth Street house about a month ago. Mrs. Brown and the other roomers knew little about her, except that on one occasion she told them that another woman had come between her and her husband.

Three letters were found on the bureau, one addressed to her husband, and the others to her sisters, one of whom is a housekeeper for the Rev. J. P. Lonergan, of Mount Kisco. Bankbooks in the room showed that Mrs. Hoffman had about $5,000 on deposit here.

BURGLAR IN HOUSE, 'PHONEDFORHUSBAND

He Got Mrs. Colburn's Alarming Message at the Leslie M. Shaw Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

AN HOUR GETTING HOME

Neighbor and Two Policemen Find That the Thief Had Escaped Through the Basement.

Harrison S. Colburn, Vice President of the Flatbush Trust Company, left his wife and two small children alone in his home at 807 East Eighteenth Street, Brooklyn, last night and came over to Manhattan to listen to the address which Leslie M. Shaw, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, delivered at the West Side Y. M. C. A. in West Fifty-seventh Street.

While Mr. Colburn was listening with great attention to Mr. Shaw's address, an excited Y. M. C. A. Secretary ran into the big auditorium, elbowed his way through the crowd, hurried down to the place where Mr. Colburn was sitting, and told him in an excited whisper that Mrs. Colburn had just caught a burglar in the act of ransacking the house, that she had cornered him in the basement, and wanted Mr. Colburn to hurry home and put the burglar out.

The Colemans live in a detached house on a fifty-four foot lot. There are neighbors nearby and Mr. Colburn thought he was quite safe in leaving them. He is a member of the West Side Y. M. C. A.'s Educational Committee and Board of Management, and felt that his presence last night was necessary. Mr. Shaw had almost reached the conclusion of his address when the Secretary got to Mr. Colburn's ear. Here is the message he got in a stage whisper:

"Your wife telephones that she has just discovered a burglar ransacking your parlor. She has chased him into the basement, and says you must come back home immediately and do something."

Waiting to hear no more Mr. Colburn grabbed his hat and overcoat, and made for the door. The audience in more distant parts of the big auditorium not having heard the whisper thought their Educational Committeeman had been taken sudenly ill.

It is about an hour's journey from West Fifty-seventh Street, Manhattan, to East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush, and Mr. Colburn realized that his wife could hardly be expected to keep the burglar in the basement single-handed all that time. So he telephoned to Robert Emmett Lennon, a concert singer, who lives at 779 Argyle Road, three blocks from the Colburn residence. Mr. Lennon was already in bed, but dressing hastily he ran over to the Colburn house. Mrs. Colburn met him at the door. She was slightly hysterical, Mr. Lennon said afterward.

"I was sitting in my room on the second floor when I heard a noise in the parlor and went down stairs," she told him. "I lit the gas in the parlor and saw a burglar in the dining room. He was a big man, and well dressed. He wore one of those fashionable fuzzy soft hats. I ran after him till I heard the door leading to the basement click after him. Then I got to the telephone and called up the Fifty-seventh Street Young Men's Christian Association, where I knew m yhusbaud was."

Mr. Lennon had picked up two mounted policemen on the way over, and the three men searched the Colburn basement. They only found the basement outer door open and a man's tracks toward the back lots through the snow.

When Mr. Colburn reached the house the excitement had entirely subsided. Mrs. Colburn says she didn't call for help from the neighbors because she didn't want to frighten her children, who were sleeping on an upper floor.

FAVOR CUT IN STEEL PRICES.

Mandate of Trust Ignored by Independents, Who Call a Conference.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Dec. 7.—A meeting of the sheet steel manufacturers of the country, including combine and independents, has been called for to-morrow afternoon in this city, at which it is presumed sheet prices will be discussed. The call was issued by James A. Campbell, President of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company, Chairman of the Sheet Branch of the Iron and Steel Institute of America, whose company is one of the largest independent producers in this region.

It is considered doubtful whether the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, the Steel Corporation's subsidiary, will enter the conference. The general meeting of representatives of the combine and independent iron and steel producers in New York a week ago was called by Judge Gary, as Chairman of the Iron and Steel Institute, and affirmed Judge Gary's previously announced stand that "present prices are fair and reasonable, and will not be lowered."

From the combine's point of view, the verdict of last week was the last word on steel prices, and the fact that the meeting to-morrow is called by an independent manufacturer, who is Chairman of one division of the institute, is taken to indicate that the interests that favor concessions in prices are preparing to ignore the Steel Corporation's mandate. Three independent sheet steel producers in Western territory are known to be shading the official list fixed by the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company.

THE BALLINGER REPORT.

In their report vindicating Secretary BALLINGER, the majority of the members of the Congressional Committee make a recommendation of great wisdom and propriety. Having no doubt that the Commissioner of the General Land Office would render a fair and impartial decision in respect to the Cunningham coal land entries, the majority of the committee nevertheless recommend that "a law be enacted for the transfer of these and any other cases involving claims to Alaskan coal lands to an appropriate court for a hearing and a decision." In the beginning the Mexican War was called "Polk's War." President POLK promptly transferred the matter to Congress, and, when Congress acted, it became the people's war.

The Cunningham entries have become the subject of bitter controversy. Though the decision made by the Executive Department of the Government should be wholly just and in accordance with law, the controversy would continue. The partisans of GLAVIS, of GARFIELD, and of PINCHOT would not let it die. It is better in every way that Congress should assume the responsibility, that a court of law should give the final determination. The majority of the committee also recommend, as the President recommended in his message, that to prevent the monopolization of coal lands and to assure the people who now own them the benefit of increment in value, the Government retain title and permit the operation of the mines by leases for limited periods upon payment of fair royalties. This is certainly a way out, and probably the best way out. At all events, some way must be found to make these coal supplies available for consumption. It is not a good Government policy to force the people of Alaska and the Pacific Coast to pay $12 a ton for coal when an abundant supply of the fuel could be had at a third of that price if mining were permitted. Conservation does not mean denial of use.

The conclusion of the committee that "the evidence has wholly failed to make out a case against Secretary BALLINGER," is what the public has expected. It declares that the facts put together exhibit Mr. BALLINGER as being "a competent and honorable gentleman, honestly and faithfully performing the duties of his high office with an eye single to the public interest." Mr. GLAVIS, indeed, admitted on the stand that he knew of no act of the Secretary on which could be based an impeachment of his honesty or of his faithfulness in discharging his public duties. The controversy originally grew out of what Mr. VERTREES in his argument described as an honest difference of opinion in respect to conservation policies. But the dispute soon became a heated one, and took on a decidedly political aspect. It became evident that a desire to enforce a sound conservation policy was not the sole motive of the attack upon Mr. BALLINGER. The aim plainly was to discredit him, and through him the Administration. The committee points out that Mr. GARFIELD's wholesale withdrawals of public lands while he was Secretary of the Interior were ordered only after "he had ascertained that he would not be retained under President TAFT."

The quarrel in its essence was a clash between the Roosevelt-Garfield-Pinchot-Glavis conservation policy and the policy of the present Administration in respect to the National resources. The resentments of the prosecutors vitiated their case, vitiated their evidence. In the excess of their zeal and of their anger they charged what they could not prove, and brought down upon themselves the rebuke of this majority report. Men in that temper, of course, will not be very well satisfied with the finding against them. But the country, we are confident, will accept as a just finding upon the evidence the report signed by the majority of the committee.

USERS OF CIGARETTES.

The managers of the great railway systems have long insisted that their employés abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors. Now it is announced that the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad is discharging those of its men whose "yellow fingers" betray their addiction to the habit of smoking cigarettes. Beginning with this month, no more cigarette smokers will be employed.

The report, just published, of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue shows that the use of tobacco in all forms is largely increasing in this country, and that 7,000,000,000 cigarettes were smoked in the year ended last June, a billion more than in 1909. The Santa Fé Railroad does not prohibit the use of cigars or of pipes by its men. The company believes these are not so injurious as cigarettes. But we doubt whether it has any scientific confirmation of this belief.

Separate investigations have been conducted by medical examiners at the Universities of Michigan, Cambridge, Yale, at Clark College, and at the Henry Phipps Institute, which show that the use of tobacco by adolescents is injurious, but that healthy and mature men suffer no measurable ill-effects from a moderate indulgence. But any person may use tobacco excessively; some have a physical idiosyncrasy against tobacco, and some suffer from nervous affections that are made graver by its use. Moreover, the tests of college students show that tobacco users may be subject to habits of idleness and inattention to their duties. It is worthy of note that a great public service corporation should issue a denying ordinance against them. To be sure that is in the West, where the prejudice against cigarettes has found expression in several State prohibition laws. The Eastern railroad companies have not deemed it worth while to follow the Santa Fé's example.

NOT IN THIS GENERATION.

The Secretary of War is of the opinion that the administration of the Philippines cannot be turned over to the natives "within the time of the present generation," and that it is wrong to encourage the delusion that such a change can be made.

He is quite right. Nor is there any real sentiment among the Filipinos that such a change shall immediately and completely be made. There is a good deal of talk in regard to "independence" and self-government. But actual independence no one seems to want. The most advanced of the native politicians want only independence with a guarantee from the United States which, clearly, is not independence at all. We should be criminally foolish to make any such arrangement, by which all responsibility would be ours and all the power go to the natives, whose quarrels we should have to fight.

As for self-government, our policy is to extend it gradually if the natives show capacity for it. So far the showing is not very good. Neither is it wholly bad. We can only continue our present policy of experiment and encouragement.

NEXT YEAR'S BUDGET.

The irresponsible and even reckless manner in which our billion-dollar country manages its finances is well illustrated by the tables accompanying the President's statement of the results of his efforts for economy. The departments whose estimates come within a million dollars of the appropriations are exceptions. There are several departments whose actual and realised budgets vary from ten millions of dollars to twenty millions. The achievement of the President in reducing the estimates this year by $52,964,887 is praiseworthy as an effort at economy, but the hugeness of the figures attests of itself the wildness of the National finances. Admirable as the attempt is experience teaches us not to be too hopeful of the success of the effort. The increase of the Panama Canal estimates by nineteen millions is something which cannot be criticised, since the Nation is committed to this work whatever the expense, and no money which is well spent in hastening the enjoyment of what has already been spent should be grudged. Offsetting this increase against the decrease first named the estimates are $33,899,089 smaller than last year. But last year's estimates were smaller than the appropriations by $36,081,733. Therefore we are fairly warned that unless the Congress watches the appropriations as closely as the President watched the estimates his labors will have been wasted.

These estimates are information for the use of Congress, not instructions for anybody, despite the President's energetic words. We call our heads of departments Secretaries, but they are assistants to the President, not to those who make the appropriations. Nothing could be more detached than the frame of mind in which the makers of these estimates observe their neglect by those who receive them, and then do as they please about appropriating less or more. There is no responsibility for the accuracy of the estimates or for the solvency of the budget. It is a happy chance when the Nation has a surplus, and nobody seems to think it of much consequence whether or not there is a deficiency. So far as there is any responsibility it rests in the committees which make the appropriations. The Appropriations Committee reports six of the large bills, but there are six or seven other committees authorized to report bills calling for the expenditure of money. And the committee which raises the money is independent of the committees which spend it. Each committee is responsible only for its own acts, and there is no central responsibility for the aggregate of either income or outgo. Moreover, the Senate is as independent of the House as the House committees are of one another.

It has been so from the beginning. Perhaps a different custom might have been established if HAMILTON had lived to make good his desire that the Secretary should be a Chancellor of the Exchequer. But, in the words of Mr. CORTELYOU when Secretary, > it lies within the sphere of the Treasury Department to call the attention of Congress to the estimated income and the estimated outgo for the coming year; but no authority exists—except in the veto power of the President—to bring the one within the limits of the other.

There is said to be neither constitutional warrant nor prohibition for such qualified veto power. That there is need for such discretionary power is impossible to deny, considering the sort of River and Harbor bill that President TAFT signed under protest, declaring that he would not sign another like it. It would have done more good than harm if he had vetoed it bodily. It would have been an unblemished good if he had been empowered to veto items in the manner followed by the Governors of thirty States. As it is we can only hope that something may result from the labors of the Senate Committee on Expenditures which is now considering "the relations between expenditures and revenues, and possible improvements in government methods." Also there is some hope of result from the provision in the last Sundry Civil bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to call the President's attention to any excess of expenditures over revenues.

Next year there is an anticipated surplus of some fifty millions, which may be turned into a deficit of seven millions, more or less, according to the expenditures in constructing and fortifying the Panama Canal. The greatest contribution to the nominal surplus is the absence of any deficiency estimate for the Post Office. Last year the Post Office was $10,000,000 short in its revenues. This welcome gain is rather an example of efficiency and prosperity than economy. The increases and decreases in the other departments so nearly balance that the absence of the Post Office deficiency accounts for the larger part of the reduction in the estimates compared with last year's estimates.

PROGRESS OF THE MERIT SYSTEM

Next week the Civil Service Reform League will hold its thirtieth annual meeting in Baltimore. It is significant that the subject of greatest importance that will come before it is the problem of promotion within those branches of the service to which the merit system has, under the law of 1883, been applied. It is no longer a question of defending the system against the assaults of the spoilsmen, nor is it primarily a question of extending the system that the league has to consider; it is the question of developing and perfecting the system now firmly grounded in the general approval of the public.

Three decades is not a long time in the history of a nation for the achievement of such a result. Certainly few of the energetic and courageous men who organized the movement in 1880, active and practical workers in political life, as most of them were, familiar with the extent and force of the spoils nuisance, hoped for such rapid progress. Least of all did they dare to expect that within so short a time the President of the United States would be found urging on Congress the application of the principle of the system to the Diplomatic and Consular Service, and the elimination of the Senate's consent to the appointment of the higher grades of Postmasters and the extension of the merit system to the entire Postal Service. The gifted and noble leaders of the movement who have passed away—CURTIS, EATON, SCHURZ—who labored with infinite fidelity, patience and skill to win to their cause the intelligence and conscience of the American people, builded even more strongly than they knew; the structure to which they gave their unselfish service is their enduring monument.

There is a peculiar interest attaching to the latest recommendation of President TAFT for the inclusion of the upper grades of Postmasters in the merit system. These are practically the only remaining offices of importance now openly within the influence of the party politicians, the most valuable of the prizes left to the spoilsmen. Even on these the grip of the spoilsmen has been loosened by the popular demand for efficiency. Mr. CLEVELAND, in his first term, having an instinctive disgust for unbusinesslike administration, initiated the policy of keeping good Postmasters in office until the end of their terms, regardless of politics. Gradually as the value of the merit system has been tested in practice many of the larger offices have been put in charge of men who entered the service on competition and have shown their capacity, as is the case, for instance, in New York. But there still remain numbers of offices filled wholly for political motives, and they are an important asset in the place-mongering of the cheaper Senators. When Mr. TAFT proposes to take them off the "bargain counter" and to bring them under business principles, he is not only himself taking a long step in advance, but he is supported in and incited to that step by the most practiced politician in his Cabinet, Postmaster-General HITCHCOCK.

There is only one explanation of Mr. HITCHCOCK's course in regard to the merit system. He has had it demonstrated to him by intimate experience that the interference of place-hunting and place-trafficking politicians in his department is a fatal obstacle to the efficiency and economy he wishes to establish there. It is probable, also, that Mr. HITCHCOCK has reached the conclusion that the patronage of his department is not worth much to the party in power. It has value in getting delegates, but it does more harm than good in elections. He must have had his misgivings when Mr. TAFT used that patronage to fight the Insurgents in Congress, and the President himself cannot look back on that experiment with much satisfaction. The experience of these gentlemen in "practical politics" is not singular. More and more politicians who have wanted to do good work in their offices have found the spoils in their way, and, on the other hand, have seen the futility of the spoils in elections where popular sentiment was really kindled. But the action of the President and the Postmaster General in extending the merit system as far as they could and the urgent recommendation of Mr. TAFT that the law be changed to permit its complete application show how great and substantial the progress of the reform has been. Nothing is likely to be done at this session, but the stakes are driven well ahead for the next advance.

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY.

The American Academy of Arts and Letters, composed normally of fifty members, begins to-day its joint meeting at The New Theatre with the National Institute of Arts and Letters, its parent body, which is composed of 350 members. The Academy will choose eleven new members from the Institute to take the places of those whom it has recently lost by death. Doubtless these new members will represent to the country much that has been accomplished in literature, music, painting, sculpture, and architecture. But is the American Academy itself stronger than the strength of its individual members? Have they, in the twelve years of their collective existence, accomplished more than they would have accomplished severally without an Academy?

Mr. HOWELLS, President of the American Academy, has said that the French Academy "is the first of the august companies" with which his institution "would wish not to claim kindred or to challenge comparison." With what company, then, is it kindred or comparable? The French Academy is at least a noble anachronism of an autocratic age. This is a democratic age, an age of competition or of regulated monopoly. By what rules imposed from without is the American Academy regulated, or how does it foster competition in arts and letters? SIMONIDES Melicertes competed for many prizes offered by the Athenian democracy, winning his fifty-seventh lyrical triumph at eighty. There is at least one American Academician older than SIMONIDES who is still mentally vigorous, and many who are younger.

But the members of the Academy have never, we believe, entered into competitions with each other or with anybody else. Why should not tenure of membership in the Academy depend upon future as well as past achievements?

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Failure Truly Fortunate.

To rejoice in a neighbor's misadventure would of course be most unseemly, but recognition of that truth need not inhibit a frank confession that we hear without intolerable pain the news that the hopes entertained by the builders of the dreadful tower confronting our southern windows have not crystallized into profits, and that in all probability the ugly thing will soon be taken down.

It would be pleasant to think that the apparent failure of this venture was due to the pressure of an adverse public opinion—that the advertisers who have not advertised on the vertiginous walls of the Heidelberg Tower refrained from doing so either because of their own aesthetic enlightenment or even because they were judiciously cautious about exploiting their wares in a way that would shock the finer sensibilities of New York and its visitors. The odds against the accuracy of any such explanation as that, however, are too great for us to entertain it with seriousness.

Certainly, or almost certainly, the vertiginous walls have remained bare of flaming and glaring proclamations for no reasons of sentiment, out of no regard for civic and architectural proprieties, but simply because, after viewing this "proposition," the men to whom it was addressed came to the conclusion that it wouldn't pay to put big and expensive signs where only a few people at a time would or could see them, and where they would be so high up and so far away that the reading of what was written thereon would be difficult or impossible. Thus were we—meaning the city—saved, if we are saved. But the why of it, after all, is a matter of small importance compared with the fact, and perhaps by the time this lesson has been forgotten and somebody else yearns to enter upon a similarly desecrative speculation, means will have been devised and authority conferred to prevent the carrying out of it.

We would not dare to suggest that whoever purposes to erect a building in this city should have to prove to a competent board his intention to make it architecturally creditable, or at least not architecturally discreditable, to a civilized community, just as now he has to prove that it will not fall down or be too much of a firetrap. Yet that is what we shall come to, some day, for they have already come to it in not a few foreign cities—with most admirable results.

Naming a Street.

Judging from the letters that are coming to us in regard to giving 125th Street a name more significant and distinctive than a mere numeral can be, there is some approach to general approval of the plan. For the letters are many, and every one of them has admitted, expressly or tacitly, that this street, being in many and important ways unlike all the other east and west streets in its region, should have a name which does not do its best to level it with the rest.

And suggestions as to what the new name should be are arriving with every letter. None of them shows any very great ingenuity—none of them manifests the high nominative faculty which gave Broadway its ideally perfect title, at once simple, inevitable, and adequate for all needs of all time. Still, some of the names proposed are not at all bad, and what at present seems to us the best of them—"Harlem Avenue"—has imposed itself upon the preference of a majority of the nominators. That is unquestionably a good name.

The street really is an avenue, rather than a boulevard, though the distinction between the two, wide as it is in derivation, is rather vague in usage, and of course "Harlem" has historic warrant in addition to being at once short and euphonious. "Haarlem" is a spelling that has its charms, but the word in that shape would not really be any more a reminder of the past than in the shortened form, and the more magnificent and well known the street becomes, the more of a burden would the writing of the long-since superfluous "a" inflict upon the innumerable generations of man.

Of all the offerings that have been made, "North Broadway" is quite the worst, and it cannot be entertained for a moment. "Harlem High Street" has the merit of picturesqueness, but it would hardly do on account of its length. Possibly—just possibly—in a map of Holland's Haarlem a suggestion of something even better than "Harlem Avenue" might be found.

If it be true, as seems to be the case, that the people of the city, and especially of that part of the city, want a new name for 125th Street, they ought to have one, and they will have no trouble in getting it if they speak out and make their wishes known. The Aldermen always strive to please—in such matters as that.

It Looks Highly Disrespectful.

For the custom of reading Presidential messages aloud in the chambers of the two houses of Congress there is explanation, indeed, in the fact that "it has always been done," but that is hardly a sufficient excuse for keeping up the practice now that it has degenerated into what, in all except exceptional cases, is a perfectly empty formality, neither dignified nor respectful.

When the Senators and Representatives have on their desks printed copies of a message it is no wonder that they pay little attention to the clerk who reads the document at a galloping speed. They prefer to do—for that matter, must do—the reading for themselves to get at exactly what the President says and means on any subject that particularly interests them. The result is that they do not listen, not because they are indifferent to the advice and suggestions the message contains, but because listening is very largely a waste of time and a trial of patience.

But their conversations, their walking about, their departures one after another till the chamber is almost empty—these things have all the semblance of disrespect. Doubtless the President understands, but all the same he must be a little hurt by the apparent discourtesy, and to the observing stranger in the gallery the spectacle usually presented during the reading of a long Presidential message must be distinctly shocking—when it does not excite cynical and derisive amusement.

The practice should be reformed or abandoned.

FROM PROF. MUNSTERBERG.

A Contradiction of Allegations That the Kaiser Was Cool to Him.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read to-day for the first time with a mixture of amusement and disgust the special cablegrams to THE NEW YORK TIMES which appeared on Nov. 11 and 12, concerning the Emperor's maltreatment of me on the occasion of my inaugural address at Berlin University. My feelings referred alike to the sensational story of the first day and to the lame rectifications of the second day. I was amused at the grotesque imagination which invented alarming cable news out of nothing, and disgusted with the way in which American public opinion has been here as so often wilfully misled for purposes which the reader cannot imagine.

Not a single German newspaper noticed any coolness on the part of the Emperor, nor did I feel anything but the unusual cordiality and heartiness of the way in which the Emperor treated me on this, as on every other occasion. After my lecture he talked with me first, and when he turned to Prof. Smith the Empress spoke to me. Moreover, afterward he turned once more to me, and we had another long talk. If there was anything marked in the contrast, it was that he naturally treated Mr. Smith with the formality with which a newcomer is welcomed, and me with the cordiality with which he had talked with me on previous occasions and which made the conversation turn at once to intimate subjects.

Your correspondent noticed that the Emperor spoke with me only one minute. The fact is that we spoke about the details of the American elections, then about a message which I brought him from President Taft, then about the Amerika-Institut, then about the Germanic Museum at Harvard, then about German-Americans in general, and then about my lectures in Berlin. We must at least have talked very rapidly, if all that was discussed in one minute. However, the most amusing story is that the Emperor's coolness was to indicate disapproval of my address itself. If there was anything which was at all strongly marked and visible to everyone, it was the absolutely unusual act of the Emperor in applauding eagerly, at the close of my address, the important sentences of which he, anyhow, accented by nodding.

This applause of the Emperor was the one thing which was commented upon everywhere. Besides that he also orally expressed to me his great pleasure in all that I had said. To give to the story a dramatic close, the correspondent finally states that I introduced my wife and daughters to the Emperor personally, instead of waiting for this function to be performed by the Empress's chief lady-in-waiting. The fact is that the Emperor asked me to make him acquainted with my family, with whom he spoke in a most cordial way, as the Empress had already done.

The motives which led to these silly fabrications by some malicious reporters are quite well known here in Berlin, and the continuous efforts to boom the Roosevelt professor and to crush the Harvard exchange professor have for a long time excited amusement. My philosophic lectures in the university are attended by more than 600 students, an entirely unprecedented number; the Amerika-Institut, which is the real centre of the trouble, because it has been entrusted to a Harvard man, is growing rapidly under my direction, and is realizing all the hopes with which I had undertaken the great work; the Emperor, the Government, and the university colleagues are without exception showing every possible kindness and courtesy; in short, everything is far beyond my keenest anticipations. Hence I can see without alarm the absurd fabrications of the petty little group which will certainly continue to bring many a story about my failures to the patient American reader. In this month's McClure's Magazine I have an article about "The Case of the Reporter." I trust that before my exchange year is over, I may have quite nice material to tell as its continuation, "The Case of the Foreign Reporter."

PHYSICAL TRAINING IN SCHOOL

To Drop It Would Increase Tuberculosis, Says Doctor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been asked to express an opinion on the curtailing by the Board of Estimate of the general appropriation for special subjects to be taught in school. I understand that one of the subjects which the board intends to suppress is physical training. I am sure that the estimable gentlemen composing the board, if they have decided upon so deplorable a measure, will withdraw their decision when they will have learned from one who has been a worker in the tuberculosis field for the period of a quarter of a century that physical training in school means the prevention of tuberculosis plain and simple. There is no substitute for this kind of exercise, and if physical training in our public schools is done away with it will simply mean an increased number of the tuberculous among children and adults.

Tuberculosis is preventable and curable. Proper physical exercises in a child predisposed to tuberculosis or already slightly afflicted will often do wonders toward making of such a child a strong, vigorous man or woman. Tuberculosis is most curable during the earlier stages, particularly in childhood. In autopsies on individuals dead from accidents one can often see healed lesions of a former tuberculosis. The healing of such tuberculous lesions takes place most frequently during the time when the child has the greatest amount of freedom, outdoor play, and least anxiety. Child labor in factory or at home or too much confining school work are productive of tuberculosis in childhood. If something has to be curtailed let us curtail branches which demand indoor life and sitting still, but not those which encourage outdoor life and physical development by judicious exercise. The study of modern languages—German, French, Spanish, and Italian—are of value and often make a good asset in the career of a young man or woman, but one can learn languages in after years, while it is difficult to develop a vigorous constitution later in life when the physical development has been interfered with during childhood.

If the present Board of Estimate thinks it will save money by considering physical training in the public schools as superfluous, I will make the prophecy that a future board will, as a result of this present false economy, have to appropriate more money for the treatment and care of consumptives.

I sincerely hope and trust that the Board of Apportionment will carefully weigh these arguments before allowing itself to be led into the belief that it is doing its duty to the taxpayers by thus cutting down school expenses. It is the worst economy conceivable to endanger the growth, the better physical, and I say it with due deliberation, also the better moral development of the future generation. Physical exercise and outdoor sport make boys and girls less selfish and more friendly toward each other. That is the moral benefit derived from physical exercises.

That the health of the school child as such is improved by judicious physical exercise no reasonable being will deny, and with a little calculation one can also see that to maintain the health of the child, to prevent it by means of physical development from becoming a tuberculous invalid or nervous wreck, must be a financial benefit to the community in the end. If you must curtail, curtail languages and drawing, but don't curtail physical exercises, or cooking, or singing. All three are essential to the physical development. Singing, particularly in the open air or in well-ventilated classrooms, develops the lungs; physical exercises help to strengthen the entire body and make the child graceful and agile. Good cooking is needed for the maintenance of good health. All three are necessary in the physical and moral development of the child of to-day, which will be the man, the woman, the citizen of to-morrow.

A Reasonable "New Device."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Much is written about trade schools and the like as a means of diverting American boys to occupations other than "polite" ones. It is hopeless to try to stem the tide toward nice work, until the plan of no promotion without 90 per cent. attainment be tried. The educators rightly fear the effects on the numbers in upper classes, which can hardly be filled even with 50 per cent. promotions, "elastic" promotions, &c. (See Page 75, Eleventh Report.)

When some hero (he'll need to be a hero and of the stuff they make martyrs of) arises in the educational field, who will enforce this common sense rule, quite enough pupils will be found to reach the new passing mark to supply all reasonable demand for them in life's affairs. Let it be known that 90 per cent. find favor at headquarters, and scores of educators would report success. (See Page 251, Eleventh Report.)

When the pupils are kept where they belong then and not sooner will it be possible to encourage them seriously with trade and other such schools, all of which should be conducted by private persons, subsidized, if need be, by the city.

Still More Subways Needed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Interborough's "four-borough system" of subways, outlined to-day, will be excellent as a partial solution of the rapid transit problem. It will just about care for the city's growth during the time it will take to built it. But something more is needed to fully relieve the congestion.

I believe that the McAdoo company should be given the right to build a subway up Madison Avenue, from Forty-second Street, as an extension of its Sixth Avenue line; also down Broadway from Thirty-third Street to Chambers Street, and then into the Hudson Terminal, and finally up Sixth Avenue, under the Park, with stations at the transverse roads, and up Seventh Avenue to Central Bridge. They should build these with their own money.

This plan is only in case the Interborough's new scheme is accepted. But even if McAdoo gets the triborough, it would be well worth his while to build the Central Park-Seventh Avenue line. There is certainly enough traffic to support it, even if there were subways on both Madison and Lexington Avenues.

The city ought to insist on one change in the Interborough's plans. They should be compelled to cross the Harlem River on the existing railroad bridge at 158th Street. There is no need to spoil Central Bridge and Macomb's Lane by an elevated line, when it is even easier to use existing lines instead. Of course, the Putnam Railroad terminal should be moved to the Bronx end of the bridge, and the bridge made property of the Interborough Company.

Our Army and von Richenau.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Gen. von Richenau has just arrived here from Germany to instruct us in military matters. He indorses Gen. Wood, and says of our force: "It is certainly small, and much too small for a big, rich country like this, which should have a big army."

We must resort to conscription, he says. "It is foolish to believe that war will be abolished. You must prepare for war in time of peace. You must acquire ordnance, ammunition." He might add, "I am in the business; take my card."

It would be better if the General would confine himself with his advice and ammunition to his own country. E. T. W.

The Hobble Skirt in 1873.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos to the hobble skirt, I send you some verses from an old scrap book, taken from Punch in 1873. Verily, "history repeats itself!"

Upon the rink the lady sat,
Beside her lay her dainty hat,
All crumpled;
She looked the picture of distress,
So dusty was her pretty dress,
And rumpled!

"I can't get up," in faltering tone,
She said. I thought that, perhaps, alone
She would not.
I picked her up. She was not hurt—
'Twas but the tightness of her skirt—
She could not!

PHYSICIANS MOURN DR. HERTER'S DEATH

Distinguished Scientist, Who Studied Deeply the Chemical Aspects of Disease.

LABORATORY IN HIS HOME

Made Researches Into Preventive Side of Medicine, and Solved New Problems in Rockefeller Institute.

The funeral of Dr. Christian Archibald Herter was held yesterday morning at the home of his family, 819 Madison Avenue, and was largely attended by the medical profession, for Dr. Herter, though less known to the public than some other doctors, held among his colleagues the reputation of being a pioneer in medical science. His researches undertaken at his own expense opened up in this city a new and fruitful field of investigation. He was the physician of the Rockefeller Institute Hospital and had done much in the last two years of his life to work out the plan on which that institution will be managed.

Dr. Herter was born in 1864 and was the son of Christian Herter of the firm of Herter Brothers, who was known in his day for the application of artistic ideas to architecture. His mother was the daughter of Dr. Archibald Miles, a well-known physician of Connecticut and Ohio. Dr. Herter was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1885, and afterward took post graduate work under Prof. Welch of Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, and Prof. August Forel in Zurich, Switzerland.

At first he devoted himself to the study of the nervous system and wrote a textbook on it, "The Diagnosis of Diseases of the Nervous System," which was published in 1892. But he gradually formed the idea that the chemical aspects of disease had not received sufficient attention, and he concentrated his efforts on these. He drew away from the routine of ordinary practice, and with the co-operation of his wife, the daughter of the late David Dows, the railroad man, entered on the scientific investigation of this side of medical science.

A laboratory was fitted up in his home, and when the house in which he died was built in 1893 a large part of the upper floor was specially planned for his investigations. Since then every hospital and medical school considers such a laboratory part of its regular equipment, but Dr. Herter's is believed to have been one of the first adapted to such a purpose.

His idea was that empirical medicine might well be checked up and extended by the application of purely scientific methods to its practice. He studied deeply the chemical action of the body, especially of the digestive tract, and the phenomena of metabolism or the change of tissue. For example, he investigated deforming rheumatism, which is believed to be caused by the defective action of certain foods on the human system. Then he paid special attention to the case of a boy of 13, who had developed mentally but had remained in physical form a lad of 6. He discovered that in his instance the arrest in development had been caused by the influence of certain bacteriological flora in the intestines, and by treatment he was able to assist him greatly.

The chemical studies naturally led Dr. Herter into the bacteriological researches, and he was much interested in the preventive side of medicine, as distinguished from its therapeutic work. He had made some investigations of the use of serums, without giving up his interest in chemical pathology.

In 1897 he received an appointment as Professor of Pathological Chemistry at Bellevue Medical College. In 1903 he was called to the chair of Pharmacology and Therapeutics at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, a position he held till his death. For ten years he was visiting physician to the New York City Hospital on Blackwell's Island, and he was a member of the Reference Board appointed by President Roosevelt to investigate the influence of food preservatives on the human body. At the request of the Secretary of Agriculture he studied several problems of this nature in his laboratory, the most important of which dealt with the effect of benzoate of soda.

Dr. Herter found his clinical experience of great value in his experimental work in directing and making practical his investigations, and he became connected with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research from its very beginning. He was one of the original Directors, and as soon as the hospital in connection with it was planned he was appointed its physician. In the organization of the new hospital a number of fresh problems as to its work and methods had to be solved, and the last two years of Dr. Herter's life were largely devoted to these. He was in ill-health for two years before his death, but since the opening of the hospital in the Fall he attended three times a week. After seeing the patients in the wards he was accustomed to spend hours in consultation with the staff and in suggesting new lines of research. Outside his hospital and laboratory work he was well-known as a consultant.

Two lectureships were founded by Dr. Herter, one at Bellevue, the other at Johns Hopkins. The object of each was to bring distinguished physicians from Europe to address their colleagues here. Among those who have thus been invited to Baltimore are Ehrlich, Van Meyer, Schaefer, and Chiari, and to New York Halliburton, Levene, Van Noorden, Friedrich Muller, Starling, Leathes, and Cohnheim.

Dr. Herter was, ouside his profession, much interested in the fine arts, as he had inherited the artistic tastes of his father, a painter, and his mother, a sculptor of no mean ability. He is survived by his widow and three daughters.

Pies and the Eggs in Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago the newspapers in this city published extracts from the report of Commissioner Fosdick on the rotten egg industry. From some of the accounts published an intimation is carried that the New York Pie Baking Company used eggs that were not fresh in the manufacture of its product. Commissioner Fosdick made no such charge. His report merely stated that the New York Pie Baking Company, together with other concerns, was a customer of a certain Bernard Kochman, who was charged with selling eggs that were not fresh.

The publication of this report has been a great injustice to the New York Pie Baking Company. We have never at any time used any eggs or other ingredients in the making of our pies that were not good and wholesome. It has been our pride that we made the best pies that were made in New York City. The only purchases of eggs we ever made from Bernard Kochman were on June 24, 25, 27, 29, and 30 and July 1, 1910. We bought these eggs for fresh eggs and paid Kochman fresh egg prices for them, to wit, 16½ cents a pound, which is equivalent to about 19 cents a dozen, which is the price at which fresh shell eggs could have been purchased in the open market at that time.

The amount of eggs purchased from Kochman on those days was only equal to about one-fifth of the amount of eggs which were used in the manufacture of our product on the same days. As a matter of simple justice to us we feel that you should publish this.

The Test of Suffrage.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Miss Hepburn's complaint about the unreliability of witnesses in regard to the success or failure of equal suffrage in Colorado is not singular. It seems to me that the test of truth in the matter is whether it has helped to enlighten public opinion or not, for, as Washington said, "In proportion as a government gives force to public opinion it is necessary that public opinion be enlightened." Those who expect too much of suffrage are apt to underestimate its helpfulness in this regard.

BERNHARDT BRINGS TEARS AS CAMILLE

Her Acting of Dumas's Consumptive Heroine Moves Her Audience as of Long Ago.

M. TELLENGEN AS ARMAND

Plays with Much Vigor and Sincerity—Mme. Seylor the Nanine—Best of Company in Cast.

LA DAME AUX CAMELIAS, a play in five acts, by Alexander Dumas, fils. Globe Theatre.

Marguerite Gautier	Mme. Sarah Bernhardt
George Duval	M. Maxudian
Gaston	M. Denenbourg
Armand Duval	M. Tellengen
Gustave	M. Barry
St. Gaudens	M. Favieres
Le Docteur	M. Canroy
Varville	M. Coutier
De Giray	M. Dorval
Arthur	M. Dieck
Un Domestique	M. Pierrat
Nanine	Mme. Seylor
Prudence	Mme. Boulanger
Nichette	Mme. Duc
Olympe	Mme. Desroches
Un Groom	Mme. Thomas
Anais	Mme. Ringer
Une Dame	Mme. H. Romain
Adele	Mme. Laurent
Le Commissionnaire	M. Ruben

"La Dame aux Camilias," poor "Camille," that has caused more histrionic misdemeanors than any other play, was Bernhardt's selection last night. The audience filled the theatre, to all the boxes and all the permitted standing room, and the love, despair, and death of the consumptive heroine were much applauded.

After seeing the French actress at intervals for thirty years in this piece, her acting in it has become as familiar as the sun. Last night she once more passed through all the stages of delight and despond that actresses have enjoyed portraying since the first writing of the piece, and she died her lengthy death in the last act to the complete satisfaction of her hearers. There were many tears when the final curtain fell, and there was no lack of evidence that the actress had again moved her people as she has done many score times before.

The suspicious Armand was played by M. Tellengen, the Bedford of Jeanne d'Arc. He put much vigor into the rôle and played the climax of the fourth act with every expression of sincerity. Mme Seylor was Nanine the faithful, and the rest of the familiar characters were played by the best members of Bernhardt's company.

This afternoon an extra matinée of "La Samaritaine" will be given. Yesterday afternoon there was a repetition of "L'Aiglon," this evening "Jeanne d'Arc" will be given again, and to-morrow afternoon "Camille" will once more appear.

CHECK OPERA SPECULATORS.

Tickets for "Girl of the Golden West" Held Till Saturday Night.

John Brown, the business controller of the Metropolitan Opera House, thinks he has hit upon a scheme to defeat the speculators' attempt to corner the tickets for the initial performance of "The Girl of the Golden West" on Saturday night.

Until yesterday tickets were sold, by mail, only to subscribers of the Opera House. Yesterday the general sale opened. Those who bought tickets were informed however, that they could pay for them and leave their names and the tickets would be distributed on the evening of the performance.

The three entrances of the Opera House will be used for this purpose. Once a person gets his ticket he must enter the theatre at once. It has been planned so that there will not be too great a crowd. In the first place the subscribers' tickets have all been delivered. The entrances to the Opera House will be opened at 6:45 on Saturday night, and each person as he signs his name is told at what entrance to call, so that the crowd will be divided. Nevertheless, yesterday was a busy day for Earl Lewis and his force in the box office, who had to handle the names.

"If the plan is successful," said Mr. Brown yesterday, "we can follow it at special performances. Of course, it will be impossible to follow it at regular subscription performances."

Pianist and Soprano Give Recital.

Miss Frances de Villa Ball, pianist, and Miss Ellen Langdon, soprano, gave a joint recital in Mendelssohn Hall last evening, which was notable for the ambitions of these two performers rather than for results achieved. Miss Ball played music by Chopin, Mendelssohn, and even by Debussy, and Miss Langdon sang songs of Schumann, Schubert, Grieg, Liszt, and others.

Caruso to Sing in Concerts in Spring.

Enrico Caruso will be heard in a series of concerts in the principal cities of the East and West immediately following the close of the opera season in this city in the Spring, it was announced last night. Arrangements were concluded yesterday between A. F. Adams, managing director of the Quinlan International Musical Agency, and the Metropolitan Opera Company, permitting the tour, which will cover the whole of May.

"Die Walkure" Again at Metropolitan

"Die Walküre" was repeated at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening with Mme. Weidt, Miss Morena, Miss Wickham, and Messrs. Burrian, Hinckley, and Soomer in the chief parts. Mr. Hertz conducted.

JUSTICE DAYTON DEAD IN 65TH YEAR

Prominent Democrat a Victim of Pneumonia—Postmaster of New York from 1893 to 1897.

LATER JOINED TAMMANY

Defeated for Supreme Court Bench in 1901, but Elected in 1906—Member of Many Clubs.

Supreme Court Justice Charles Willoughby Dayton, the well-known jurist and ex-Postmaster, who had been ill for several weeks, died yesterday of pneumonia at his home, 13 Mount Morris Park West, in his sixty-fifth year.

Justice Dayton was born in Brooklyn on Oct. 8, 1846, the son of Abraham C. Dayton, a man of literary tastes, and a prominent merchant of New York, and on his mother's side he was descended from Andrew Adams, a Colonel in the Revolutionary War, who was Speaker of the Continental Congress in 1779 and 1780 and Chief Justice of Connecticut.

He was educated in New York and was graduated from the Columbia College Law School in 1868, and after being admitted to the bar he soon built up a profitable practice. In 1881 he was elected to the Assembly as a Democrat, and a year later he joined the citizen's movement against Tammany and organized the Harlem Democratic Club. After running for President of the Board of Aldermen in 1885 and being defeated Mayor Grant appointed him head of the Park Avenue Commission to take charge of condemnations for the Central's railroad viaduct.

In 1890 he supported the Municipal League's anti-Tammany ticket and was appointed Postmaster by President Cleveland in 1893, where he remained until he resigned in 1897. During his term of office as Postmaster he was so popular that on his retirement 1,500 employes gave him a dinner at the Grand Central Palace, and a bronze tablet was erected in the Post Office Building in his honor.

The inscription read, "Erected February, 1897, by the employes of the New York Post Office, who desire to perpetuate Mr. Dayton's record for efficiency, discipline, justice, courtesy, and kindness."

After running for City Controller on the Jefferson ticket, and being defeated, in 1897, he was mentioned to Croker by Tammany leaders as a Mayoralty candidate, but the leader refused to put him on the ticket. Richard Croker nominated Dayton with ex-Mayor Robert A. Van Wyck for the bench in 1901, but they were both defeated. Mr. Dayton continued his connection with Tammany Hall and was elected a Supreme Court Justice in 1906.

For his legal services to Charles M. Preston, Receiver of the New York Building Loan Banking Company, prior to his elevation to the bench, Justice Dayton got fees amounting to a total of $143,291 and on the final report being approved by Justice Dowling last June, he said that there was no ground for the State Attorney General's attacks on the legal fees.

Justice Dayton was a Director of the Empire City Savings Bank, and a Director of the United States Life Insurance Company. He was a member of the Harlem Democratic Club, State and City Bar Associations, Society of International Law, American Geographical Association, Sons of Revolution, Manhattan Club, Downtown Club, Players Club and an incorporator of the Post-Graduate Medical School. He is survived by a widow, a daughter and a son, Charles W. Dayton, Jr., a lawyer formerly a partner in the firm of Coudert Brothers.

His funeral will be held at 10:30 o'clock, Saturday morning from St. Andrew's Protestant Episcopal Church, 127th Street and Fifth Avenue. The pastor of the church, the Rev. George R Van De Water, will conduct the services. The interment will be in the family plot in Greenwood Cemetery.

Commander Robert Platt.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Commander Robert Platt, U. S. N., retired, died at his home here late to-day following an attack of cerebral embolism, with which he was stricken three weeks ago. Commander Platt was a native of North Carolina. He recently returned here from Wrightsville Beach, N. C., where he had been spending his Summers. He was born at Southport, N. C., and was 76 years of age. Entering the naval service in the volunteer navy March 8, 1863, as a Lieutenant, Commander Platt after one month's service performed conspicuous service. For his skill, coolness, and intrepidity he was specially commended by Admiral Du Pont, serving upon the vessel which led the Admiral's fleet into Charleston harbor April 1, 1863. Commander Platt was retired from the naval service in 1903.

The Rev. George Wolfe Shinn.

The Rev. George Wolfe Shinn, who was for thirty-one years rector of Grace Church, Newton, Mass., of which he was rector emeritus at the time of his death, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George C. Stevens, at Summit, N. J. He was born in Philadelphia in 1839. Dr. Shinn was graduated from William and Mary College and from the Philadelphia Divinity School in 1863. The former institution conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity in 1890. During the civil war he served as a member of the Christian Commission. Before going to Newton he was rector, successively, of St. Paul's and the Church of Our Saviour in Philadelphia. He was author of a manual of the Prayer Book, and was for twenty-five years editor of the Whittaker Series of Sunday School Instruction. He served as President of the Boston Chapter of the association from 1902 to 1903. He was instrumental in establishing the Newton Cottage Hospital. He is survived by a son and two daughters.

Justice William D. Beard Drops Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 7.—As he was about to leave his apartments in the Hermitage Hotel this morning Supreme Court Justice William Dwight Beard fell dead from heart disease. At the time of Justice Beard's death the Supreme Court was in session at the State Capitol, and Chief Justice Shields immediately adjourned court. The funeral of Justice Beard will take place in Memphis Friday morning. Justice Beard had been on the Supreme bench of Tennessee since 1894. He leaves a widow and two sons.

ISAAC STERN'S FUNERAL.

Simple Services in Temple Emanu-El with Tribute by Dr. Leipziger.

Temple Emanu-El, at Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street, was crowded at the funeral services yesterday of Isaac Stern, who died suddenly while closing up his affairs and retiring from the firm of Stern Brothers, with the intention of devoting the remainder of his life to the continuation of his charitable and philanthropic work.

In accordance with the wish of the family the services were simple. An organ prelude, a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Silverman, rabbi of Temple Emanu-El; an organ voluntary by the organist of the synagogue, William C. Macfarland, and a brief tribute by Dr. Henry M. Leipziger completed the services. The latter spoke of the philanthropy of Mr. Stern, and said:

"He laid down and went to his heavenly rest just as he was in the hope of realizing his dream of a well-earned earthly rest. The strand of life broke, but gloriously he died while working, like a soldier at his post, and after a long and happy life."

The altar was covered with floral testimonials from friends and institutions with which Mr. Stern was connected or had aided in his numerous beneficences. The coffin, covered with violets, was removed from his late home in the Hotel St. Regis at 9:30 A. M., accompanied by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Arthur H. Hahlo and Mrs. Gustav Wertheim; Robert D. Stern, his son, and his brother, Louis Stern. The body was placed in the family vault in Cypress Hills Cemetery, and was attended only by the relatives.

The pall bearers were Samuel Untermyer, Emil Lorsch, Leo Arnstein, Jacob H. Schiff, John Sinclair, Ernst Thalmann, W. A. Simonson, Philip J. Goodhart, Henry Sidenberg, Morris J. Hirsch, Kalman Haas, Dr. A. J. Jacoby, M. H. Moses, Dr. Willy Meyer, A. J. Gurster, James Montague, George Brown, and Edward Driscoll.

Some of those in the congregation were George Macculloch Miller, Justice James A. Blanchard, John D. Crimmins, Isaac N. Seligman, Felix M. Warburg, Murry Guggenheim, Henry Rice, Cyrus Sulzberger, Frank Murray, E. W. Bloomingdale, Patrick F. McGowan, and Edward Soulebach.

J. Willard Brown.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—J. Willard Brown, Department Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in Massachusetts and for forty years an educator in the public schools of Greater Boston, died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Stoneham late to-day. He was born in 1839, and was educated at Amherst College, graduating from the institution in 1858. When the civil war broke out he went to the front with the Seventh Massachusetts Regiment. He served four years in the United States Signal Corps and then became Chief Signal Officer of the Powder River Valley Indian expedition in Wyoming and Montana. Mr. Brown was the organizer of the United States Veteran Signal Corps' Association, and was President of the Association in 1879 and 1880. He was the author of the history "The Signal Corps, U. S. A., in the war of the Rebellion."

Commodore James Henry Gillis.

Commodore James Henry Gillis, U. S. N., retired, died of paralysis on Tuesday at Melbourne Beach, Fla., in his eightieth year. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1854, and served with the North Atlantic blockading squadron during the civil war, in which he saw considerable fighting at Taylor's Landing, and on the ironclad Milwaukee, when it was sunk by a torpedo at Mobile Bay, March, 1865. In 1868 he commanded the Wateree of the Southern Pacific Squadron, which was carried half a mile inland by a tidal wave at Arica, Peru, and received the thanks of the British Government for assistance rendered to British subjects on that occassion. Mr. Gillis was appointed Captain in September, 1876, Commodore in January, 1887, and was in command of the South Atlantic Squadron as Rear Admiral from 1888 to 1890. He is survived by a daughter and three sons, H. A. Gillis, L. Gillis, and Lieut. Com. I. V. Gillis, U. S. N.

Ludwig Knaus, Genre Painter, Dead.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—Prof. Ludwig Knaus, the genre painter, died to-day. He was born at Wiesbaden in 1829. Knaus first studied under Sohn and Schadow in the Academy at Duesseldorf. He perfected himself in the technical part of his art by close study of the modern French masters at Paris. He was Professor at the Berlin Academy from 1874 to 1884. His more important pictures were "Funeral in a Hesse Village," "His Excellency Traveling," "The Village Musician," "The Inn," "The Refractory Model," "Solomon's Wisdom," and "A Peep Behind the Scenes." Knaus received many decorations and medals of honor.

Obituary Notes.

FRANK J. RINN, well known in political circles, died yesterday at his home, 401 West Forty-second Street, of Bright's disease. He was 61 years old. He had been confined to his bed since last Friday. Mr. Rinn was an Alderman from 1892 to 1893. Dr. HORACE BABCOCK, one of the oldest physicians in Western New York, is dead at his home in Gowanda in his eighty-seventh year. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of Buffalo and went to Wisconsin, where he practiced medicine until 1862, when he became surgeon of the Second Wisconsin Regiment in the Army of the Potomac. He was captured and paroled at Gettysburg, and returned to Gowanda to take up his medical practice. Dr. Babcock leaves a widow, a son, and two daughters.

Mrs. MARGARET PERKINS, wife of Dr. Newton M. Shaffer of 28 East Twenty-eighth Street, died suddenly at the New York Hospital on Tuesday, following an operation for appendicitis. She was 55 years old. A widower and one son, Newton M. Shaffer, Jr., survive her.

AUSTIN HOLMAN, one of the first policemen appointed in Bayonne, N. J., died on Tuesday at his home, 869 Broadway, in that city. He was 89 years old, and retired from police duty three years ago. Two sons survive him.

The Rev. Dr. JOSEPH EDMUND SMITH, Secretary of the American Society of Education, died at his home in Washington on Tuesday night of heart disease, in his eighty-second year. He had served fifty years as a minister of the Methodist Church up to the time of his retirement three years ago, and had filled pastorates in Baltimore, Philadelphia, Buffalo, St. Paul, and Trenton.

Mrs. SARAH CATHERINE VAN WYCK HEWLETT, wife of George T. Hewlett and daughter of the late John Thurman and Jane Elsworth Van Wyck, died Tuesday of pneumonia at the old family homestead at Hewletts, L. I., aged 81 years. Mrs. Hewlett was greatly esteemed for her many charities and religious work. The town was named after her husband, who survives her. Her only brother, Col. William E. Van Wyck, also survives her.

WILLIAM HALL, well known in lodge circles, is dead at his home at Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., of kidney disease. He was 70 years old. Hall conducted for more than thirty years a wholesale feed business at 536 West Twenty-fourth Street. He was Past Master of Pyramid Lodge.

ROBERT PRESCOTT BROWN, Postmaster of West New Brighton, S. I., since he was appointed to that position by President Chester A. Arthur in 1882, died at his home there yesterday from heart disease. Mr. Brown had lived on Staten Island since he was eighteen years old. He was born in Rahway, N. J., sixty-seven years ago. Mr. Brown was a civil war veteran and a prominent Mason. He leaves a widow and six children.

Miss Elizabeth Sherman's Debut.

Mrs. Herbert A. Sherman gave a reception yesterday at the Sherman residence, 127 East Fifty-fifth Street, to introduce her second daughter, Miss Elizabeth Sherman.

Mrs. Sherman, in pink satin veiled, with varicolored chiffon, and the débutante in a pearl embroidered white chiffon over satin, had in their receiving party the latter's sister, Miss Rose Standish Sherman; Miss Emily Sherman and Dorothy Sherman, cousins of the débutante, and the Misses May Vogel, Marion Burbank, Julia Yale, Dorothy Sherman, Susan Nichols, and Vera and Beatrice Eliott.

There was informal dancing late in the afternoon after the older guests had left.

COL. JOHN J. ASTOR RETURNS.

Looks for Great Improvements in Aeroplanes Within Year.

Col. John Jacob Astor and his son Vincent, who have been abroad about six weeks, arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse. Col. Astor spent most of the time in France, while his son visited with his mother in London.

They brought back with them a fine Airedale terrier. Col. Astor said he saw the American fleet at Cherbourg, and it presented a splendid sight in foreign waters. He said he did considerable motoring through France, and took photographs of some fine French roads, which he said he would like to see duplicated in this country.

Of all the aeroplanes he saw in France, none of them were fitted with a brake, which he believes will add considerably to safety in aviation when the aeroplanes land in crowded places. He says he looks for great improvements in aeroplanes within the next year or so, and he hopes to see them built with brakes and also with rain and snow shields. Col. Astor did not say whether he was working out a patent on either of these.

He purposes to make another cruise around the West Indies late this Winter in his yacht, and his son will no doubt accompany him.

Among the other passengers were Count Jean de Kergolay and his daughter, Miss Anita. They went at once to the Plaza where the Count will be entertained by Frederick Townsend Martin before he goes to Baltimore to visit his wife's family. The Count married a Miss Carroll of Baltimore.

WEDDED AT SHERRY'S.

Miss Janet Oppenheimer Becomes the Bride of Milton W. Lipper.

Miss Janet Oppenheimer, daughter of the late Herman Oppenheimer and Mrs. Oppenheimer of 230 Riverside Drive, was married last evening to Milton W. Lipper at Sherry's. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Maurice H. Harris under a bower of greens and pink roses. A reception followed. The bride wore a duchesse satin gown en train, with a tulle veil, and a lace shawl which is an heirloom in the bridegroom's family. She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Emil Fried, and the Misses Beatrice Leopold, Mabel Hays, Blanche Hecht, and Delphine Rosenthal. Dorothy and Madeline Lipper were the flower girls.

Mr. Lipper, who is a son of M. W. Lipper of Philadelphia, had Irving Heidelsheimer as his best man, and the ushers were Harry Behal of Philadelphia, David Gross, Leo Oppenheimer, Lester Milius, Nathan Fried, Walter Untermeyer, and Bertram Schlesinger of this city.

After a bridal trip through the South Mr. and Mrs. Lipper will reside in this city.

Alcott-Kranich Wedding at Plaza.

Miss Elvira Marie Kranich, daughter of Mrs. Mary Kranich of 665 West End Avenue, was married last evening to Harrington Alcott. The wedding took place in the new ballroom at the Plaza, after which there was a reception and dinner, attended by 250 guests. The maid of honor was Miss Florence Schefers, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Aimee Schmidt, Jessie Lee Bradshaw, Vivienne Kranich, Gertrude Kohe, and Marjorie Gelder.

Louis F. Walton acted as best man, and the ushers were Arthur Kranich, William D. Walton, Shiras Campbell, Frederick Kranich, and J. Robbins Richter.

Ussiker-Levy Wedding on Dec. 25.

The marriage of Miss Bessie Levy and Irving Ussiker will take place on Dec. 25 at 2 P. M., at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. Levy, 956 Stebbins Avenue, the Bronx.

LEAVITT—BLAW.

A wedding of interest here took place in Philadelphia last evening when Miss Florence Kendrick Blaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Blaw of West 113th Street, this city, became the bride of George Fischer Leavitt, son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Leavitt of East Orange. The ceremony, which was performed at 6:30 o'clock before a large gathering of society folk in St. Matthew's Episcopal Church by the Rev. C. C. Price, rector of the church, was followed by a reception at the Hotel Roosevelt.

The bride, who entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage, was attended by her cousin, Mrs. D. Webster Bell of Philadelphia, as matron of honor. The other attendants were Miss Marguerite Lesher of Haverford, Penn.; Mrs. Walter D. Labranze, and Miss Vera May Henderson of Philadelphia, and Mrs. J. R. Blatz of Merron, Penn. Miss Blaw's nephew, William Kendrick of Haverford, Penn., acted as page.

The best man was Ralph K. Underhill of East Orange, and the ushers were J. Victor Beckman, Ralph Blanchard, and J. J. Breckenridge of Philadelphia, and Aldis Squire of Bloomfield, N. J.

HAWKESWORTH—CONANT.

Mrs. Robert W. Hawkesworth of East Orange announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Eleanor Eastman Hawkesworth, to Edmund Bennett Conant of Boston, Mass.

Miss Nicholas a Debutante.

Mrs. Alonzo Potter introduced her sister, Miss Beatrice Nicholas, a daughter of Mrs. Harry I. Nicholas of Babylon, L. I., yesterday, at a reception given at her house, 119 East Fifty-fourth Street. Mrs. Potter and Miss Nicholas, in white satin and lace, had receiving with them the Misses Lydia Colt Butler, Edith Morgan, Rosalie Coe, Hilah French, Adelaide Travis, Mildred Johnson, Marion Van Rensselaer Kennedy, Caro Brown, Jeannette Whitlock, Agnes Le Roy Edgar, and Elizabeth Russell.

TO KEEP AMATEUR ATHLETICS CLEAN

Dr. Luther H. Gulick Says A. A. U. Does Not Aim to Control College or School Sports.

In his annual report to the Amateur Athletic Union, Dr. Luther H. Gulick, Chairman of the National Basket Ball Committee of the A. A. U., denies the attempt on the part of the A. A. U. to control athletic sports in colleges, but to keep athletic sport within the A. A. U. as clean as possible. Dr. Gulick points out that the A. A. U. has nothing to say regarding an educational institution offering cash prizes, but points out that individuals competing in such games will be barred from all competitions where A. A. U. rules control and are observed.

In basket ball particularly the A. A. U. is especially active, and announces that any organization breaking rules will, through its National Registration Committee, be removed from membership in the A. A. U. Dr. Gulick's report, which is an interesting one, follows:

"Some people have the impression that the Amateur Athletic Union wishes to control athletic sport in colleges. What the Amateur Athletic Union desires to do is to control athletic sport within is own body, and the main object of this control is to see that athletic sport shall be fair and fairly conducted. It desires to keep out the professional from competition with the amateur. It wishes to eliminate those who compete under assumed names. It wishes to eliminate those who have been suspended for violation of the rules of clean sport, and so on. In doing this it has two major methods—one for the identification of the individual, (this is registration,) the other for the identification of the games, (this is sanction.)

"In basket ball the Amateur Athletic Union says that any person competing without registration and without sanction will not be eligible to compete in any sport governed by the Amateur Athletic Union. This is not an attempt to control the athletics of any other bodies. It is an attempt to keep athletic sport within the Amateur Athletic Union as clean as possible by saying to young men that if they wish to compete in games under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union they must live up to the regularly established rules of clean sport. If a college, a preparatory school, an industrial association, a church, or a lodge desires to have athletic sport in which cash prizes are offered and in which professionals are allowed to compete with amateurs, the Amateur Athletic Union has not a word to say, but the individuals competing in such games cannot thereafter compete in games held under the sanction of the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Failure to understand these things brings these other bodies (particularly educational institutions) frequently into unfortunate relations with the Amateur Athletic Union.

"Each year at the beginning of the basket ball season the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, through its different associations, comes into unnecessary conflict with educational institutions in relation to their playing basket ball with teams from non-educational institutions, and year after year much ill-feeling is caused when the Amateur Athletic Union announces that the players on such and such a team have automatically disqualified themselves. The rules of the Amateur Athletic Union are perfectly clear, those that take part in open sport must be registered, and all open games must be sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union, or some one of its allied bodies that has the power to grant sanctions for open games, such as the Y. M. C. A.

"With the announcement of this college team or that school team that has been disqualified much hard feeling usually crops out, and as a result players that desire to compete in track and field sports are forced to apply to the Amateur Athletic Union for reinstatement. Now why have this trouble year after year? Is it not much better for those in charge of intercollegiate and scholastic sport to investigate the rules before they start? As a matter of fact Princeton University has announced a basket ball game with a team in Greater New York that is not an A. A. U. or a Y. M. C. A. team. Therefore the Princeton team will disqualify themselves if they play that game. I notice a prominent prep school of Brooklyn has scheduled a game with a team that is not registered with the A. A. U. or Y. M. C. A. If this particular Brooklyn prep school plays that game it must then forfeit all of the games it has scheduled with Brooklyn high schools that are members of the Public Schools Athletic League, because the Public Schools Athletic League is a member of the Metropolitan Association of the A. A. U., and should any one of its players play against a team not registered in the A. A. U. the boys would disqualify themselves. When a team representing an educational institution plays a non-educational institution team it causes trouble, unless the situation is clearly defined, and for the benefit of teams from educational institutions I take great pleasure in explaining to them the law.

"The Amateur Athletic Union of the United States allows teams from educational institutions to play with teams from other educational institutions without sanction or registration; they consider that educational institutions can compete in sport among themselves without conferring with the Amateur Athletic Union, and it is to be hoped, for the good of sport, that the basket ball teams will confine their activities to playing educational institutions, and should they desire to play outside teams then they must register, the team they play must register, and the game must be sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union if the team represents an athletic club, military organization, or boat club, and by the A. L. N. A. if a Young Men's Christian Association team.

"High schools, when playing among themselves, are exempt from registration, a Public Schools Athletic League sanction is all that is necessary; high school teams can play other educational institutions without sanction except from the Public Schools Athletic League, but should they play a Young Men's Christian Association team, Church Athletic League team, or military organization, they must secure sanction from and register with the Amateur Athletic Union.

The National Basket Ball Committee of the A. A. U. is now carefully scrutinizing the schedules of all clubs that hold membership in associations of the A. A. U. We are going over their schedules as published, and if we find, after a thorough and careful investigation, that clubs that are members of any association, such as the Church A. L., Settlement A. L., and athletic clubs are playing in their gymnasiums unsanctioned and unregistered basket ball, the Amateur Athletic Union will, through its National Registration Committee, remove from membership in all associations those clubs that are breaking the A. A. U. rules.

TIGERS ARE DISQUALIFIED.

Basket Ball Team of Princeton Under Ban of Athletic Union.

The basket ball team of Princeton University played the Crescent Athletic Club of Brooklyn a game of basket ball on Tuesday evening. The Crescent A. C. team is not registered with the Amateur Athletic Union, and the game was not sanctioned. Being a non-collegiate affair the game should have been sanctioned by the Amateur Athletic Union and the men registered. The teams playing the game, therefore, disqualified themselves. The names of the Princeton men who disqualified themselves by playing this unsanctioned game are Heath, Baldwin, B. Hughes, Kahler, and F. C. Hughes.

The Amateur Athletic Union will make a thorough investigation into the personnel of the Crescent A. C. team. If Cypiot, who played on this team, is the professional athlete that was disqualified by the Amateur Athletic Union several years ago for playing professional basket ball this will professionalize all members of the Crescent A. C. basket ball team.

Dominican Lyceum Wants Games.

The basket ball team representing the Dominican Lyceum has started the season and has already won all the games played. The team will arrange games with teams within fifty miles of New York. [illegible]

TRACK TEAM AT N. Y. U.

Coach Robertson to Begin Drilling Men in Gymnasium Next Week.

The track outlook at New York University is unusually bright this year. Lawson Robertson of the Irish-American Athletic Club, a former 100-yard record-holder, and a competitor in the recent Olympic games, will have charge of the track men this year. He intends to start regular practice in the gymnasium next week, and interclass meets will soon be held to arouse interest in the work.

Robertson has good material to work with. Four of last year's men were lost by graduation, but they all had understudies, who will make a good showing this season. The loss of Norlin and Fielding will be felt the most. Norlin ran the quarter and half mile, breaking the college record in the 440-yard event last year. However, Murphy, who was ineligible last season, on account of his studies, is now available. He and Capt. Smith are well able to defend the quarter and half mile titles.

Fielding's place in the high and broad jump events will be hard to fill, but Lauer, who runs the sprints and quarter-mile, is also a broad jumper of no mean ability, and C. McLaughlin and Hyatt can make a fairly good showing in the high jump.

Thorne, who broke the college two-mile record last year, is only a sophomore. He is training hard already, and will try to better his own time in his favorite event this year. Other two-mile runners are Van Clief, McAdam, Stout, and Underwood.

No strong man has been developed in the hammer throw event to take Heiser's place, but Mackay and Cooney have had experience at this work, and will probably do well under Robertson's coaching. Gabelein and Henneberger will put the shot, and John White, who did so well in the pole vault last year, is still in the field.

The sprints will be well taken care of by Murphy, Golden, Lauer, Schapiro, Maloy, and McManus. Brundin, Hyatt, and J. McLaughlin are expected to do well in the high hurdles, and Crawford and Hamilton will run the low hurdle for the N. Y. U.

Sufficient work has not been done by the freshmen to enable the coach to judge of the material. Practice will soon be under way, however, and it is expected that a fairly good delegation of athletes will be found among the first year men.

Seventy-first Regiment Games.

Many well-known athletes will be seen at the games of the Seventy-first Regiment, which will be held in the armory, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, Saturday evening. The head-liners in the regimental events will be Roy Dorland, "Bobbie" Goggins, Parke, "Ike" Lovell, McCahill, Keen, and Hoyt in the sprints and hurdles, and Egan, Geis, Sweeny, Wright, Malone, Davis, Buist, and McElveen in the distance races. A feature of the open events will be the two-mile bicycle race, open to National Cycling Association riders, in which W. Van den Dries of the New York Athletic Club will start from scratch. Fifteen riders are entered in this race. Company E is the favorite for the J. Kennedy Tod Cup, which goes to the company scoring the most points in the regimental events. One of the most exciting races at the meet will be the 220-yard hurdles, in which Roy Dorland will start on the honor mark against Goggins, Flood, Ike Lovell, and others.

Morris A. A. Walk and Run.

The Morris Athletic Association will hold a walk and a run next Sunday, starting from the clubhouse at 162d Street and Jerome Avenue. Sam Leibgold of the Pastime A. C., holder of several records, will start in the walk, which will begin at 10 o'clock A. M. Among those expected to start in the run at 3 o'clock are Harry Hollowell, holder of the amateur record of the Morris A. A. course.

Brooklyn Rowing Club Entertainment.

Members of the Brooklyn Rowing Club are to hold their annual minstrel show and dance at the Kings County Democratic Club, Brooklyn, to-morrow night. Since abandoning scull and sweep at the end of the Summer the oarsmen have been training assiduously with the bones and tambourine. J. B. Moylen, former President, will be interlocutor. H. J. Brierley is in charge of the arrangements. The chief feature will be a skit called "A Night at the Club."

Sonoma Girl Sold for $20,000.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 7.—Sonoma Girl, (2:04¼,) the famous trotting mare which won the Transylvania Stakes in 1907, has been sold by Miss Lotta Crabtree to C. W. Moore, owner of the Dromore Farm, St. Claire, Mich., for a price reported to be $20,000. She will be shipped there immediately.

We made a double-barrelled preparation this Fall for youths.

These slim men, of from 32 to 35 chest, too often have offered them only the most sober and staple fabrics. Few clothiers have a large or varied stock in these smallish sizes.

So on one side we loaded up with suits of the smartest of the popular rough fabrics, some real imported Scottish tweeds, and others just as Scottish in looks.

The other barrel of course contains a full charge of the most conservative fabrics.

Youths' suits, 32 to 35 chest, $16 to $30.

Here are two exceptions to our rule of only importing two or three of any one article for our Leather and Novelty Dept.

The "Kwikpak" leather collar boxes, made in England under the patents of a British Army officer. Very compact; $2.75 to $3.50.

Shaving mirrors which stick on a window pane by a suction device. A German ingenuity. $5.00.

BIDS WANTED FOR A.A.U. CHAMPIONSHIPS

Clubs Invited to Hold Twelve A. A. U. National Events—Conditions for Contests.

During the coming year the Championship Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union will conduct twelve National championships, and an invitation has been extended to clubs desirous of holding one or more of these events to send in bids. In considering the bids the Championship Committee will consider the locality and the number of athletes in that particular section that are eligible for championship honors. The events are: Outdoor track and field championship, indoor track and field championship, ten-mile run championship, junior and senior cross-country championship, basket ball championship, boxing championship, gymnastic championship, wrestling championship, all-around championship, outdoor swimming championship, indoor swimming championship, and ten-mile river swim championship.

In inviting bids for the twelve championships, the Championship Committee, of which James E. Sullivan is Chairman, calls attention to the laws and conditions governing the events, and issues the following general rules in its report to the Amateur Athletic Union at its annual meeting:

The entries for all Amateur Athletic Union Championships shall close with the Chairman of the Championship Committee at least seven days before holding of the championship meeting, and no later entries shall be received or accepted unless satisfactory proof is presented to the committee that the entry was actually sent in due time, but was not received, except that the winner of a junior championship shall be permitted to compete in any event in the senior championship in the same year, upon paying his fee. Within two days after the closing of the entries, a copy of the entire entry list shall be mailed to the Secretary or to the official representative of each club that has entered athletes for said meeting.

Protests affecting the right of any athlete to compete in an Amateur Athletic Union Championship meeting must be made to the Chairman of the committee before the championship meeting is held, and in case of protests the Championship Committee shall hold a meeting the night preceding the championships and if possible pass upon the athlete's right to compete. The committe shall have absolute power to reject any entry and the committee shall also have power to allow an athlete to compete under protest pending trial by the Registration Committee of the association that is affected.

The Championship Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States shall appoint the officials and manage all championship meetings.

The Championship Committee or a representative will attend all championship meetings at the expense of the club giving the same. Entries must close with the Chairman of the Championship Committee no matter where the championship meeting is held.

The championships that should receive immediate attention are those that must of necessity take place in the early part of the year, notably the boxing, wrestling, gymnastic, and swimming championships. Bids for boxing, wrestling, and gymnastic championships close on Jan. 10, bids for indoor swimming championship close on Feb. 1.

The Basket Ball Committee has already awarded the basket ball championship to the State Normal School, Oswego, N. Y., which has agreed to pay all expenses and give the A. A. U. a share of the profits.

In so far as the track and field championships are concerned, the committee will insist that whoever receives this fixture must submit assurance that a track and ground suitable for conducting same will be furnished, and furthermore some member or representative of the committee, at the expense of the club giving the meet, must be in attendance in the city wherein the championship is to be held three weeks prior to the games to represent the committee and attend to all details.

DARTMOUTH NOT WILLING.

Brown's Plan to Resume Athletic Relations with Hanoverians May Fail.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 7.—No matter what the result of the balloting at Brown University on the question of resuming athletic relations with Dartmouth College may be the sentiment generally expressed at Hanover is in opposition to the resumption of such relations.

One of the Faculty members, who is prominently identified with Dartmouth athletics, said to-day that in all the various athletic meetings held here within the last two years the question of resuming relations with Brown has never been mentioned, and he judged from this that the sentiment was against resumption.

Should Princeton and Harvard drop Dartmouth from their football schedule relations with Brown might be resumed, but otherwise Dartmouth athletic leaders thought that there was little chance of it.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 7.—The box at Brown Union, into which the Brown University students cast their straw ballots yesterday on the proposition of resuming athletic arrangements with Dartmouth remained unopened to-day. It is said that influence was brought to bear on the Brown Union officials by either the alumni or Faculty and prevented the counting of the ballots.

40,000 Woman Golf Players.

Talbot Fair presided over the council meeting of the Ladies' Golf Union which was held recently at Manchester, England. It was decided to hold next year's championship on the links of the Royal Portrush Club in the week beginning May 15. Thirty-five new clubs were elected, making in all a total of 335, with a membership of about 40,000 players. The Honorary Secretary, Miss Issette Pearson, was left to choose a course for the handicap challenge cup and gold and silver medal competitions. Probably a Midland green will be selected.

YALE AND CRESCENTS TO MEET IN HOCKEY

St. Nicholas Rink Season of Competition to Start Next Saturday Night.

Yale University and Crescent Athletic teams will open the hockey season on Saturday night with a game at the St. Nicholas Rink, and from then until March the puck chasers will contribute their share to the sport of the season. All the teams have been practicing steadily for several weeks, and are almost in condition to indicate their playing strength.

The Crescents are determined to make a good showing this year, and if possible keep the New York Athletic Club team from getting final possession of the Amateur Hockey League championship trophy. Each team has won the cup twice, and a victory this year will permanently dispose of it. The Crescents are sure to make a better showing than they have for several years past. Jimmy Shireff, the rover, who left the team two years ago to play on the Mercury Foot seven, has decided to rejoin the Brooklyn club, and his return has resulted in bringing out several of the old champions again, among them Artie Liffiton, one of the best forwards in the game.

The withdrawal of the Wanderers from the league left several good men unclaimed, among them Ernest Du Fresne, and President McDermott lost no time in engaging this sturdy and aggressive exponent of the game for the New Mooners. Although the complete team has not yet been selected from the squad of players who are trying to make the seven, it is almost a certainty that Capt. Sam Kennedy, Dr. McDonnell, Scarborough, and Lewis of last season's team will be in the opening game against Yale.

Although Yale lost many of its best players by graduation this year, the youngsters who are trying to make the team, have shown such exceptional ability in practice games that Tom Howard, the veteran Canadian player who is coaching them, finds himself in a dilemma regarding the selection of the men to play on the first team. All the players are well advanced in training. This has been facilitated by frequent trips here from New Haven for the purpose of practicing on the ice, and in their games have shown the results of capable and intelligent instruction in the essential requirements of the game. Capt. Loutrel is confident that he has the material for making a team that will this year win the intercollegiate championship, and judging from what the men have shown in practice there is every reason to believe that his opinion is right.

Yale-Cornell Hockey in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Lawson Reed, manager of the Hockey Association of Yale, has wired his acceptance of terms for three college games between Yale and Cornell to be played in Chicago Dec. 30, 31, and Jan. 2.

LARCHMONT Y. C. MEETING.

Commodore Richards Re-elected with New Officials for 1911.

Rear Commodore R. J. Schaefer presided last night at the annual meeting of the Larchmont Yacht Club, held at the Hotel Astor. The blue and white pennant of the organization adorned the room, while on the side was a remarkable display of silver prizes, each bearing the engraved name of the yacht that won it during the season of 1910. During the season 413 prizes were won, valued at over $5,000. The trophies won by the 65-foot sloops Aurora, Istalena and Winsome, owned respectively by Cornelius Vanderbilt, George M. Pynchon and Henry F. Lippitt, were much admired by those present.

The officers elected for 1911 are: Commodore Leonard Richards (re-elected;) Vice Commodore, John Proctor Clarke; Rear Commodore, R. J. Schaefer; Secretary, Frank Hardy; Treasurer, R. E. Robinson; Trustees, George A. Freeman and H. D. Klots. Four trustees of the former board hold over. J. Proctor Clarke takes the place of Harvey L. Maxwell as Vice Commodore and William Murray, who is one of the founders of the club, and has been its Treasurer for many years, is succeeded by R. E. Robinson.

A number of amendments to the constitution and by-laws of the club which were adopted at the meeting of Nov. 1 were ratified.

Chaplain Dr. Richard Cobden delivered a eulogy on Frederick T. Adams, who was Commodore of the club for four years, and who died recently. A committee was appointed to draw up a set of engrossed resolutions to be forwarded to the members of the family.

Navy to Play Five Lacrosse Games.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 7.—Navy's lacrosse season with five intercollegiate contests will open on March 27, according to the schedule issued to-day. The schedule follows: March 27, Johns Hopkins University; April 6, Cornell; April 13, Lehigh; April 19, Harvard; April 30, Swarthmore. All games will be played here.

Harvard Lacrosse Dates.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 7.—The following schedule has been adopted for the Harvard lacrosse team: April 8, Springfield Training School at Cambridge; April 15, Johns Hopkins at Baltimore; April 19, Navy at Annapolis; April 21, Army at West Point; April 29, Carlisle at Cambridge; May 8, Columbia at Cambridge; May 13, Hobart at Geneva, N. Y.; May 15, Cornell at Cambridge.

Birs Defeats Weed at Billiards.

In one of the best games of the three-cushion carrom billiard tournament now in progress at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, Dr. J. H. Birs last night defeated James Weed by the score of 40 to 31. Birs ran away from his opponent in the early part of the game, and led by ten points throughout the contest. Birs finished his string of 40 points with the high run of 4 in the seventy-fifth inning. Weed's best run was 2. To-night Frank Durbin and C. H. Ditmars will cross cues Pittsburger Defeats Chicagoan.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Dec. 7.—Pittsburg took the only game from their Chicago opponents to-night in the National Amateur Three-Cushion Billiard League's tournament, P. P. Trump running out his string of 50 to the 40 scored by Rollin B. Organ and Clarke Snyder. The high run for each side was 5.

WORLD'S RECORD FOR BILLIARDIST

George Moore Makes a Run of 15 Points in Three-Cushions Carrom Match.

A new world's record in 3-cushion carrom billiards was made last night at Doyle's Billiard Academy by George Moore, who made a run of 15 in a handicap match with Tom Gallagher. In making this remarkable run, Mr. Moore battered a record which has stood unassailed for twenty-five years. Frank Peterson made a high run of 14 in St. Louis in 1885. The new record was made in the twenty-fourth inning of the match, Mr. Moore displaying remarkable skill and judgment in making his shots.

Mr. Moore has been playing in excellent form this season and has been giving many of his opponents a handicap. In his present match with Tom Gallagher he was to make 150 points to 140 by Gallagher. In this he lost out because he made 135 in the three nights' play to 140 by his opponent. In the final block last evening Moore easily outclassed Gallagher, winning by a score of 61 to 47.

Moore is a steady, careful billiardist, and in making the record run last night, studied every shot thoroughly before he made it. He clicked the points off one by one, driving the ivories around the table with rare accuracy, and had excellent control of the balls at all times. As the run was made in a match for a purse and stake, at which admission was charged, there seems to be little doubt that the record will stand.

Lauterbach Beaten by Campbell.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Campbell of this city defeated Lauterbach of Brooklyn to-night in the third game of the amateur league billiard series between these cities by the score of 50 to 39. Campbell played brilliantly, winning in the seventy-fourth inning. His high run was 5. Lauterbach's high run was 3.

Local Pool and Billiards.

In last night's game of the amateur pool tournament for the championship of New York State at the Union Billiard Academy, Forty-fifth Street and Broadway, James Ryan of New York defeated Charles Grogan, also of this city, by the score of 150 to 100, in sixty innings. It was Ryan's game all the way. The thirty-fifth inning proved to be Ryan's best turn at the table. In this period he made twenty-seven points. Ryan's highest run was 27, and Grogan's was 15.

In the game of the 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament last night at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, to decide the amateur championship of Harlem, M. Isaacs defeated F. Reed by the score of 200 to 171. It was a close game throughout, requiring forty-six innings to decide it. Isaacs took the lead in the early part of the contest and maintained it until the finish of the game. Isaacs made a high run of 27 and an average of 4 16-46. E. Barnes and F. Tobias will be the contestants in this evening's game.

ELLIOTT HEAD OF CHAUFFEURS' BOARD

State Divided Into Nine Districts for Examination of Auto Drivers.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 7.—A new Board of Examiners for the examination of chauffeurs throughout the State, as provided for by the so-called Callan automobile law, has been appointed by Secretary of State Koenig. Frederick H. Elliott of New York has been reappointed chief examiner with headquarters at Albany. He also will be in charge of the New York office of the Secretary of State, where examinations of chauffeurs are conducted daily. Mr. Elliott plans to spend several days each week at the Albany office, where he will have supervision of the chauffeurs' bureau and direct the examinations to be held again in all sections of the State, the locations and dates to be announced, so far as possible, several weeks in advance.

The State has been divided into nine districts, ten examiners having been appointed from the State Civil Service eligible list. The district and examiners follow:

No. 1—Greater New York, Long Island, and Westchester County—Frederick H. Elliott, chief examiner; Herbert H. Patterson, Brooklyn; Charles Reich, New York, examiners.

No. 2—Dutchess, Putnam, Columbia, Greene, Ulster, Orange, and Rockland Counties—Henry M. James, Hudson, examiner.

No. 3—Albany, Rensselaer, and Schenectady Counties—Bernard Schmidt, Albany, examiner.

No. 4—Sullivan, Delaware, Schoharie, Otsego, Chenango, Broome, and Tioga Counties—Clark A. Sanford, Margaretsville, examiner.

No. 5—Herkimer, Montgomery, Madison, Oneida, and Lewis Counties—Louis I. Lutes, Herkimer, examiner.

No. 6—Washington, Saratoga, Fulton, Warren, Hamilton, Essex, Clinton, Franklin, and St. Lawrence Counties—Robert G. Remington, Saratoga, examiner.

No. 7—Cortland, Tompkins, Seneca, Cayuga, Onondaga, Oswego, and Jefferson Counties—Charles A. Benjamin, Syracuse, examiner.

No. 8—Chemung, Schuyler, Steuben, Allegany, Wyoming, Erie, Cattaraugus, and Chautauqua Counties—George L. Long, Warsaw, examiner.

No. 9—Wayne, Ontario, Yates, Livingston, Monroe, Genesee, Orleans, and Niagara Counties—Ruric H. Strickland, Rochester, examiner.

Attorney General O'Malley to-day advised Secretary of State Koenig that a dealer may purchase a second-hand automobile which is duly registered and operate the vehicle under his dealer's or manufacturer's registration number without paying the usual fee of $1, which is required to transfer the registration number from the vendor to the vendee of a motor vehicle.

The Attorney General points out that notice of the sale of a registered car should be given to the Secretary of State even though the purchaser is a dealer or manufacturer.

HYATT TO LEAD ARMY ELEVEN

Football Player and Baseball Pitcher Honored by West Point Cadets.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 7.—At a meeting of the Army football players who have won their letter "A" in either the Navy game or by playing two-thirds of the games scheduled, Cadet Robert F. Hyatt of Arkansas was unanimously elected Captain of next year's football eleven.

Hyatt will graduate in 1912. He is 21 years old, weighs 164 pounds, and stands 5 feet 11 inches in height. In his plebe year he earned a place on the team, and the season just finished makes the third Hyatt has played on the Army eleven. Besides football Hyatt is the Army's crack baseball pitcher, and has the reputation of being the coolest and hardest man to rattle that West Point has ever had in the box. A sprain early in the season kept him out of football this year until the Yale game, but his generalship in that game was a big factor in the Army's defeat of the Elis. Another injury deprived the cadets of his services against Harvard.

Formerly the Army football Captain was elected on the train returning from the Navy game, but two years ago the Athletic Council decided the election should take place on Oct. 10 after one game had been played. At a meeting held recently the council again changed the time, and now the football Captain is elected several days after the Army-Navy game.

Harvard Law School Team's Trip.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 7.—A greater part of the Harvard Law School football team, which defeated the Carlisle Indians 3 to 0 last month and which is composed of former players from Harvard, Yale, Princeton, and the University of Michigan, will invade the South during the Christmas holidays and meet two Southern teams, at Memphis on Dec. 28 and at New Orleans on Dec. 31. The Memphis game will be against the pick of the Vanderbilt and Suwanee elevens, and at New Orleans the All-Stars will meet the best men from the University of Louisiana and one or two other Southern colleges. The All-Stars' line-up will be as follows: Ends, Houston, Harvard, and Auchincloss, Yale; tackle, Fish, Harvard, and Crumpacker, Michigan; guards, Hoar, Harvard, and Parks, Yale; centre, Cass, Princeton; quarter back, Gardner, Harvard; half backs, Pfiffer and Moore, Princeton, and Corbett, Harvard; full back, White, Harvard.

Field Club Soccer Team Picked.

The Executive Committee of the Field Club Soccer League of New York and New Jersey has selected a team to represent the league in the forthcoming inter-State match with the Philadelphia Cricket Clubs League to be played in Philadelphia on Dec. 17. The players chosen from the five clubs comprising the league here are the following: Goal, Braithwaite, Bensonhurst F. C.; backs, McClelland, Crescent A. C., and Webber, Montclair A. C.; half backs, De Wilde, Staten Island; Armstrong, Crescent A. C., (Captain,) and Barriskil, Oritani F. C.; forwards, Parry, Montclair A. C.; Jackson, Crescent A. C.; Kerr, Crescent A. C.; Van Laar, Staten Island, and Kaufmann, Staten Island. Van der Zee of Staten Island was selected first substitute to act either as back or forward. Other substitutes: Charlwood, Crescent A. C., back; MacPhee, Bensonhurst F. C.; A. Warren Smith, Staten Island, and Nelson, Montclair A. C., half backs; Swann, Oritani F. C.; Haydock, Oritani F. C., and Diem, Montclair A. C., forwards. The league players will wear white shirts, blue knickers, and the Oritani stockings.

Folwell to Coach Lafayette Again.

EASTON, Penn., Dec. 7.—Robert C. Folwell of Philadelphia was to-night re-elected coach of the Lafayette football team.

Wants Grad to Coach Yale Freshmen

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 7.—Ted Coy, who was Yale's head football coach this Fall, calls for reform in the coaching of freshmen football teams. In a letter to The Yale Daily News he advocates a new system which will call for the selection annually of some graduate who has been a 'Varsity player to remain with the freshman eleven all season as coach. Yale's present system calls for a freshman coach from one of the undergraduate classes, usually a 'Varsity substitute player.

CYCLISTS BEHIND RECORD.

Slow Pace Set by Plodders in Six-Day Race at Garden.

SCORE AT 2 A. M.

	Miles.	Laps.
Macfarlane-Clarke	1,424	7
Hehir-Goulett	1,424	7
Folger-Hill	1,424	7
Root-Moran	1,424	7
Mitten-Thomas	1,424	7
Cameron-Halstead	1,424	7
Pye-Walthour	1,424	7
Collins—Drobach	1,424	7
West-Demara	1,424	6
Rutt-Stol	1,424	5

The record, made by Macfarlane and Clarke in 1909, is 1,477 miles, 2 laps.

The reduction of the field from thirteen teams, the number of plodders at midnight Tuesday, to ten, and the lapping of the Rutt-Stol and Clarke-Robertson combinations, were the prominent happenings at Madison Square Garden yesterday, during the third day of the six-day bicycle race. The half-way mark of the 142-hour ride was reached at 11 o'clock last night with seven teams on even terms for first place, two teams one lap behind, and still another team two laps behind the leaders. The tail-end team was none other than the speedy Germans, Rutt and Stol, who had always been in the front since they made their bow to New York's six-day race enthusiasts in 1907.

In a sprint started by Rutt at 10:45 o'clock Walker of the Pye-Walker team went down as the bunched field of riders turned into the Twenty-seventh Street side, and Mitten went over him. Walker was rendered unconscious, and an examination by the official physicians developed that he had a severely bruised left side, and a sprained ankle. He was unconscious over twenty-five minutes after the accident. Mitten received a bad shaking up, and sustained several bruises, but none severe enough to keep him out of the race.

The pace of the riders fell off considerably from that of the previous days, and midnight found the men far behind the record. At midnight Tuesday the men were only five miles behind the best previous figure, but at noon they were 26.5 miles behind, in spite of the early morning sprinting. At 6 o'clock they were 34.5 miles behind, and at 10 o'clock the difference had been increased to 45 miles.

The big surprise of the race came yesterday morning between 3 and 4 o'clock, when the two teams generally regarded as the strongest in the field—Rutt-Stol and McFarland-Clarke—were lapped. The German team fell two laps behind the leaders, and the Americans lost one. The sprint, which was started by Hill at 3:25, lasted half an hour and resulted not only in putting back the two most likely looking leaders, but two other teams as well—the Lawson-Walthour and the Lawrence-Wiley combinations. Both teams withdrew from the race, Lawson giving up at 3:30 and the pony team at 7:21, after demanding that the lap be returned to them, which was refused.

Lawson, who had been riding alone for more than an hour, was the first to fall, being lapped at 3:27. Three minutes later he dropped another lap and the team retired with a score of 1,035.3 miles. At 3:29 o'clock Clarke was lapped and said he had a punctured tire. An examination showed a cut tire, but the officials refused to regard it as a puncture, and the lap counted against the team. Laurence was lapped at 3:29, and during the next two minutes Stol of the Rutt-Stol team was passed twice.

The Wiley-Lawrence team, after riding almost four hours, gave up between 7 and 8 o'clock. They protested the officials' ruling, declaring that they had kept up with the field at all times, but the protest was not allowed. Their withdrawal reduced the size of the field to ten teams. The pony team had covered 1,099.2 miles when they quit the race.

Princeton to Play Cornell Nine.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 7.—For the first time in a number of years Cornell and Princeton will play baseball again next Spring, according to the schedule announced to-day. With the exception of the Southern trip, the complete schedule is made public. Two games are also scheduled with Yale and Columbia and four with Pennsylvania. The schedule:

April 15, Lehigh at Ithaca; 20, Trinity at Ithaca; 22, Bucknell at Ithaca; 28, Columbia at New York; 29, Princeton at Princeton.

May 3, Penn State at Ithaca; 5, Dartmouth at Ithaca; 6, Dartmouth at Ithaca; 13, Princeton at Ithaca; 18, Dartmouth at Hanover; 19, Williams at Williamstown; 20, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia; 24 Lafayette at Ithaca; 27, Yale at Ithaca; 30, Pennsylvania at Ithaca.

June 3, Williams at Ithaca; 14, Columbia at Ithaca; 16, Harvard at Cambridge; 17, Yale at New Haven; 19, Pennsylvania at Ithaca; 21 Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

Winter Baseball Gossip.

Billy Clymer, who wore a Pittsburg uniform for many years and now manager of the Wilkesbarre team, has bought Pitcher Oberlin, who last season was with the Senators. Oberlin played in the American Association when Clymer was manager of the Columbus team.

Wyatt Lee, who pitched winning ball for the Newark team last season, was once a Pirate and also a Senator.

Charlie Comiskey is angling for Wood and Corrigan of the Bostons.

Many of the old-time ball players are seeking umpire positions for either league. Among them are Kid Gleason, formerly with the Phillies; Heine Peitz, the old Cincinnati Red catcher, who later managed the Louisville team of the American Association; Carl Lundgren, formerly a pitcher with the Cubs; Jack Doyle, veteran of New York, Chicago, and many other teams.

Jimmy Casey, the former Brooklyn third baseman and later manager of the Montreal Club, has signed to manage the Fort Wayne team in the Central League.

Bobby Wallace, short stop of the Browns, is slated for manager of the team for next season. Wallace will attend the annual American League meeting with President Hedges.

Bill Carrigan, who may be sold or traded by the Boston Americans, had fifteen passed balls during last season.

Walter Manning, the former pitcher of the Yankees, is credited with only one put-out in sixteen games.

Eddie Collins of the world champions is now writing for several of the Western papers. There must be more money writing baseball than playing it. His team mates are now playing the National game in Cuba.

Donahue, the younger brother of the famous "Jiggs" Donahue, who was obtained by Philadelphia from Boston this season, is the only catcher with a perfect average, and he worked in eighteen games.

Harry Morgan, another of the world champions, has entered vaudeville on the Keith circuit.

William Joyce, who led the Giants in 1896, '97, and '98, will probably be seen as a manager of one of the major league teams.

Hack Throws Westergaard Twice.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—George Hackenschmidt defeated Joss Westergaard, the Iowa wrestler, in two straight falls to-night. The first fall was taken in 1:02:15, with a double bar arm hold. The second fall occurred in 11:20 with a reversed body hold.

Maloney and Schwartz at Long Acre.

Tommy Maloney of the West Side will meet Yankee Schwartz in a ten-round bout at the Long Acre Athletic Association to-night. The New Yorker is clever, but will have a difficult proposition in defeating the boy from Philadelphia. Young Seiger, a brother of Charley Seiger, the Hoboken iron man, will be seen in the semi-final of six rounds against Young Rozner. There will be several preliminaries.

RACING PENALTIES UPHELD BY BOARD

National Trotting Men Decide Many Cases of Infractions of Rules.

The Board of Review of the National Trotting Association was in session all day yesterday untangling the numerous complications which have come up during the past season of light harness racing. One of the most common grievances which come before this body at each meeting is that of starting horses in races out of their class. A palpable example of a violation of this sort came before the board, and resulted in the expulsion of L. G. Marshall of Towanda, Penn., and the bay mare, Lucy Simpson, alias Roscoe Bell.

Mr. Marshall last Fall raced Roscoe Bell at Whitney's Point, N. Y., and won several purses. The mare was entered in the 2:30 class and had no trouble winning. Suspicion fell on the mare, and the Board of Review was asked to identify the animal. The board found that Roscoe Bell was Lucy Simpson, 2:12¼, and winning in the 2:30 class was little more than a warm up for the mare, so owner and horse were promptly expelled. A. K. Hobbs of Port Norfolk, Va., applied for the removal of the expulsion which was placed on him last year for starting Adolgo out of her class and racing the animal under the name of Irish Lad. The application was denied.

Wilson Queen of Danielsville, Penn., was fined $100 and suspended for one year for starting the chestnut mare, Mabel M., 2:22¼, by Bonnie MacGregor, out of her class at Nazareth, Penn. Eben Clark of Allentown brought the charge. Queen entered Mabel M. in the 2:35 class, and was warned before the race that the mare was racing out of her class. Queen did not heed the warning and drove Mabel M. She broke her hopples and was distanced in the first heat, but the owner and horse were penalized by the board. The roan stallion, Slick Johnson, 2:18 3-4, owned by O. W. Aiken of Notasulga, Ala., was raced out of his class last September at Knoxville, Tenn., and cleaned up winnings of $180 in the 2:30 class. The horse, owner, and driver, Fred Newell, were all suspended until the unlawful winnings are returned. Mr. Aiken had the same excuse that many horsemen have in similar cases. He said he didn't know Slick Johnson ever had a mark of 2:18¾.

One case which was tried before the Board of Review yesterday was a grave reflection on the timers who officiated at the race meeting at White River Junction, Vt., last Summer. William H. Page of Barre, Vt., had a horse, Al Deland, entered in the 2:20 pace. The timers gave out a mark of 2:18¼ in the second heat of the race, so J. T. Waite of Boston protested and said that Al Deland had been raced out of his class. The investigation of the race showed a remarkable state of affairs. In the second heat, it seems, that the watches held by two of the three timers had stopped, and the third watch, on being examined the next day was found to be incorrect. The board decided yesterday that Mr. Page did not race the horse out of his class, and that the time of the second heat was not taken correctly, being nothing more than guess work on the part of the judges. The horse received a mark of 2:19½, the time he made in the fourth heat of the same race. The charges against Mr. Page and his horse were dismissed.

Dr. E. W. Woodmier of Scranton, Penn., made an open confession to the board about his bay mare, Kid Faber, a trotter, which won purses at Stroudsburg, Penn., last Summer. Dr. Woodmier entered the mare in the 3:20 class and had no trouble in winning. When the horse was protested, Dr. Woodmier of his own accord immediately started an investigation and learned that Kid Faber had a mark of 2:34¼, made at Newton, N. J., in 1909. He said he acted in good faith, and was ignorant of the fact that his mare was raced out of her class. He was not suspended, but will have to give back his unlawful winnings, which amounted to several hundred dollars.

The horsemen on the circuit in Northern New York were very much puzzled during the past season about a trotter, a bay mare called Tublina. Indentification was asked and the board decided that the mare was "O. K." It belongs to E. A. Le Febvre of Montreal. He bought it at a sale in California when the animal had a spavin and was thought to be useless. He doctored it, and it proved to be a winner and not a "ringer," as many believed.

There are still about thirty cases to come before the board, and the session will continue until all the business is cleared up.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—The Board of Appeals of the American Trotting Association, in session here to-day, made public its finding in a number of cases, among them the following:

Ordered Harry Palmer of Lacrosse, Wis., and the mare Elfah, alias Madge Kennedy, expelled.

Sustained protest of N. K. Cornwall of Thamesville, Ont., and his brown gelding Bonnie Claude, against collection of fee by Bothwell Driving Club, also of Ontario.

Permanent reinstatement was granted the Calgary Turf Club and Alexander Storey of Northwest Territory, Canada.

Many Boxers at Quinn's Benefit.

The benefit to Joseph Quinn, who recently lost his eyesight at the Olympic Athletic Club, proved a success, and was witnessed by about 1,000 persons. The entertainment was under the charge of the News Dealers' Union, and was carried out without a hitch. Nearly every boxer of note was present and either made a speech or engaged in a small bout with a worthy opponent. Barry Hill, the newcomer from the amateur ranks, and Battling Kitty put up a good bout that went six rounds. Owen Moran and Kid Broad engaged in a three-round exhibition. The Houck brothers of Philadelphia, Tommy and Willie, went three fast rounds. Cy Smith and Bert Waters also boxed three rounds, and Joe Farmer and Leo Johnson, who met at the last stag of the club, were seen again for six rounds.

LASBURY AND GRIFFIN DRAW.

Sharkey A. C. Bouts Show Improvement Over Previous Cards.

The bouts at the Sharkey A. C. last night showed marked improvement over those of the past, and although there was no real championship in any one of the contests, they were fairly well matched and all but one went the scheduled number of rounds. Jack Lasbury and Darkey Griffin, who furnished the star attraction, went ten rounds to a draw, but the affair was not of the best class, as neither man had much of a punch, and although willing to mix matters, there was no damage done to either contestant.

Both men fought fairly well and kept up a good pace, exchanging blows freely, but were unable to do any material damage to each other. Griffin did most of the leading and worked a good left hand jab, but it never landed hard on Lasbury's face, and he was unable to even draw the blood after scoring many times, while Lasbury was very successful in getting to Griffin's body at close range and pounded his ribs and stomach. Had either man sufficient force in his blows the affair would have undoubtedly ended sooner, as there were many good openings offered by both men; but, lacking the necessary strength, the bout went to the limit.

The programme was well blended with color, as in five of the six bouts on the card a white boy was pitted against a negro, and all but one went the limit.

Wagner and McGovern in Ring.

Young Wagner and Philly McGovern, bantamweights, will clash to-night at the Brooklyn Beach Athletic Club of Brooklyn, and one of the fastest ten-round bouts that has been held in New York in years should be witnessed. The winner of the battle will be matched with Digger Stanley, the English bantamweight champion, who is coming to America in a couple of weeks. Stanley is coming mainly to meet Champion Johnny Coulon, but first will take on the winner of to-night's fight. Both Wagner and McGovern declare they can beat Stanley, and if they do they will get first chance at Coulon's title.

Smith and Hurley at Olympic.

Cyclone Cy Smith of Hoboken and Battling Hurley of Passaic will fight before the members of the Olympic Athletic Club on West 125th Street on Monday night. This is one of the best bouts ever put on in New York City, as both boys are hard hitters. The Olympic Club members will see a repetition of the Tommy Houck-Jimmy Carroll fight, which was considered one of the best bouts ever held in New York.

Mitchell Leaves Amateur Ranks.

Terry Mitchell, the amateur welterweight champion, will make his professional debut at the boxing stag given by the Bedford Athletic Club at Congress Hall, Brooklyn, to-morrow evening, when he meets Jack Ritchie in the ten-round star bout of a good bill. Mitchell was among the top-notchers as an amateur, and hopes to make good as a "pro." The semi-final will bring together Marty Allen and Willie Foust in a six-round bout, and the preliminaries will be four-round bouts between Battling Kelly and Smiling Sachs, Jack Burges and Billy Hill and Jack Glick and Willie Ray.

SUNDAY GOLF NOT POPULAR.

Scotsmen Not in Favor of the Sport on the Sabbath.

Sunday golf, which is one of our most popular sports in this country, has not met with much approval in Scotland. Although Sunday golf is played here and there in Scotland in the neighborhood of the large towns, it is far from being such a popularly recognized institution among memberships as it is in England. It is impossible, however, to doubt that the movement in its favor is slowly spreading north of the Tweed. At present a conflict is taking place among the members of the Ranfurly Castle Club at Bridge of Weir as to whether or not Sunday golf should be sanctioned by the club, no caddies being allowed.

At a recent meeting of members it was decided by 139 to 85 votes to sanction Sunday golf; but the opponents of the movement demanded a poll of the whole membership as to their sentiments on the subject, and this was taken. In a statement which has been issued reviewing the position of the club the minority point out that members joined the club with the knowledge that Sunday golf was prohibited, that the club is owner of the golf course, and that, therefore, each member is a part owner of the links. Increased responsibility, therefore, rests upon each member as a part owner of the course as to whether or not Sunday golf should be recognized by the club as a whole.

In a keen and delicate controversy of this kind, where a satisfactory compromise is scarcely possible of achievement, there is a good deal to be said in favor of those members who assume the neutral attitude of saying that, while they do not wish and are never likely to play golf on Sunday themselves, they can see no valid reason why they should interfere with the liberty of others who hold as sincerely different opinions from their own.

Don't Buy a Discount--Buy a Motor Car

If there ever was a time to buy a car with a reputation, now is the time.

There is a big difference between a cut price and a bargain.

There is also a difference between price cutting and low prices. The price of an inferior article is always a high price no matter how much you may cut it.

Any unknown broker might advertise cut prices on a diamond. But that wouldn't be a bargain. It would be a chance. If Tiffany advertised cut prices on a diamond, that would be a bargain. Because if Tiffany said it was a diamond it would be a diamond. But Tiffany is not going to advertise diamonds at cut prices. First, because diamonds are diamonds. Second, because Tiffany is Tiffany.

A diamond is a bargain at its list price any time. So is a good motor car. A poor one is dear at any price.

• • •

When you buy a car, you forget the price almost as soon as you sign the check. The car you cannot forget. You use that.

If it is a good car it serves you faithfully and proves worth everything you paid for it. If it is not a good car it causes you trouble and will not be worth even a small part of what you paid for it.

Buy a car at a discount, and the probabilities are you will pay two or three times the sum you "saved" to get the service the price of the car should have included.

Why should a car that has been painstakingly made and honestly priced be sold at a discount? A cut price car either was not worth in the beginning all that was asked for it, or else it has depreciated in value as compared with other cars selling at the same list price.

Unless a car is a drug on the market it will sell without discounts. If it was a car of unusual value at the list price, it wouldn't be a drug on the market.

• • •

There are a great many people in the world who spend a great deal of time trying to get something for nothing. Every one of them fails—always has and always will.

You cannot get a good automobile and the service that a good automobile should give without paying a fair price,—a price which recompenses the manufacturer for designing and building the car and the dealer for his service in selling it to you and in taking care of you afterwards.

You pay for just what you get and you get just what you pay for, and nothing more.

• • •

Chalmers cars have never been high priced cars. We did our price cutting three years ago when we put out the first real automobile that ever was sold for as low a price as $1,500.

We have always put unusual value into our cars at the prices. They are worth all that we ask for them.

Judged by common motor car standards, they are worth much more than we ask for them. Ask the owners. Ask engineers—men who know. Ask people in the trade.

• • •

Now if you could get a Chalmers car below list price, it would be a bargain. You know that it would be. You would snap it up. Why? Simply because a Chalmers car has the reputation of being a high-grade car.

You know the record of this car's performance. You know that it won the title of "Champion car." You know that it won the 1910 Glidden Tour. You know that it has made good in the hands of thousands of owners. You know there is practically no second-hand trade in Chalmers cars—that you can always get a good price for a Chalmers. You know that a Chalmers is a real asset,—an investment, not only for one year, but for many years.

You know that it has beauty and fine finish; that it will endure; that it will be consistent; that it is painstakingly built and honestly priced. In fact, you know its reputation, and knowing that, you know that a Chalmers car at a discount would be a great bargain.

• • •

But you know, too, that you could not get a Chalmers car at a discount. And the reason why you can't is that it has this reputation. It earned its reputation by being so good—so desirable. You can't get a Chalmers at a discount because our policy is one price to all. One trouble with buying discounts is that you never know whether your price is as low as some other buyers'.

Chalmers cars have proved that nowhere else can you get so much value,—price considered as you get in the Chalmers. Because Chalmers cars are built on a quality, rather than a quantity basis. Because they are manufactured on a small margin of profit. Because they are built to give the service that a buyer wants when he gets a car. A discount will never make up for the absence of that service.

More than ever before, this is the time to buy a car with a reputation—a car whose quality will endure long after price is forgotten.

In addition to our regular Touring Cars we believe we have the smartest and best Limousines that can be sold for $3,000. We ask your early consideration either for immediate delivery or delivery in the Spring, for we have already taken orders for more than half our entire allotment to July 1st, 1912.

You will remember that in addition to the above "We Guarantee the Service."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Active and Higher—Call Money Rates, 2½@3⅜ Per Cent.

SELLING PRESSURE REMOVED

Recoveries from Tuesday's Decline Follow—Winter Wheat Condition Figures Low—Iron Output Reduced.

Transactions in the first hour on the Stock Exchange yesterday represented nearly one-half the volume of business for the full day, the trading in this respect almost exactly reversing the trend of Tuesday's market. Where the great increase in dealings as the day progressed on Tuesday reflected liquidation, the opposite movement yesterday indicated the withdrawal of selling orders from the market, and just as the pressure on Tuesday provoked heavy declines, its removal yesterday brought about a rather substantial rally. This was not accomplished, however, until the heavy offerings of the first hour had driven prices below the low levels of the previous night, but from the noon hour on the movement was forward, with concentrated activity and strength at the very close. The recoveries were upon the whole considerably less than the losses of the preceding session, but in a few issues, including Reading, Lehigh Valley, Copper, and a half dozen specialties, advances of from 1 to 2 points or more were noted.

Among the day's news developments of interest to the markets were the Government's report on the condition of Winter wheat and the statement of The Iron Age on pig iron production for the month of November. As had been expected the lack of moisture during and since the sowing of the Winter crop resulted in a low condition figure for Dec. 1. This is placed at 82.5 by the Department of Agriculture, and compares with 95.8 at the same time last year, 85.2 in 1908, and a ten-year average of 91.3 for the season. For two reasons this showing was received without anxiety by produce and financial markets. In the first place, the area under cultivation is estimated to be nearly 830,000 acres more than that sown in 1909, and in the second place condition figures based upon the appearance of tops are of little value for the plant itself, as is well known, strikes down for moisture in dry seasons. Beyond this, there has been a heavy fall of snow over most of the Winter wheat States since the department's figures were made up, and the situation to that extent is improved. As for the November pig iron output of 1,909,780 tons, the smallest for any month since May 1909, no other showing than this had been foreshadowed by the news from the steel and iron trades. The daily average is placed at 63,659 tons, against 67,520 tons in October, and the bulk of the shrinkage is attributed to the reduction in the output of the steel works. Improvement here must await the favorable solution of the problems confronting the steel trade in general, and these problems are really those of the railroads.

Call money rates ruled at 3 per cent. or better the greater part of the day, reflecting the heavy losses which the banks have undergone in connection with the renewal of the interior demand for funds, but while the actual loss to the Sub-Treasury since Friday last of $4,545,000 is little less than the surplus reported on Saturday, the movement of foreign exchange suggests such a shifting of loans to the easier London money market as will favorably influence this week's bank statement. Money in London displayed such ease in the course of the day as to suggest the possibility of another reduction in the bank rate at to-day's meeting of the Directors, but the unsettlement of sentiment in connection with the progress of the elections will probably work against such a step.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 7.—Margin calls were out in some quantity in this morning's mails, and local commission houses reported that the responses were not on the whole very good. The result was quite a little forced selling in the initial dealings, chiefly in Lehigh Valley, Reading, United Gas Improvement, and United States Steel. When this had been cleared up a better tone developed all around, and most stocks closed with net gains for the day. The local traction stocks were a feature of the trading in this city in so much as they maintained a firm aspect during the morning general reaction, and then receded when the list, as a whole, began to harden.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

Dealings on the Consolidated Stock Exchange were heavy and distributed over a broad list. Fifty-eight different issues were represented by transactions on the floor, with total sales of 111,790 shares. Prices, compared with the New York Stock Exchange, differed quite widely at times. Generally the low quotations were above the other board, while the high quotations were under. The relative firmness displayed at the lower levels reflected large covering of short contracts.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Trading in the local list was very quiet and confined to a comparatively few issues. Prices were steady as a rule, although Sears-Roebuck common weakened in sympathy with the Eastern market. Illinois Brick picked up a large fraction in price. While the market broadened a little in the afternoon, price changes were small as a rule. Illinois Brick slid back a point, to 66, and Sears-Roebuck common closed at 179. Match was half a point higher than yesterday, and South Side Elevated advanced a point. Chicago Railways, Series 2, sold off a fraction from the first sale.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Fluctuations Irregular, Leaving Most Issues at Close Above Day's Lowest.

SOME FRACTIONAL GAINS

Several of the Mining Issues Close Fractionally Higher—Chino Sells Off.

Curb stocks moved somewhat irregularly yesterday, and although there was a continuance of the weakness of the previous days in some issues, the closing prices were generally above the day's low levels and in some instances represented gains on the day's transactions. British Columbia gained ⅛ and Greene-Cananea ⅛. Miami, after selling off ⅛, closed even with the opening level at 19⅛. Ray Central gained 1-16 and Ray Consolidated, after selling from the opening at 18⅛ down to 18, closed at 18⅛. Chino displayed notable weakness, being one of the few issues to close at the day's lowest. The price dropped from the opening at 21⅛ to 20⅞ on sales of 6,004 shares.

The Winter Wheat Report.

The consensus of opinion that it is very difficult to tell from the condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1 what the harvest of the following June will be, detracted from the importance which otherwise would have been attached to the Government crop report showing a condition of winter wheat on Dec. 1 about 13 points under the condition on Dec. 1 last year. The wheat market, instead of being in any way disturbed by the report, closed lower for the day both here and in Chicago, quotations for the several options showing declines of from ⅛ to ¾ of a cent a bushel. The record shows that in some seasons there has been marked improvement during the winter over the conditions reported on Dec. 1. On the other hand that the first Spring report on the condition of winter wheat in some years has failed to show a continuance of a highly favorable condition reported in the December estimate. The complete uncertainty regarding the changes which follow the December report serves to cause judgment to be suspended regarding the final outcome of the crop, particularly this year in view of the fact that although showing a low condition, the Government's bulletin reports a substantial increase in winter wheat acreage over last year.

Money Higher Here.

Money was higher here yesterday, lower in London, and the sterling exchange market reflected the shifting of money rates in the two centres by a decline of about 30 points. There was talk of the placing of foreign loans in this market, although the advance in call money, which ruled at 3¼ per cent. yesterday, compared with a prevailing rate of 2¾ per cent. on Tuesday, was hardly sufficient, it was thought, to offer much inducement to seek money on the other side. Call money loaned in London as low as 2¼ per cent. yesterday, but the discount rate for short bills was 3 7-16 per cent. The New York banks again lost cash yesterday. The Sub Treasury received from the banks $900,000 more than it paid out, and in addition $300,000 was transferred to New Orleans, to which point a number of telegraphic transfers through the Sub Treasury have been made in the last ten days.

Stockholders Increase.

Statistics covering companies with aggregate capital stock of more than $7,000,000,000 show that these companies have a total of 746,221 shareholders. Last year at this time these same companies had 678,624 stockholders, an increase of 67,597. These figures were obtained by The Journal of Commerce from 116 companies, including forty-nine railroad companies and sixty-seven industrial companies. The detailed returns show that the number of holders of the stocks of the railroad companies increase by 31,113, while the industrial concerns increased their shareholders by 36,484. The combined capital of the forty-nine railroads is more than $4,000,000,000 and their stocks are held by 310,581 stockholders, whose average holdings amount to $12,961, a decrease of $448 compared with a year ago. The capital of the sixty-seven industrial companies exceeds $3,000,000,000 and is held by 435,640 stockholders, whose average holdings are $6,983, a decrease of $546 compared with a year ago. The average number of stockholders in each of the railroad companies is 6,338, compared with 5,708 last year, an increase of 635, and the average number in the industrial companies is 6,502, an increase of 694.

Better Steel Sentiment.

The summary of the situation in the steel trade made by Judge Gary in his statement of Tuesday afternoon was regarded generally yesterday as of a reassuring nature. The fact that orders have been increasing month by month since the period of midsummer dullness came to an end was in itself good news to many whose notions of the industry are limited to what the tape tells. The constant decrease in unfilled tonnages reported month by month since June was a source of confusion to no small part of the Wall Street community which didn't recognize the fact that the figures supplied on the 10th of each month gave no real clue to the amount of new business coming in.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—Money was plentiful and easy to-day. Discount rates were weak in anticipation of a reduction in the discount rate of the Bank of England in the near future.

The stock market opened weak, but later became steadier. British securities rallied on repurchases, Consols recovered an early loss of a quarter of a point, and foreign bonds advanced on investment buying.

American securities opened about unchanged. The market advanced a fraction, but turned downward before noon on the poor steel trade reports and realizing. Prices drooped further in the afternoon, when Wall Street sold Union Pacific and United States Steel. The closing was uncertain and heavy.

Bar silver steady, 25d per ounce.

Money, 2¼@3¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3½ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 7.05; at Lisbon, 8.00.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—The Bourse opened weak to-day following the decline in New York yesterday. Later prices improved and the closing was firm.

Three per cent. rentes, 97 francs 87½ centimes for the account.

Exchange on London, 25 francs 26 centimes for checks.

BERLIN, Dec. 7.—Unfavorable New York advices caused weakness on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45½ pfennigs for checks.

Money, 3½ per cent.

Private discount rate, 4⅝ per cent.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

WHEAT.—The Government report was the feature of yesterday's session, and although many thought that this has restricted operations the immediate effect on prices following its issuance was rather insignificant. It appeared, however, as though bulls were disappointed with the showing and outsiders were also disposed to regard the report in a comparatively bearish light, or at least sold freely in the late trading. Prices, as a result, closed at near the low of the day, although there was still a great deal of caution manifested following the decline.

The condition given by the Government of 82.5 compares with 95.8 last year, and this condition applied on an area of 34,485,000 acres against 29,644,000 harvested last year and 33,483,000 acres planted indicated a crop of over 500,000,00 bushels, against 589,000,000 indicated last year and a final outturn of 458,000,000 bushels. Naturally there will be more or less deterioration from now until harvest, so that the report in itself is rather unimportant, although it will be remembered that beneficial rains have fallen since Government observations were taken. Prices during the early part of the day were rather irregular, although on the whole trade was quiet. Liverpool cables and bearish Argentine advices furnished the impetus toward the early unsettlement, but pressure was not heavy and values held fairly well.

Receipts so far this week amount to 2,267,000 bushels, against 2,250,000 bushels last week and 1,192,000 bushels last year. Shipments for the same periods are small, amounting to 238,000 bushels against 1,007,000 bushels and 549,000 bushels, respectively. Although there seemed to be an attempt to arouse bull enthusiasm by the circulation of more favorable cash advices, as a whole sentiment was against values with the absence of important export demand adding to the pessimistic feeling prevailing. Now that Argentine conditions are better defined, it is thought that the distribution of supplies will be the dominating factor, although progress of Winter wheat in this country will bear careful watching. There were no export sales reported. Cash No. 2 red quoted at 98¼c elevator, and 99¼c free on board, afloat, for export; No. 2 hard, $1.02⅝; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.19⅝, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba, $1.04⅝.

CORN—A heavy undertone was in evidence during the greater part of the day with offerings liberal and showing a tendency to increase on the bulges. The heavy buying recently has resulted in a weaker technical position, and many private advices were received stating that farmers were showing a desire to sell more freely, and that shipping demand for the next several weeks had been fairly well supplied. Cash markets were also heavy, but near the close covering of December shorts imparted a somewhat better undertone. Export business is quiet and sales yesterday amounted to 40,000 bushels. Cash No. 2 Western quoted at 56⅝c, elevator, and 55c for late December, free on board, afloat, for export.

OATS.—The market continues to be dominated by the fluctuations in other markets. Further predictions were received relative to an increase of movement in the near future, which discouraged buying, with the shipping demand also smaller. Receipts so far this week amount to 1,190,000 bushels, against 1,550,000 last week and 1,108,000 last year. Shipments for the same period were 1,115,000 bushels, against 1,395,000 bushels and 1,188,000 bushels, respectively. Cash standards quoted at 39c; No. 2 white, 39½c, and No. 3 white, 38½c.

PROVISIONS.—Decided strength prevailed in the early market, with shorts good buyers. The gain was pronounced in pork, and was in face of liberal hog receipts and lower-priced hogs. Later, however, under realizing and in absence of an urgent demand, a partial recession occurred.

COTTONSEED OIL.

A sudden reversal in conditions pertaining to crude oil in the South and to the consumers' position accounted for the advance in the future markets. Soapmaking interests were said to be buying, and refining concerns were also bidding for substantial amounts. Crude values over night advanced 1 to 1½c per gallon and tended to emphasize the limited way in which holders are disposing of oil. Other factors toward the advance were well-defined reports stating that Italy was showing more inquiries at present levels, and the facts that lard and cotton were firm. Shorts were good buyers, with quite a little new buying noticeable and offerings chiefly in the way of profit taking. At the close the demand was still good, and it appeared as though buying orders had not been executed.

COTTON.

The market continues quiet, [illegible] larly within a small range, [illegible] disposition to trade until the [illegible] ports are dispensed with. The bulk of the day's operations was composed of evening up, with a good deal of switching in progress, although during the early session there was active buying by a prominent floor broker, who was thought to be acting for bull account. This buying tended to impart a good undertone to the trading, but in the afternoon, when the demand seemed to subside, a sagging tendency was noted. News advices continue of a bullish nature, but are receiving little consideration. Further crop guesses were submitted, with the members of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange estimating the final outturn at 11,415,000 bales, while a prominent commission house gave as its idea, according to advices received, 12,250,000 bales, inclusive of linters and repacks. These estimates show that there is still diversity of opinion existing, which will only be cleared by the Government, and even then the usual amount of doubt will be in evidence, according to the figures given, and to the market position of operators. Foreigners are also apparently awaiting the report, although yesterday their market exhibited a good deal of strength. A prominent English authority figured the crop at 11,275,000 bales, and this, with an accompanying statement of consumption, was thought to have had a sustaining effect in that market. The ginners' report will be issued to-day at 10 o'clock, but it is evident that a comparatively bearish showing is expected. Bulls, however, bring out the point that according to numerous advices received ginning to Dec. 1 has been rapid and the amount to be picked is excessively small, ranging from 3 to 8 per cent. in a number of localities. On the other hand, bears state that for the above assertions to be borne out the season would have to be an unusual one. Last year on Dec. 1 88.1 was picked, two years ago 84.1, three years ago 75.5, four years ago 77.2, and five years ago 82.8. Southern spot markets were generally unchanged, with New York spot cotton also unchanged from the previous close. Middling uplands 15 and Gulf 15.25.

COFFEE.

Coffee was active, sales amounting to 136,500 bags. The opening was firm at an advance of 5 points for December, and 11@25 points advance for the other positions. Havre gained 1½@2¼f and Hamburg advanced 1@1¼ pfennigs. The trade was excited owing to a report that 600,000 bags valorization coffee has been sold in Havre. Difference of opinion prevailed, but some authorities believed that another 600,000 bags can be sold after Jan. 1. Near the close prices lost part of the early gain, closing barely steady at a net advance of 5@17 points. Rio was firm, unchanged, while Santos was quiet and unchanged to 50 reis lower. Rio exchange on London was unchanged to 16 9-32d. Spot coffee, Rio No. 7, 13⅛c.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—A further decline was witnessed to-day in the Boston market, both traders and commission houses selling stocks freely throughout the list. Amalgamated declined to 61⅛, Lake Copper to 24½, and North Butte to 27. During the last hour there was some rally on the attempt of shorts to cover, and the market closed steady at a fair recovery.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Interest Centres in the Auction Market—Sale of Eighth Avenue Block Front Pending—Reported Deal in Pennsylvania Loft Zone—Bronx Sales.

More than usual interest was centred in the auction market yesterday, due to the offering of some excellent investment parcels in the midtown commercial section. The northwest corner of Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street, offered for the Alexander estate by Joseph P. Day, was sold to L. G. Timpson, representing Mrs. Anna A. Murtland, who controls an interest in the property. The site is a particularly choice one in the business district, occupying a plot 74.9 feet on the avenue and 84 feet on Twenty-third Street, being opposite the Masonic Hall. Mrs. Murtland's chief competitor was Elmer A. Darling, who owns adjoining property. The price was a trifle less than has been paid for neighboring Sixth Avenue property, and it was somewhat under the assessed valuation.

Another choice lot in Thirty-sixth Street, 300 feet west of Fifth Avenue, occupied by old buildings, went to the plaintiff, the County Holding Company, for $291,333.

The auction room will command the centre of interest to-day when the valuable Bruce estate, consisting of twenty-three parcels of property, chiefly in the downtown business district, will be sold by Joseph P. Day. The most southerly parcels, at 1 and 5 Platt Street, 229 Pearl Street, and 176 William Street, are within the insurance section. Above these is the plot at 84 and 86 Chambers Street, adjoining the Chemical National Bank. Further north is 368 Broadway, adjoining the Jay estate, plot at 370 Broadway, which has just been sold. There are three parcels on Canal Street, including the nine-story office building at the southeast corner of Broadway. Other parcels are located in the Bowery, in the Greenwich Village section, and in the Times Square section the northeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Forty-eighth Street.

Block Front on 8th Avenue Pending.

Negotiations are pending for the sale of the easterly block front on Eighth Avenue, extending from Forty-eighth to Forty-ninth Street and including 790 to 806 Eighth Avenue. The plot is at present covered by nine four-story buildings. The frontage on the avenue is 200.10 feet and on each street 80 feet. The parcel is owned by the Davies estate.

105-Year 23d Street Lease.

The Elias G. Brown estate has leased to L. T. Alton the property known as 149 East Twenty-third Street, for a term of 105 years, aggregating a rental of $250,000. The lessee will immediately erect upon it a building for business purposes. This property has been in the market for a number of years, but no lessee could be found who would take it for a term of years and improve it at his own cost and expense. Paul Doring negotiated the lease.

Sale in "Penn" Loft Zone.

An important deal in the Pennsylvania loft zone yesterday was the reported sale of the properties 247 and 249 West Thirty-seventh Street, consisting of two three-story dwellings, on plot 34 by 100.5. They are owned by Bridget McCabe and the Whitehead estate. Reckling & Vallender own 251 to 257, adjoining on the west, and the property 241 to 245, adjoining on the east, was recently purchased by I. Randolph Jacobs.

Private Dwellings in Demand.

B. Flanagan & Son have sold the premises [illegible] West Forty-eighth Street, a three-story high stoop brown stone dwelling on lot 19 by 100, for Charles F. Myers to Mary Campbell. Also 807 West Fiftieth Street, a three-story high-stooop brown stone dwelling on lot 19¼ by 100, for Charles F. Myers to Elizabeth Viau.

William P. Jones & Son, as brokers, have sold for James P. Keating, the three-story and basement high stoop dwelling, 139 East Twenty-ninth Street, to Joseph V. Malone. This property is located 175 feet east of Lexington Avenue, and will be held for investment.

E. Laufery has sold 81 East Ninety-first Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 18.8 by 67 by irregular.

Manhattanville Parcel Sold.

Susan W. Duryea has sold to Leopold Oppenheimer 617 to 621 West 130th Street, a plot 75 by 100.11, 275 feet west of Broadway. On the property are two-story brick buildings, which were seriously damaged by fire some time ago. They were formerly occupied by Murray & Hill.

Tenements for Investment.

H. M. Bloch & Brother have sold to K. Bessner the six-story tenement 250 Broome Street, on a plot 30.6 by 87.6. A. Hornstein negotiated the sale.

Hotel Normandie Store Leased.

Huberth & Gabel have leased for Herman Wronkow to the Advertising Bureau of The New York American the corner store in the Hotel Normandie at the southeast corner of Thirty-eighth Street and Broadway, for a term of ten years at a gross rental of $100,000.

Bronx Sales.

William F. Kenyon sold for Lauritanio & Amabile 2,183 Belmont Avenue, a three-story flat, with basement stores, on a lot 25 by 75 by 87.

Arthur J. Stelter has purchased from the East Bay Land and Improvement Company the plot 100 by 100 at the southeast corner of Oak Point Avenue and Tiffany Street. The property will be used for business purposes. A new pier is shortly to be constructed at the foot of Tiffany Street and the East River.

Eastern State Journal Building Sold

Charles Horton has sold the six-story office building known as the Eastern State Journal Building, on the north side of Railroad Avenue, White Plains, with frontage of 35 feet. It was one of the first office buildings erected in White Plains. The price paid was $80,000, and Harry O. Moody of the Woolworth Company is the purchaser.

Staten Island.

Samuel Ginsburg has sold for Frank Bonge to Warner & Pison a plot, 183 by 187, on Union Avenue, Mariners' Harbor, S. I.

Jersey City Sales.

G. Barrett Littell of Elizabeth has purchased from David B. Richardson the plant formerly of the Atlantic Brass Company located on Philip Street, near Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City. The property has a frontage of 172 feet on Philip Street and a depth of about 510 feet.

Marcus G. Goodman, building operator, of 76 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, has purchased from John G. Gerber two lots on the northeast corner of Hudson Avenue and Fulton Street, Union Hill. The purchaser will erect a four-story apartment for sixteen families. The building will be trimmed with pressed brick and limestone and contain apartments of four rooms and bath. The estimated cost of the structure is $20,000.

Abel I. Smith has sold to Thomas F. Farmer the three-story brick building 65 Hudson Street, corner of Sussex Street, Jersey City. The property has a frontage of 25 feet on Hudson Street and 100 feet on Sussex Street. The price paid is reported at $9,900.

The Hartford Suspension Company of Manhattan has purchased from Charles G. Tillinghast of Brooklyn a plot of six lots in the Marion section of Jersey City. The property is located on the northerly side of Broadway, between Tonnele and Van Wagenen Avenues, and has a frontage of 150 feet on Broadway, a depth of 156 feet on the east side, and 190 feet on the west. The purchaser contemplates the erection of a factory on the property.

Buys Old Redmond Estate.

The Redmond estate at Madison, N. J., has been sold through Edward P. Hamilton & Co. to F. Hallett Lovell, Jr., of the manufacturing firm of Lovell & McConnell, Newark, N. J. The property is on Loantaka Way and Woodland Avenue, within one mile of the station, adjoining and in close proximity to the valuable estates of the late D. Willis James, Charles W. Harkness, Marcellus Hartley Dodge, Mrs. George W. Jenkins, H. McK. Twombly, John A. Waterbury, Adolph Du Bary, and Otto H. Kahn, for which this section is noteworthy. The Redmond property comprises 135 acres of sightly rolling grounds, residence, cottage, and outbuildings.

Acreage Sale at Crugers.

The James Jay Smith Company has sold 3½ acres of its property at Boscobel, Crugers-on-Hudson, to Clarence D. Stone of Brooklyn, who will erect a bungalow. The plot is west of the railroad track and fronts directly on the river.

Flats for Astoria.

Jere F. Ryan has sold to William B. Nellan the plot 150 by 100, on Jamaica Avenue, west of Crescent Street, Astoria. Mr. Nallon has started building operations for four four-story flats. Staples & Ten Eyck were the brokers.

West Side Taxpayers' Meeting.

A regular meeting of the West Side Taxpayers' Association will be held this evening at 8 P. M. at 267 West Thirty-fourth Street. Reports of officers and commiteemen will be received, and the various committees announced for the ensuing year. John J. Pheelan, counsel, will also have something of interest to report on water metres and excessive bills rendered on same.

Theatre in 116th Street.

Plans have been filed for a two-story brick theatre on the north side of 116th Street, 143 feet west of Fifth Avenue, for the Mital Realty Company, of which Louis Starr is President. The building will have a frontage of 41 feet and a depth of 90.11 feet, with a façade of brick and limestone. There will be a seating capacity of 654. David Stone, the architect, estimates the cost at $50,000.

Open Air Class Room.

Plans have been filed for an open air class room and a diet kitchen on the roof of the two-story public bath and gymnasium on the north side of Carmine Street, 359 feet east of Hudson Street, and located partly in Hudson Park. The room is to be used as an open air class room for children who are inclined to tuberculosis, and is to cost $6,000.

Notes.

Lawrence B. Elliman, of the firm of Pease and Elliman, will deliver a talk on "Selling" in connection with the real estate course of the Young Men's Hebrew Association, in its assembly hall at Ninety-second Street and Lexington Avenue, this evening.

The purchaser of premises, 416 Madison Avenue, recently sold by Pease & Elliman, is a client of Winston H. Hagen of 49 Wall Street.

Justice Seabury in the Supreme Court has appointed Arthur H. Levy receiver of the rents of 67 West 130th Street, a private dwelling on plot 20.6 by 99.11, pending a suit brought by Blanche Walter to foreclose a mortgage of $15,000.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The storm that has prevailed over the eastern district since Monday has passed northeastward to the maritime provinces and has been followed by clearing weather throughout the eastern districts except in the Great Lake region, where a disturbance of moderate intensity is producing unsettled weather and snow.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate west. Middle Atlantic Coast, light to moderate west. South Atlantic Coast, light, variable.

Temperatures continue low in practically all districts east of the Rocky Mountains, and freezing temperatures prevailed this morning as far south as Northern Florida. Temperature below zero continues in the Northwest and in Vermont and New Hampshire.

Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have moderate to brisk west winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York and New England—Cloudy in south, snow flurries in north portion Thursday, followed by fair weather. Friday fair; moderate west winds.

New Jersey—Fair Thursday and Friday; not much change in temperature; light to moderate west winds.

Eastern Pennsylvania—Cloudy, followed by fair Thursday. Friday, fair; moderate west winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1909.	1910.		1909.	1910.
3 A. M.	35	28	4 P. M.	48	30
6 A. M.	38	21	6 P. M.	49	28
9 A. M.	40	21	9 P. M.	49	25
12 M.	42	26	12 P. M.	48	23

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 25; for the corresponding date last year it was 42; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 36.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 21; at 8 P. M. it was 26. Maximum temperature, 30 degrees at 2:20 P. M.; minimum, 20 degrees at 6:20 A. M. Humidity, 65 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 43 per cent at 8 P. M.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Pig Iron Production Curtailed—Good Orders for Structural Steel.

Sharp curtailment of pig iron production during November is indicated in the statistics compiled by The Iron Age, and made public yesterday. The Iron Age says:

November pig iron production was 1,909,780 tons for coke and anthracite iron—the smallest month's output since May, 1909. The daily average last month was 63,659 tons, against 67,520 tons a day in October. The shrinkage in steel works furnace output is responsible for all the falling off.

The net decrease in active blast furnaces in November was 13. Other furnaces will give up the struggle before the end of the year. Even with the more rapid curtailment of the past month stocks continue to increase. The United States Steel Corporation is now operating 54 per cent. of its blast furnace capacity, against 55 per cent. one week ago.

Pig iron production Dec. 1 was at the rate of about 22,750,000 tons a year, or 1,600,000 tons less than on Nov. 1. An output of 27,200,000 to 27,300,000 tons is now indicated for 1910, or 1,400,000 to 1,500,000 tons more than the record made in 1909. Of this increase fully half has been added to stocks.

The pig iron market is settling further into dullness. Foundry operations are slowing down, and while here and there iron is being bought for the first half, such transactions are the exception.

Further slackening of steel works and rolling mill operations has resulted from a falling off of specifications, and an increasing number of mills are working at 50 per cent. of capacity. Structural steel is just now the most promising line.

New rail orders include one of 5,000 tons taken at Chicago and 10,500 tons for the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, to be rolled at Ensley, while the division of 20,000 tons for the Reading between the Pennsylvania Steel and Bethlehem companies is practically assured. Sheet prices have been yielding under closer competition.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Structural awards afford most interesting news of a dull week. In spite of a rather dreary outlook for ore business next year, arrangements for increased capacity at the head of the lakes are being made. The Minnesota Steel Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, has issued specifications on 7,000 tons for buildings at its new Duluth plant. The Duluth & Iron Range Railroad has contracted with the American Bridge Company for an ore dock at Two Harbors, which will require 9,000 tons.

Continued heavy production of pig iron and increasing accumulations have been a menace to the market, which will be removed if the action of the blast furnace operators in curtailing production is continued. This tendency, which the trade earnestly hopes will be continued, is shown in blast furnace statistics for November, when 1,910,311 tons of pig iron were made, a loss of 175,894 tons, compared with October. The daily average for October was 67,197 tons, and for November 63,677 tons.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The Consular and Trade Report will note the following foreign trade opportunities. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to:

5,882. CANNED AND DRIED FRUITS.—An Egyptian business firm writes that it has extensive connections in the food and provision trade in general. There is a good market for the following articles: Canned salmon and lobster, canned fruit in syrup, dried fruit, prunes, &c.

5,883. AMERICAN GOODS.—An American Consular officer in Russia reports that a business man in his district is desirous of securing connections with American firms manufacturing the following: Naphtha, benzine, gasoline motors, leather, cotton, and camel's hair belting, brass fittings, and steel cables.

5,884. HARDWARE, TOOLS, AND GENERAL MACHINERY.—A business man in a European country advises an American Consular officer that he is anxious to secure catalogues and price lists of manufactures of hardware, tools, and a general line of machinery of the best types.

5,885. TRAMWAY MATERIALS.—An American Consul in the Far East reports that an electric tramway company in his district will extend and improve its lines in the near future. Specifications have not been completed, but a positive statement has been received from the general manager and chief engineer of the company that American firms will be given an opportunity to bid on materials. The Consul believes it would be advisable for American firms that can furnish steel rails and rolling stock to write at once to the general manager.

5,886. MINING MACHINERY.—A report from an American Consular officer in South America states that the owner of the extensive tin mines in his district is anxious to correspond with American exporters of mining machinery. Correspondence and advertising matter should be in Spanish.

5,887. AMERICAN NOVELTIES.—An Australian firm of importers and commission agents has informed an American Consul in that country that it is desirous of having samples sent to it and to obtain the agency for novelties and any small articles of American manufacture not yet yet placed in the hands of agents.

5,888. SHOP FITTINGS.—The Bureau of Manufactures is in receipt of a communication from an express and forwarding concern in the United States stating that it has received an inquiry from Norway for a list of American exporters of shop fittings.

5,889. CONSTRUCTION OF RAILROAD.—Consul General Herman R. Dietrich of Guayaquil, Ecuador, has forwarded a clipping with translation from the Registro Oficial, published in Quito during September, relative to proposals or bids for the construction of 117 kilometers of railway from the City of Ambato, Ecuador, to the River Arajuno. The time for receiving proposals, the article states, is limited to 180 days from the date of first publication, which was Aug. 24, 1910.

5,890. NAMES OF AMERICAN SARDINE PACKERS DESIRED.—An American Consular officer in China reports that a trading company in his district is desirous of hearing from firms which pack sardines, both on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

5,891. AUTOMATIC VENDING MACHINES.—A firm of general merchants and commission agents in South Africa has written to an American Consul requesting to be placed in touch with American manufacturers of automatic vending machines of all kinds. Correspondence may be in English. The firm in its letter states that weighing machines or those giving games of skill or chance do not interest it, but those having sweetmeats, smokes, perfumery, or goods of this nature.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

High Duties on Embroideries of Artificial Silks Are Upheld.

Embroideries of artificial silks formed the subject of a decision yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers when it was decided that importations made by Shoninger Brothers of New York are dutiable properly under the denominative provision of Paragraph 405, of the Tariff act of 1909.

The merchandise in question was returned for duty as "artificial silk embroidered lace." Duty was accordingly assessed at the rate of 45 cents per pound and 60 per cent. ad valorem, which provides for embroideries and other fancy woven articles. The importers set up various contentions that the goods should be allowed to enter at rates lower than those assessed.

General Appraiser Howell, who writes the decision for the board, overrules the protests, and has this to say:

"Embroideries composed of a cotton net foundation embroidered with artificial silk, cotton being the component material of chief value, are properly dutiable under the provisions of Paragraph 405 by virtue of the last portion of Paragraph 349 of the act, which prescribes 'that no article or fabric of any description composed of flax or other vegetable fibre, or of which these materials or any of them is the component material of chief value, when embroidered, shall pay a less rate of duty than that imposed in this section upon any embroideries of the materials of which such embroidery is composed.'"

DECLARE EXTRA DIVIDENDS.

American Surety and American Snuff Announce Increased Payments.

The American Surety Company, it was announced yesterday, has declared an extra dividend of 5 per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent. Both are payable Dec. 31 to stockholders of record on Dec. 15.

Another extra disbursement heard of yesterday was an increase in the extra payment on the common stock of the American Snuff Company. In addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 5 per cent. the Directors have declared an extra dividend of 3 per cent. The extra disbursement last quarter was 2 per cent. The regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent. on the preferred stock was also declared. The dividends are payable Jan. 3 to stockholders of record on Dec. 10.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—NANETTE WEBER, plaintiff, against ETTIE ROTHENBERG and others, defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the seventh (7th) day of November, 1910, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, on the 21st day of December, 1910, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold, and therein described as follows:

All that certain lot, piece or parcel of land, with the improvements thereon, situate, lying and being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

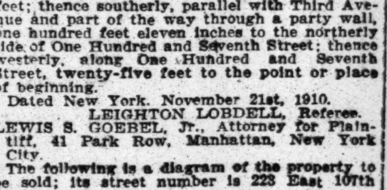
Beginning at a point on the northerly side of One Hundred and Seventh Street, distant three hundred and fifty feet easterly from the northeasterly corner of One Hundred and Seventh Street and Third Avenue; thence northerly and parallel with Third Avenue and part of the way through a party wall one hundred feet eleven inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly, along said centre line, twenty-five feet; thence southerly, parallel with Third Avenue and part of the way through a party wall, one hundred feet eleven inches to the northerly side of One Hundred and Seventh Street; thence westerly, along One Hundred and Seventh Street, twenty-five feet to the point or place of beginning.

Dated New York, November 21st, 1910.

LEIGHTON LOBDELL, Referee.

LEWIS S. GOEBEL, Jr., Attorney for Plaintiff, 41 Park Row, Manhattan, New York City.

The following is a diagram of the property to be sold; its street number is 223 East 107th Street:



107th St.

The approximate amount of the lien or charge to satisfy which the above described property is to be sold is twelve thousand four hundred and eight dollars ($12,408.00), with interest thereon from the 25th day of October, 1910, together with costs and allowance amounting to three hundred and seventy-nine 00-100 ($379.00) dollars, with interest from November 7th, 1910, together with the expenses of the sale. Equity No. 2-33. GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Complainant, against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY et al., Defendants. Equity No. 2-149. THE FARMERS' LOAN & TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, successor of Morton Trust Company as Trustee, Complainant against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY, et al., Defendants. Equity No. 3-37.

TO ALL PARTIES OF RECORD TO THE ABOVE SUITS AND ALL CLAIMANTS AGAINST THE ESTATES OF METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY AND NEW YORK CITY RAILWAY COMPANY:

TAKE NOTICE that, on December 2, 1910, there was filed in the office of the Clerk of the above Court an order herein directing that the petition therein referred to of The Pennsylvania Steel Company and The Degnon Contracting Company, and the petition therein referred to of Charles Benner, Benjamin S. Catchings and Thomas C. McDonald, as a Committee of Tort Creditors of New York City Railway Company, together with the answers filed thereto, be referred to the undersigned, William L. Turner, who was thereby appointed Special Master to take such evidence as might be offered with respect to the following questions:

(a) As of what time shall the lease, dated February 14, 1902, made by Metropolitan Street Railway Company to Interurban Street Railway Company (now New York City Railway Company), as lessee, be deemed to have been no longer in effect.

(b) Whether during the period from September 25, 1907, to July 31, 1908, both inclusive, Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson, as officers of this Court, were operating the property demised by said lease as Receivers of Metropolitan Street Railway Company or as Receivers of New York City Railway Company.

(c) Whether the expenditures made and obligations incurred by Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson as officers of this Court with respect of the property demised by the said lease, during the period from September 24th, 1907, to August 1, 1908, or any part of said period, are chargeable against the estate of New York City Railway Company or the estate of Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and if so, expenditures and obligations of what type or types.

(d) Whether the receipts of Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson as officers of this Court in respect of the property demised by said lease during the period from September 24, 1907, to August 1, 1908, or any part of said period, are to be credited to the estate of New York City Railway Company or the estate of Metropolitan Street Railway Company, and if so, receipts of what type or types.

(e) Whether the said lease was at any time adopted by Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson, acting as Receivers of this Court in respect of the property of New York City Railway Company.

And to report the same, together with his conclusions thereon, to the Court with all convenient speed.

Pursuant to said order the first hearing upon the said questions will be had at the office of the undersigned, at Room No. 84 in the Cotton Exchange Building, No. 60 Beaver Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 19th day of December, 1910, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated, December 8, 1910.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES for the Southern District of New York.—THE PENNSYLVANIA STEEL COMPANY et al., Complainants, against NEW YORK CITY RAILWAY COMPANY et al., Defendants. Equity No. 2-9. THE FARMERS' LOAN & TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, successor of Morton Trust Company as Trustee, Complainant, against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY et al, Defendants. Equity No. 2-33. GUARANTY TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Complainant, against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY, et al., Defendants. Equity No. 2-149. THE FARMERS' LOAN & TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, successor of Morton Trust Company as Trustee, Complainant, against METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY, et al., Defendants. Equity No. 3-37.

TO ALL PARTIES OF RECORD IN THE ABOVE ENTITLED CAUSES AND ALL CLAIMANTS AGAINST THE ESTATES OF METROPOLITAN STREET RAILWAY COMPANY AND NEW YORK CITY RAILWAY COMPANY:

TAKE NOTICE, that on December 2, 1910, there was filed in the office of the clerk of the above court an order herein, directing that the petition therein referred to of Adrian H. Joline and Douglas Robinson as Receivers of Metropolitan Street Railway Company, together with the answers filed thereto, be referred to the undersigned William L. Turner, who was thereby appointed Special Master to examine and report as to the following questions:

1. In what proportion should the net proceeds of the settlement of the action at law brought by the Receiver of New York City Railway Company against Metropolitan Securities Company, and the suit in equity brought by Receiver of New York City Railway Company against Metropolitan Securities Company and its directors, be apportioned between the said action at law and the said suit in equity?

2. To what part if any of the proceeds of said action at law are the Metropolitan Street Railway Company or its Receivers entitled?

3. Is the Receiver of New York City Railway Company entitled to use, and if so, to what extent, four (4) certain five per cent. (5%) improvement notes of Metropolitan Street Railway Company, of the face value of One Million Dollars ($1,000,000) each, now in his possession, as a set-off or counterclaim in respect to the claim of Metropolitan Street Railway Company, or its Receivers, to such part of said proceeds?

Pursuant to said order, the first hearing upon the said questions will be had at the office of the undersigned at Room No. 84 in the Cotton Exchange Building, No. 60 Beaver Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 19th day of December, 1910, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon of that day.

Dated December 8, 1910.

WILLIAM L. TURNER, Special Master.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT DEfault having been made in the payment of principal and interest of the 6 Per Cent. One Year Notes of YORK SILK MANUFACTURING COMPANY, which became due as to principal and interest on the 1st day of September, 1910, and said default having continued for a space of three months and upward, WINDSOR TRUST COMPANY, Trustee under the Trust Indenture, dated September 1st, 1909, executed by York Silk Manufacturing Company to the undersigned as Trustee, will, by Adrian H. Muller & Sons, Auctioneers, offer for sale as an entirety, at public auction to be held on the 28th day of December, 1910, at 12:30 o'clock on said day, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, at the Real Estate Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, all of the right, title, and interest of York Silk Manufacturing Company and of Windsor Trust Company as Trustee under said Trust Indenture, in and to the following:

1,030 shares of the capital stock of York Silk Mills, a corporation organized and existing under the Laws of the State of New York.

The bid of the highest bidder shall be accepted, but before the property is struck off such bidder will be required to pay on account of the purchase price Ten (10%) per cent. thereof in cash or Five (5%) per cent. in cash and Thirty (30%) per cent. in said notes of said York Silk Manufacturing Company. In the event of the highest bidder failing to make such payment the property will be again immediately offered for sale, and the bidder failing to make such payment will be held liable for any deficiency. The balance of the purchase price will be required to be paid and the property sold be delivered to or upon the order of the purchaser at the office of Windsor Trust Company, 32 Nassau Street, New York, on December 29, 1910, at 11 A. M. in the forenoon of that day.

In the event of the failure of the purchaser to make payment of the balance of the purchase price, the amount paid on account thereof shall be forfeited and the purchaser will be held liable for any deficiency arising upon a resale and all the expenses thereof.

Any purchaser making settlement for or payment of the balance of the purchase money bidden may deliver to the undersigned Trustee, toward the payment of such purchase money, any of the said notes of said York Silk Manufacturing Company, counting such notes so delivered at a sum not exceeding that which shall be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to the holder or holders of such bonds or his or their share or portion of such net proceeds of sale.

BERMEL'S BROTHER HELD FOR PERJURY

Charge Based on His Testimony Before the Grand Jury in the Kissena Park Scandal.

EX-COMMISSIONER OWNS UP

Leahy Tells How President Gresser Acquiesced in Culvert Graft to Raise Cash for Queen's Campaign.

John M. Phillips, once an Under Sheriff in Queens, was ordered yesterday to show cause to-day why he should not be imprisoned for contempt, and Charles Bermel, a brother of Ex-Borough President Bermel, was arrested for perjury in connection with the famous Kissena Park scandal, which terminated his brother's career in public life.

The day's developments in the inquiry into the charges of graft in the borough were such that Queens was stirred by them in spite of the fact that long and tedious overhauling of the borough's iniquities has made even the larger kind of disclosures seem jaded with too frequent repetition.

Commissioner S. H. Ordway's comment at the close of the day was that it was the most fruitful he had experienced in all his work in the borough.

"Things we knew before to a moral certainty," he said, "we now know as matters of formal sworn testimony. There is a vast difference when it comes to getting results before a jury."

Patrick E. Leahy, former Highway Commissioner of Queens, was the man who turned State's evidence and confessed. It was on vouchers prepared in his department that certain culverts were repaired in a period of political distress, the bill for each culvert being a little less than $1,000, and the work done for a little less than $100. In his former testimony Leahy had shielded Borough President Gresser.

It was about Mr. Gresser that he chiefly testified in retelling the story to Commissioner Ordway yesterday.

"The real way we came to get that money," Leahy said, "was that a campaign was on and it was needed. It was all talked over before they decided on the plan by which to get it, and the decision was to take it out of my department. I didn't want to do the trick. I protested all along it was wrong, and once out on an automobile ride I told Borough President Gresser the bills were far too high for the work done, and the thing would get us all into a mess."

The men who talked the case over met in Borough President Gresser's office, Leahy testified. There were present, he said, John M. Cragen, now a Municipal Court Justice, and then Secretary to the Borough President; Alfred Denton, Commissioner of Public Works; Under Sheriff Phillips, and himself.

Leahy declared that the matter was broached to him in the form of a suggestion that Phillips, who was managing Mr. Gresser's campaign, was hard pressed for money, and that they had "decided to make Jack a little change." The spokesman for the group was Cragen, Mr. Gresser merely looking on.

Continuing his description of the conference the witness said that after a while the men adjourned from President Gresser's office to that of Mr. Cragen, which adjoined it, and where it was possible to have more privacy. A request was made as to whether or not some culverts couldn't be found that were out of repair. Leahy answered, he said, that there were some culverts needing a little fixing, but that he could do it himself with his own men, there being no need to let contracts, except possibly in one or two cases.

A few days after this he said he found on his desk one morning six contracts made out for the repair of six culverts at stipulated figures pretty close to the most the law allowed without advertising for bids. He told Mr. Gresser's secretary, he said, that there wasn't the slightest use to make four of the repairs described, but was told to go ahead and "give them all to Jack." This was done.

Mr. Leahy thought he could appraise some of the work at its just figure and at the figure charged. The Flushing waterworks were repaired, he said, at a cost of $345 and a value of under $100; the Central Avenue bridge at $852 with a value of $150, the Black Stump Road for $873 when it was worth $250, and Jackson Avenue, near Flushing, at $883, as against $500 in value.

"I told Cragen," said Leahy, "that we had let this work out to a thief and the charter contained provisions we were violating. He replied that the charter didn't cut much ice with him and it would be all right."

"Could that contract have been let without Mr. Gresser's knowledge?" asked Commissioner Ordway.

"No," the witness replied, "Gresser knows all about it. I told him we'd get into a mess of trouble when he was looking over the work in an automobile one day."

Alfred Denton, mentioned in Leahy's testimony, took the stand voluntarily in order to deny all of it which concerned him, declaring he knew nothing whatever of the culvert matter.

When an effort was made to obtain Mr. Phillips's version of Leahy's testimony the former Under Sheriff refused to be sworn.

Charles Bermel, the brother of the former Borough President, who was arrested for perjury, was released late in the afternoon upon $10,000 bail furnished by his brother and Mathaus Hohfeler. Deputy Attorney General Arthur C. Train was the complaining witness against Bermel. The complaint cites that during the Grand Jury investigation into the Kissena Park matter two years ago he testified falsely concerning the receipts by him of funds amounting to about $20,000 and his disposition of the funds. The date for Mr. Bermel's preliminary hearing was set for Dec. 17, before Justice Kapper, who will sit as a committing Magistrate.

BARNARD GIRLS AT 'SMOKER.'

Chocolate Cigars and Cigarettes Give Columbia Students Much Concern.

"The Annual Smoker of the Thirteen Odd Fellows" was given at Barnard College yesterday. It was given by very odd fellows—the oddest in the whole university, with the exception of the incipient schoolma'ams in Teachers College, who never give smokers and say they never will. The smoker was smoked by the sophomore class of Barnard. Without any intent to throw a slur on the Columbia students the invitation cards were marked, "For Gentlemen Only," and not a single Columbia student was admitted.

The Columbia students wouldn't have known how to take part in the smoker, anyway, for although genuine corncob pipes, pouches, and cigarettes and cigars were distributed at that affair, the tobacco was merely chocolate, and even since football has been done away with at Columbia the students there still balk at attempting this super-suffragette height of refinement in their smokes. Nevertheless, some of them hung in disappointed groups around the college building after their plea for admittance had been turned down, because they did not know the gentle countersign and were not sufficiently gentle "gentlemen."

Outside they speculated with much interest as to how much fire there really might be behind the much smoke of the smoker. One young freshman related that he had seen the programme advertised in glaring posters in one of the halls. There was straightway a rush to see this. Here is what they read in large letters:

A Flirt of Skirts..............Ima Tough
Illustrated Pathetic Ballad..........
Poor Little Lonely Me
A Summer's Dream..........
A Flirt and his Enchanting Mermaid
Heart-Rending Ditty
When Other Hearts Have Closed Their Doors
Noire Danseuse............Madame Joolis Piedi
Thrilling Tragedy..........
Squaring the Score in Bloody Pup Gulch

It was voted to ask the Columbia Faculty for an investigation.

WATCHMAN BURNED TO DEATH

Trapped While Asleep in the Tower of Fulton Market.

Fire that destroyed a part of Fulton Market at noon yesterday burned to death Charles Fulton, a night watchman, who was asleep in his bed in a little room in the red brick tower at the corner of the market, at Fulton and South Streets. Fulton is said to have been a descendant of Robert Fulton.

The fire started in one of the stalls on the Fulton Street side, owned by Behrens & Avery, dealers in sea food. This and half a dozen other stalls were burned. The Western Union office there and Yates's restaurant were damaged slightly. The loss was estimated by Chief Binns at $10,000, the larger part of which will fall upon the city, which owns the market.

Fulton was a well-known character around the market. Many of his old friends tried to reach his room when they learned he was in danger, but they were restrained by the police and firemen. He has a sister living in Paterson, N. J.

$11,400 FOR TIFFANY STOCK.

Two Shares of Jewelry House Bring That Figure at Auction.

Two shares of the capital stock of Tiffany & Co. brought $5,700 each at the weekly auction of securities in the Exchange Salesroom on Vesey Street yesterday. This is the first opportunity afforded for a number of years of arriving at the approximate worth of the big Fifth Avenue jewelry house.

The concern was incorporated in 1864, and is capitalized at $2,400,000. The par value of the stock is $1,000 a share. At yesterday's price the market valuation of the company would be $13,680,000. The annual dividends for a number of years have amounted to $250 a share, but there have been occasional extra dividends.

Tiffany & Co. do not make a public statement of assets and liabilities. Although a chartered corporation the company has always been conducted with as little publicity as if it had been a copartnership.

CITY BREVITIES.

Requisition papers were signed by Gov. White in Albany yesterday for the return to Baltimore of Wilke Blakeney, who is in custody here on a charge of forgery, and for the extradition to Bridgeport, Conn., of Joseph Pallegrino, arrested here for stealing jewelry.

James H. Flynn, one of the Directors of the Associated Employes of the Bureau of Buildings, Manhattan, announced yesterday that the annual ball of the association will not be held this year on account of friction and the non-approval of the Superintendent. He warns the building trades against purchasing tickets and inserting advertisements in any journal pertaining to such an affair.

Mrs. Margaret Graham, arrested on Tuesday in Pomfret, Vt., on a bench warrant charging her with conspiracy in assisting Jacob Spero, Irving Rosenthal, Louis Berger, and Lulu Banford, who are implicated in a real estate fraud, was arraigned before Judge Crain in General Sessions yesterday and held in $1,000 bail.

KIDNAPPED CHILD SENT BACK HOME

Three-Year-Old Carlo Colliotto, Stolen Nov. 28, Found Yesterday in Hallway by a Neighbor.

PARENTS DUMB TO POLICE

Won't Say If They Paid a Ransom—Baby Disappeared with a Woman Who Called at Their Store.

Carlo Colliotto, the three-year-old son of poor Italians, living at 124 Roebling Street, Brooklyn, who strangely disappeared from his home on Nov. 28, was just as strangely returned yesterday morning, and although the police tried to get the family to tell them something which might be used in tracing those responsible for the disappearance of the child, silence was their only response. Capt. Dooley of the Bedford Avenue Police Station says it is one of those odd cases which from time to time come out of the Italian settlements of the city.

Here was a poor family, their livelihood depending upon the receipts from a very small grocery business, with not enough ready money to pay even an insignificant ransom, and yet their baby is stolen, and after being kept for ten days, is secretly returned to the home at an unseemly hour in the early morning.

The Colliottos live in the same house in which their little store is located, and so far as the police know, have no enemies. Ten days ago Onofrio Colliotto, father of the little boy, appeared at the Bedford Avenue Police Station greatly excited, but he managed to make the Lieutenant on duty understand that his boy had disappeared. The police started an investigation, and from the mother learned that about 5 o'clock on Sunday afternoon, Nov. 28, a woman came into the store and asked for a small amount of kerosene.

Mrs. Colliotto said she proceeded to get the oil and that in the small time that it required to pump it out of the keg into a small receptacle the woman disappeared and the boy, too. The mother says she ran to the door and saw a carriage going up Bedford Avenue, and she believes that the boy was in it.

For days the police searched, but not a trace of the missing boy was found. The entire neighborhood joined in the hunt, and as is the rule in such cases, all sorts of rumors went the rounds. There was the rumor about ransom which, when run down, proved without foundation; it was rumored Carlo had wandered to the waterfront and had been drowned, but one and all proved baseless.

Yesterday morning between 5 and 6 o'clock, Colliotto, the father, rushed into the Bedford Avenue station. He was out of breath, but he managed to get out enough broken English to make the Lieutenant on desk duty understand that little Carlo was back home. That was the sum total of the information he divulged. To all other questions he answered that he did not know.

Capt. Dooley assigned Policeman Wrightman to investigate. Wrightman learned that Giacomo Cavito, an Italian subway laborer, who lives in the same house as the Colliottos, found the little boy in the hallway of the house, on the first floor, shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning. The boy was so cold that his face and hands were blue; otherwise he was all right. Cavito awoke the Colliottos and the mother rushed into the hall and clasped the baby in her arms. In a little while he had thawed out, and Wrightman says that when he got to the house the boy was apparently as well as he ever was in his life.

Wrightman was unable to learn anything from the family. Mother and father both declared they knew nothing and the neighbors were equally non-communicative. Capt. Dooley said he did not believe the boy had been out of the neighborhood, but he admitted he was unable to suggest the hiding place.

The police are certain that no money was paid for the return of the boy. In the case of six-year-old Peter Crincion of Union Hill, N. J., who disappeared on Nov. 26, and was returned to his home late on Monday night, the Union Hill police believe a ransom was paid. The Brooklyn police say they do not believe there is any connection between the two cases, in which the children were stolen about the same time, and likewise returned within forty-eight hours of each other.

JUDGESHIP FOR COLBY.

Fort Wants to Appoint the ex-Senator to the Jersey Court of Errors.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 7.—Provided he will consent to accept the place, it is regarded as highly probable that Gov. Fort will appoint ex-Senator Everett Colby of Essex County to the Court of Errors and Appeals to succeed the late Judge George R. Gray. Mr. Colby, who has been mentioned before for a similar office but could not accept because of ill health, is now abroad. It is understood that he has been communicated with, and that he will be named if in a receptive mood.

Special arrangements having been made so that he may sit with the Court of Pardons without delay, Assemblyman Mark A. Sullivan was to-day sworn in by Chancellor Pitney as a member of the Court of Errors and Appeals, to which bench he was appointed yesterday by Gov. Fort to succeed the late Judge James B. Dill. To do this it was necessary to depart from the usual rule of administering the oath in the presence of the court.

The Washburn-Crosby Company's famous Gold Medal Flour has all the bread, biscuit, cake, and pastry-making qualities of the finest wheat concentrated in it. It bakes more to the pound than other flour, saves money as well as the extra work and worry occasioned by the use of flour of less uniform quality. That is why knowing housewives always demand it.
